FARMER'S NEW CASH SYSTEM.
ALL GOODS AT WHOLESALE PRICES.
Messrs. FARMER and COMPANY have much pleasure in announcing that, in terms of communication as under, from Messrs. C. J. BONNET and CIE,
RUE DU GRIFFON, LYON,
they are appointed Agents for these celebrated Silk Manufacturers to represent them at the Sydney International Exhibition.
Messrs. FARMER and COMPANY have also been fortunate in securing the purchase of the entire portion of Messrs. BONNET'S SILK EXHIBITS, and will be prepared to receive orders for same at their Warehouse, Victoria House, Pitt-street. Ladies visiting the GARDEN PALACE are invited to inspect the contents of their showcase, which will be in position in the FRENCH COURT during the week.
It is no mere hyperbole to describe the productions of this unrivalled firm, as of "world-wide reputation." There is no city of importance in Europe or the East into which they do not enter. The West-End Houses in London, with the highest standing as Silk Mercers, are those who do most largely or exclusively in these celebrated goods. And in the great American Continent, despite a duty on manufactured silks simply prohibitive to every other known maker, the Silks of Messrs. C. J. Bonnet find a place in the largest soft-goods stores.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 31.

The SPEAKER took the chair at twenty-nine minutes past 4 o'clock.

QUESTIONS.

Mr. LACKEY, in reply to Mr. M'Culloch, said that steps had been taken to lessen the noise made by the motors on the tramway, and directions given to drivers to pass places of worship at reduced speed during Divine service.

Sir HENRY PARKES, in reply to Mr. Jacob, gave information concerning a charge by a man named M'Pherson against some of the police at Raymond Terrace.

Mr. WATSON, in reply to Mr. Buchanan, said that the amount paid to the Church of England from 1863, when State-aid to religion was withdrawn, for Church purposes was £43,129 19s. 11d., and for schools from 1863 to 1866, when the Public Schools Act was passed, was £2198 13s. 11d.; to the Roman Catholic Church for the same period for Church purposes £24,811 16s. 6d., and for schools £1238 3s. 11d.; to the Presbyterian Church, for Church purposes £7441 12s. 2d., and for schools £465 2s 5d.; to the Wesleyan Church, for Church purposes £4107 9s. 9d., and for schools £294 19s. 7d. Since the year 1866, when the Public Schools Act was passed, the money for schools had been paid to the Council of Education. Plans for the appropriation of the amounts applicable from the Church and School Estates were submitted to the Government in the first instance by the heads of denominations concerned, and, prior to payment, were approved by the Governor and Executive Council. The amount invested from lands was £175,181 19s. 3d.; that available for investment, £9014 12s. 5d.

THE GOVERNOR.

The SPEAKER said that he had received the following letter in reply to the address of the House, congratulating his Excellency Lord Augustus Loftus on being appointed Governor of the colony:—

"Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly.

"I receive with much pride and satisfaction your address of congratulations on my appointment as her Majesty's representative in this colony, and I beg to express my sincere thanks for the flattering terms in which it is expressed.

"I beg to assure you, gentlemen, that in the faithful discharge of my duties it will be my constant and anxious desire to promote the welfare and prosperity of this colony, and to strengthen the loyal attachment to her Majesty's throne and person, which so notably pervades all classes of the people of New South Wales."

It was ordered that the document be printed.

ADMINISTERING THE OATH.

The SPEAKER intimated to the House that he had received a Commission authorising the Chairman of Committees to administer the oath to members in the absence of the Speaker.

PAPERS.

The following papers were laid on the table, and it was ordered that they be printed:—Circular relating to police officers engaging in private pursuits; papers relative to the transfer of R. D. Macpherson's license at Raymond Terrace; and a paper relative to the abandonment of the Southampton Mail route.

EXPLANATION.

Mr. WISDOM said that the following passage in the answer concerning the Jesuits, given yesterday, to the question asked by Mr. Hurley (H.), had been inadvertently introduced:—"I may add, that the Imperial Act 34 and 35 Victoria, c. 48, repeals the foregoing section, and the other sections of 10 George 4, c. 7, relating to members of religious orders." The Imperial Act 35 Victoria, c. 48, although repealing for the most part 10 George 4, c. 7, had not repealed those sections relating to members of religious orders. This, however, in no way altered the substance of the opinion that those sections were not applicable to New South Wales.

NEW MEMBER.

Mr. EDMUND BARTON, the newly elected member for the representation of the University, took the oaths and his seat.

PRIVILEGE.

Mr. COHEN moved,—"That the matter of the acceptance of a seat on the City of Sydney Improvement Board by Mr. Thomas Garrett, one of the sitting members for the electoral district of Camden, be referred to the Committee of Elections and Qualifications, to inquire into, determine, and report whether Mr. Garrett has, by reason thereof, accepted an office of profit from the Crown, within the meaning of the 19th section of the Constitution Act." In moving this he had no desire to make any apology to the House or to the hon. member, because he thought that the facts which formed the foundation of the motion were strong enough to warrant this House in sending them for inquiry, and report by the committee. The 19th section of the Constitution Act provided that "If any member of the said Assembly shall accept of any office of profit or pension from the Crown during pleasure, or for term of years, his election shall be thereupon and is hereby declared to be void, and a writ shall forthwith issue for a new election;" and the point they had now to determine was whether the hon. member for Camden had accepted an office of profit under the Crown. He had no desire to bias the House, and it was due to them that he should give them his views upon the matter. That this appointment was one received from the Crown would not, he thought, be denied, as it was made by the Governor on the advice of his Executive Council, the present Government, under the City of Sydney Improvement Act. Clause 6 of the Act said that within one month after the passing of the Act the Governor should appoint a Board to be called the City of Sydney Improvement Board, and under the power given by that 6th clause the Governor had appointed the hon. member for Camden a member of the City of Sydney Improvement Board. He thought he had thus made it clear that the hon. member had received an office of profit under the Crown. It had been received from the Governor, acting on the advice of the Executive Council, and as the representative of her Majesty. The next thing he would prove was that this was an office of profit. By section 12 of the Act it was provided that the members of the Board should receive a fee of a guinea each for every appeal made before them, and that if they were occupied for more than one hour they should receive two guineas each. [An hon. member: Who from?] He would prove that presently if the hon. member would only wait. He had proved that the office was one from the Crown, and it was clearly also an office of profit, since the members of the Board received a fee of one pound for each sitting, and a fee of two guineas if the sitting lasted for more than an hour. He was asked who the fees came from, and upon that point the Act appeared to be very vague. It did not say that the fees deposited by persons appealing should be applied to this purpose, or whether the members should be paid out of moneys provided by the Government. It merely provided that the members should get one guinea for each sitting, and two guineas if such sitting lasted more than an hour, and that certain fees should be deposited by persons appealing. Members might be paid from the fees of persons appealing, or out of the Consolidated Revenue, but however that might be, he did not think that hon. members would dispute that the office was one of profit. He supposed the chief objection to the motion would be that the moneys paid as fees would not be payable out of the Consolidated Revenue, that they would not be paid by the Government, but he submitted that this had nothing to do with the question. Whether that Board received remuneration from the Government or from persons appealing to it, he thought the spirit of the Constitution Act was violated by a member of the House sitting upon it. It was immaterial to a member whether he received compensation from the public purse or from private sources, and it was quite sufficient for him (the speaker) in bringing forward his motion to show that this office was one of profit, and that it was held under the Crown. The great purpose of the provision in the Constitution Act was to provide against corruption, to keep the House from any imputation, or liability to imputation, of corruption; and hon. members would admit that the liability to corruption was as clear in one case as in the other. The Constitution Act dealt broadly with the case, and stated that any member of the Assembly accepting from the Crown an office of profit—an office of profit only—should have his seat declared vacant. He did not think that he need speak further on the motion. He put it plainly that the hon. member for Camden had accepted an office of profit under the Crown, and that the case should be referred to the Elections and Qualifications Committee.

Mr. GARRETT said that the question should be settled, as it materially affected not only his position, but that of other members of the House, and would affect persons seeking hereafter to become members of Parliament. The clause the hon. member had referred to was passed to prevent persons being members of Parliament while they were servants of the Crown. That was the common sense meaning of the Act. It meant to secure people from having their legislation controlled by those who were not only representatives of the people, but servants of the Crown. In 1705, in the reign of Queen Anne, the Parliament of England was largely composed of placemen, and an Act upon which our own was modelled was passed, which settled what places members could hold, and what would by their being held disqualify them from being also members of Parliament. He should have thought that the learned gentleman before jeopardising his (Mr. Garrett's) position, and the position of others, would have gone to the root of the matter. This argument, if allowed, might be pushed to extremes. A person who held a license from the Crown, such as a publican's license, would not be qualified to sit in the House. This was an outside case, but he would show hon. members that—in a case of this sort, where a person was not accountable to the Crown, and not getting money from the Crown, he was to be brought in as accountable under the Constitution Act—there were many others equally liable to be affected. In reading a list of Commissioners for taking affidavits, the first name that caught his eye was that of Mr. Speaker. He (Mr. Speaker) held his office from the Crown, and it was an office of profit. He held it under a statute, and by the authority of the Crown.

Mr. SPEAKER said he did not hold a commission for taking affidavits.

Mr. GARRETT said he was very glad to hear that the Speaker's seat was not endangered by the question raised by this motion, but to put a case, suppose that a member of this House held a commission to take affidavits. By virtue of that commission he would be entitled to charge a fee.

Mr. M'ELHONE: The member for the Bogan is a Commissioner for Affidavits.

Mr. GARRETT: Then that hon. member's seat was in as much danger as his. The words "from the Crown," covered all sorts of authority to appoint to an office. It was delegated by Act of Parliament to any officer under the Government or any authority under the Government—to the Chief Justice in this case. Now, with reference to the appointment of Commissioners of Affidavits, the Act under which they were appointed was 37th Victoria No. 10, "An Act to make better provisions for the taking of affidavits to be used in the Supreme Court," and the first clause said, "All Justices of the Peace for the territory shall have power to take and receive affidavits in all matters pending in the Supreme Court, or in any Court or Courts, and the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court for the time being shall have power by one or more commission or commissions under the seal of the said Court to authorise as many persons as he may think necessary to take and receive affidavits," &c. He believed there were members of this House who held these commissions. Never mind whether the profits attached to this office were great or little, if they received one copper the seats of those members holding these commissions—if there were any such members—were vacant if his (Mr. Garrett's) seat was. Because in their case, as in his, the fees were paid by private persons. If he went to make an affidavit, he should go to the hon. member Mr. Driver, or some other Commissioner of Affidavits. [Mr. DRIVER: I do not happen to be one.] Another hon. member would charge him a fee according to the scale authorised by the Supreme Court. To the extent of the hon. member who was a Commissioner receiving the fee, he was exercising an office of profit, and under the Crown. What more did he (Mr. Garrett) do as one of the City of Sydney Improvement Board? The working of that Board was this—the Act provided for certain things to be done under the sanction and by the approval of an officer called the City Building Surveyor. If a person desired to put up some erection, and did not get the approval of the City Building Surveyor, then that person might appeal to the Board, and when he appealed he had to lodge a fee of a guinea for each member, in order that his appeal should be heard. Now what was the difference between a member of this Board and a Commissioner of Affidavits, so far as the emoluments were concerned? The fees in each case came form a private source. He believed there were members of this House who were members of other Boards that arose from the authority of the Crown such as this one. There was a Board for the Admission of Attorneys, and he believed the hon. member for the Hastings (Mr. R. B. Smith) was a member of that Board.

Mr. R. B. SMITH said he had twice been a member of that Board, but was not a member of it this year.

Mr. GARRETT said that was an office of profit under the Crown as much as his on the city of Sydney Improvement Board was.

Mr. R. B. SMITH explained that during the time he held an appointment of Examiner of Law, given him by the Judges of the Supreme Court, he never received one sixpence as fees, although he had examined above forty candidates.

Mr. GARRETT said the question of the hon. member's taking the fees did not affect the validity of his taking the seat. He might do what he liked with the fees, leave them alone or take them; but if his office entitled him to receive fees his seat was vacant, if his (Mr. Garrett's) was, because he held his office under a statute. He believed there was a member of this House who held this office of Examiner of Law under the Board for the Admission of Attorneys now—(hear, hear.)—and every attorney going up for admission had to pay a fee of ten guineas before he was admitted.

Mr. M'ELHONE said he was surprised that the hon. member for the Hastings had not taken his share of the fee.

Mr. R. B. SMITH said that during the time he occupied the position of examiner no fees were paid, but since then fees had become payable. He was not entitled to receive any fees during the time he was examiner, but he certainly would have taken them if he had been so entitled.

Mr. GARRETT said his contention was from the first that this payment of fees by any private person to him was not that payment which should disqualify him from holding a seat in this House. He would cite some other cases. He had cited the case of a Commissioner of Affidavits, who was a creature of a statute, and the appointment created by a statute was held to be one made by the Crown. This was what Rogers on "The Law of Elections said:—

"So in the case of Mr. Harvey in 1839, who had been appointed registrar of hackney carriages under the 1 and 2 Vic. c. 79. A select committee reported (21st February, 1839)—'That the office was a new office of profit under the Crown within the true intent and meaning of the 6th Anne, c. 7,' and that by his acceptance of it Mr. H. had vacated his seat. The appointment in this case was vested not in the Crown, but by s. 4 in the Secretary of State for the Home Department; but the committee having decided the office to be new, the point did not arise.

"The fact that the office is created by Parliament for the service of the State—and not by the Royal authority for indirect purposes, and for the increase of influence—does not withdraw the office from the operation of the statute. In Mr. Harvey's case, supra, the office was created by Act of Parliament. Some also of the offices enumerated in the returns to Parliament in consequence of the addresses of 1729 and 1779 were created by statute."

In this case Mr. Harvey was Commissioner of Hackney Carriages, and his appointment was given by the Secretary of State for the Home Department in accordance with an Act of Parliament, just as the Chief Justise here appointed the Commissioners of Affidavits. Mr. Harvey lost his seat; but why? Because there was an absolute salary attached to the office, paid from the public funds. He (Mr. Garrett) had gone through all the cases cited in this book, and had referred to the Acts of Parliament, and in every case those members who had lost their seats were paid by a fixed amount of salary, and not one case was analogous to his own, where he was paid by fees from private persons who obtained the services of the Board for their benefit. In no instance was anyone disqualified who was not paid from the public funds, and that was where the whole gist of the matter lay. Now, attorneys themselves were simply the creation of statutes, and they were paid fees. It might well be argued that an attorney, or a barrister, or a Queen's Council, should not occupy a seat in this House if it were said that a person occupying such a position as he (Mr. Garrett) did could not hold his seat in the House. The same might be said with regard to ministers of religion celebrating marriages. No minister of religion could celebrate marriages except with authority from the Crown, and if to receive fees from private persons were sufficient to disqualify anyone from a seat in Parliament, then Dr. Lang had no right to sit here at the time he was a member. He was surprised that the hon. member (Mr. Cohen) had not included in his motion the name of the hon. member for Paddington, who was equally with him (Mr. Garrett) a member of the Improvement Board. Perhaps the hon. member would explain this. The hon. member knew this, if he knew anything about the matter, which he (Mr. Garrett) very much doubted—that the acceptance of office invalidated a seat. Not only that, but the acceptance of the offer of the office invalidated the seat. He thought it ought to have struck the hon. member, as a matter of fairness, to introduce these other matters, and not to have left out the name of the other member of Parliament who was appointed at the same time as himself. He was sure there was not a lawyer in that House, whose opinion was worth a threepenny bit, who would contend that he held an office of profit under the Crown. In what way was he amenable to the Crown? He could vote against the Government with as much independence as the hon. member himself. [Mr. GREENWOOD: What are the terms of the appointment?] The terms were in the Act. [Mr. GREENWOOD: The terms are, "during pleasure."] He could be removed from office, no doubt, by the Governor and the Executive Council, if he behaved corruptly; but with regard to his action in that office, what power had the Executive over him? They had no more to do with him than they had to say what briefs the hon. member should hold, or how he should conduct his cases. The hon. member himself could not hold his position as a barrister, except with the sanction of the Crown. The hon. member had tried to make out that there was some difference between the terms "under the Crown," and "from the Crown." He would give the hon. member the benefit of that, but how did it affect this case? By his office he was not called upon to render any service to the Crown. He was not dependent upon the Crown for any remuneration in respect to the duties of his office. The Crown might remove him, the same as they might remove any one. They could withdraw the license to celebrate a marriage from a clergyman, but that did not make the clergyman a servant of the Crown. He was not sure that the Crown could not secure the disbarring of an attorney, or the disrobing of a barrister; but neither the barrister nor the attorney were therefore servants of the Crown, though they could not hold their positions without the sanction and authority of the Crown, the same as in his case. And with regard to those Boards which are maintained by fees, if there was one member there who held such a position his seat was vacant just as much as his was. There were a great many positions hon. members might be placed in where it would be extremely awkward if this forced and strained interpretation were placed upon the Act. In certain cases the Crown has power to nominate aldermen, and one of these aldermen might be elected mayor. There might be a salary attached to the office of mayor, and if this mayor were a member of that House his seat would become vacant, for he held his office by the authority of the Crown. It was just on all fours with this case. He could show scores of cases where, by the act of the Crown, members of that House might be put into a position where they get fees or salaries from other sources than from the Consolidated Revenue, and if this was sustained against him, the gentlemen he referred to would be equally deprived of their seats. He was sure the hon. member had not given this question the thought which its importance demands, or he would never have made this motion. He looked upon the motion as so transparently baseless, that he should be surprised if the House referred it to the Committee of Elections and Qualifications. He could make as good an argument against the hon. member's right to hold his seat, as the hon. member could against his. The House was supposed to be the combined wisdom of the country, but it was asked to delegate its powers to a committee of certainly not the most able men that could be found in that House. Why should the House delegate its powers to any committee? If hon. members could show that he was in any way amenable to the Crown, then he would say there might be some ground for doing so. But there had not been a shadow of the shade of a ground shown. The matter gave him very little concern personally, but for the sake of his constituents he hoped the motion of the hon. member would not be carried.

Mr. FITZPATRICK said that for reasons that would at once suggest themselves to hon. members, he was unwilling to argue this case as having any personal bearing with regard to the hon. member for Camden. But in parallel cases—in his own for instance, introduced by the hon. member himself—the temper with which the House met that case was that even those who did not think his seat vacated, nevertheless thought the case ought to be submitted for trial by the committee appointed to try such cases. It was not becoming in the House to judge a matter of this kind upon party principles. He remembered that the hon. member opposite (Mr. Lucas) expressed himself in that way: he said that, although he did not admit the validity of the charge, it was a question that ought to be referred to the Committee of Elections and Qualifications. In the case of Mr. Sutherland, again, none of his friends even suggested that it should not be referred to the committee. They ran some risk of degrading that House if they determined such questions themselves, instead of referring them to the body chosen for the purpose, and the members of which are sworn.

Mr. GREENWOOD was hardly satisfied with the explanation of the hon. member for Camden. If the question was remitted to the committee, and the hon. member lost his seat, no one desired more than he that the hon. member should soon take his seat there again, because he was one of the best qualified men in that House. But they must have regard to the Constitution Act, and if the hon. member had lost his seat in accordance with the Constitution, let him lost it, or they must alter the Act. But he supposed they must abide by the law, and let them see what the law was. He found that the hon. member was appointed under the City of Sydney Improvement Act, passed last session, under clause 6 of that Act. That clause gave power to the Governor to appoint this Board. Now he would call attention to the Acts Shortening Act of 1852, which provides that power to appoint also carries with it the power to dismiss. This office was evidently an office of profit under the Improvement Act; it was an office dependent upon the Crown. This being the case it was an office of profit under the Crown, because the appointment depended upon the Crown, and the removal depended also upon the Crown. Then let them refer to another section of the Sydney Improvement Act of 1879, which said that "members of such Board shall receive." He did not know whether there was any meaning in those words. Members might be generous and say that they would not accept the fees, lest they might forfeit their seats. The Act said, however, "that they shall receive," and the rule was that each member of the Board should receive for his own use a fee of one guinea on every reference or appeal made to him; and if he was employed more than one hour he should receive two guineas. [Mr. GARRETT: It is not a question of amount.] He was willing to admit that it was not. It was evident that the members of the Board were appointed by the Government, and could be appointed by no other authority. It was evident also that as the Government had under the Acts Shortening Act of 1852, the power to appoint, they also had the power to dismiss. It was evident that the members of the Board received fees for all the work they did—a fee for every attendance they gave—and that they could be dismissed and deprived of their office by the Government when it chose. Upon this he held that this was to all intents and purposes an office of profit under the Crown, and consequently he held also that no member of the House could hold such an office consistently with the Constitution Act. Whether the Constitution Act was right or wrong was another thing. That was a question he would not argue at present. They had to consider whether there was a prima facie case to refer to the Committee of Elections and Qualifications, and whatever his opinion might be as to whether the law was to be altered or not, he thought a prima facie case was established.

Dr. BOWKER would vote for the motion, because he believed a very clear case had been made out to send to the Committee of Elections and Qualifications. The only defence was that many persons were in the same box as the hon. gentleman. The Constitution Act was quite right in matters of this kind, and they ought to be glad to have such an Act, because if it did not exist there would be plenty of bribery if the Government was corrupt. Both in spirit and in letter the question was of importance, and was very properly before the House, and would be very properly before committee if it was sent there. There was no analogy between the case of a clergyman licensed by the Crown and this case. (Hear, hear.) He thought no defence had been made at all.

Mr. DILLON said that the question to be considered was whether such an appointment came within the bounds of the Constitution Act. He thought that if the case came under any principle at all, it came within the terms of the resolution passed by the House in 1875, relating to temporary offices. But he hardly thought that it came within those even. He would not dispute that the appointment was one during pleasure, because the same body which made the appointment had the power, by an Act of the Legislature, of putting an end to it. The question was whether this was an office of profit under the Crown. The words "office and profit under the Crown," as related to the forfeiture of a seat implied, that the profit must come from the Crown as well as the office, but it could be easily understood that although the office was under the Crown the remuneration might come from another quarter. The matter could not come within the terms of the Constitution Act unless the language of the Act was perverted. It had always been considered by the House that the profit must come from the Crown. There was no doubt that this resolution, passed in 1875, was intended to cover cases where the remuneration came from private individuals. For these reasons he thought that the House had no other course than to negative the motion of the hon. and learned member for West Maitland. If he had put his motion in the terms of the resolution of 1875, he would have had a much better case than now; but as he wanted to prove that the hon. member for Camden had accepted an office of profit under the Crown, the argument he used did not weigh so strongly.

Mr. BUCHANAN said that it was not often that he had listened to language so far fetched as that of the last speaker, and that he differed from the construction Mr. Garrett had put upon the English Act. He thought it was passed in order that nothing of profit should be given by the Government to hon. members. (Hear, hear.) He did not think that there had ever been a clearer case brought before any tribunal than this by the hon. member for West Maitland. Was this an office of profit? There was no doubt that it was. It was from the Crown, and therefore it was an office of profit received from the Crown. It was plain as A B C, and there was no possibility of getting away from it. (Hear, hear.) The Government had this office to give away. Suppose this to be worth £1000 a year, and the sum to be paid by some municipality. Would not that be an office of profit from the Crown? (Hear, hear.) The office held by the hon. member for Camden was one of profit, and was given to him by the Crown. The thing was perfectly plain, and were he to speak to the end of time he could not say more. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. COHEN, in reply, might say that he was surprised at the speech of the hon. member for Camden. His argument was strained, and there was no analogy between the outside appointments he had quoted and his own. As to the appointments of attorneys on examination boards of publicans as licensees, and of commissioners for taking affidavits—[Mr. GARRETT: They are just as in my case], if the hon. member had pointed out that they were made by Government as directly as his, the argument might have had some weight. But he had come with a forced argument showing the weakness of his own case, and proving that it should be sent to the committee. He was sorry that the hon. member should have reflected upon Mr. Speaker's putting the warrant upon the table.

Mr. GARRETT rose to a point of order, as the hon. member was introducing new matter, upon which he had no right to reply. He made no reflection upon the composition of the committee, and it was most unusual and most unfair that it should be said that he had. He did not say a syllable except in reply to an interruption, and the hon. member must endeavour to create a prejudice by misrepresenting what was said.

Mr. COHEN had merely referred to the hon. member's remark that the hon. member for Hastings was the chairman of the committee to whom his case had been referred. Did he think that the hon. member was biassed or prejudiced in the case? As the hon. member had said that he had no intention of reflecting upon any one, he would not pursue the subject. The hon. member asked why he did not include the hon. member for Paddington in his motion? In reply to a question by him, which would be found on the Votes and Proceedings of the House, the hon. the Colonial Secretary had answered that the hon. member on the Board was the hon. member for Camden, Mr. Garrett. He was sure that the House would not think him anxious to shield his friend the hon. member for Paddington. He had brought forward this motion in obedience to what he thought was his duty. To say the least of it, it appeared to him that this was a case requiring investigation. The principle was the same as that involved in the case formerly brought up by the hon. member for Camden with reference to the hon. member for Yass Plains. He had done his duty, and only wanted the point settled, if the House thought that this case did not come within the meaning of the Constitution Act. Hon. members taking the broad position of placing a common sense construction on the words of the Constitution Act, would see that he had good grounds for moving the resolution. (Hear, hear.)

The question was then put, and resolved in the negative on the following division:—

MOTION FOR ADJOURNMENT.

Mr. M'ELHONE moved the adjournment of the House to call the attention of hon. members to a rascally swindle perpetrated by the contractor for the bridges over the Hunter River at Aberdeen and Jerry's Plains. The matter had come under his notice when he travelled north a little time ago. Almost immediately after his return to Sydney he wrote to the Minister for Works calling his attention to this matter, and telling him that it appeared to him, (Mr. M'Elhone) that the piles were nothing like the length they ought to have been according to the contract. On arriving in Sydney he was advised by some persons at Jerry's Plains that the bridge there was also carried away. Both the bridges were erected by a person named Burnett who lived at Singleton. He (Mr. M'Elhone) determined to see for himself what the bridges had been, and he visited the localities to see how the bridges were constructed and very carefully measured the piles which were lying on the river. From what he saw he was convinced that neglect of the grossest sort had been shown by two highly paid officers of the Government in looking after the works entrusted to their care by the Government. These officers were Mr. Whitehead who was looking after the bridge at Aberdeen, and Mr. Stillwell who was looking after the bridge at Jerry's Plains. In the case of the Jerry's Plains Bridge some of the piles had been driven in a slanting direction, and to get them into a proper position they had been cut several inches with a cross-cut saw and a purchase put upon them. Then, according to Mr. Bennett of the Roads Department, the piles should have been driven 26 feet at the abutments and 20 feet in the bed of the river; but they were driven not more than six or seven feet, and in some cases the total length of the piles was less than what should have been driven into the ground. He had noticed recently from reports in the Sydney Morning Herald and other newspapers, that various bridges had been carried away, and if they had been constructed in the way these bridges at Jerry's Plains and Aberdeen had been it was not to be wondered at that they had been carried away. At Aberdeen, where the bridge had been constructed, he noticed something very peculiar about the piles, showing most conclusively that rascality of the grossest kind had been done under the eyes of two highly paid Government officers. If either of these officers had had any of the piles drawn, as they should have done, they could have seen that the work was being performed under false pretences. The work was certified to as piles driven twenty feet into the ground, and in some cases the piles had not been driven ten feet. Some of the piles were, notwithstanding, in the bed of the river, and if the Government liked to send anyone up there, the piles could be drawn and measured. In his opinion this contractor, Mr. Burnett, ought to be prosecuted criminally, as a warning to other contractors. All the other bridges built by Mr. Burnett had withstood the floods. There was a bridge over the same river, built by private industry, that had stood the floods for 15 years. Mr. John Conlon had told him of a bridge across the Pallaroy, built by this Mr. Burnett. Mr. Vigors told Mr. Conlon that he saw men cutting off the heads of the piles, and the piles were "wobbling" about in the river, and would not stand perpendicular. It was clear to him that Mr. Bennett had done all he could to screen his officers in this matter. Mr. Bennett, it was well known, was opposed to low-level bridges altogether, and he might be glad to see it proved that they would not do. Mr. Bennett had told him that the contractor at Aberdeen had found it impossible to drive the piles the length which he had agreed to drive them in his contract, and some reduction had been made in the contract price on that account. That seemed to him very strange, for there was no rock there, nothing but river gravel and a few boulders. He trusted that the Minister for Works would take some action in this matter, and prosecute this contractor. He did not care so much about the money as he did about the inconvenience to the people of that district for want of the bridge. It was very hard that they should have the bread taken out of their mouths through the rascality of a contractor, aided and abetted by the Government officers. Mr. Conlon also told him that some people had seen 8 or 10 feet cut off the heads of the piles at Jerry's Plains, and burnt afterwards. He also wished to call the attention of the Minister for Lands to the case of a Mr. Fredericks, at Sandy Creek.

Mr. HOSKINS: That case is settled.

Dr. BOWKER desired to call attention to two matters. One was the uncertainty with regard to the infliction of punishments to which people have been sentenced by the Courts. There was a thorough want of confidence as to the execution of the law, and the country ought to be satisfied that when persons are sentenced to certain punishment that the punishment will be inflicted. The other matter he wished to allude to was the water supply for the Hunter. There had been a culpable want of energy in the matter, and he was sure lives had been sacrificed through it. There was plenty of energy in carrying out the Exhibition, but there was a deplorable want of energy in carrying out useful work. He noticed a paragraph in the Herald of October 21, in the papers relating to the recall of the Agent-General. No mention was made of a loan for the water-works on the Hunter. It said that no further loans would be required. Judging from the replies he had received to his questions last session, he had a right to be a little disquieted about it. He hoped the Colonial Secretary would give the people some satisfaction that no further delay will be made.

Mr. O'CONNOR called the attention of the Government to the fact that people in the Exhibition were selling articles to the ... This was an abuse that ought not to be allowed, and it was very unfair to tradesmen who had to pay heavy rents for their shops. He had understood that there was a rule to prevent this being done, and that no article should be removed until the Exhibition was closed. If that rule was put in force it would remedy the matter at once.

Mr. LACKEY regretted to say that there were considerable grounds for the complaints of the hon. member for the Upper Hunter in reference to the bridges at Bowman's Crossing and at Aberdeen. The hon. gentleman called his attention to the subject some time ago, and he wrote to the officer in charge, asking him to make an investigation concerning it. Some delay occurred on account of the floods, and the consequent difficulty of examining the bridges with the view of ascertaining whether the contractor had in reality cheated the department by scamping his work. The examination took place, however, subsequently, and it was found from the reports of the officer who made it that the contractor had taken every opportunity for not driving the piles to their proper length, and in the absence of the superintendent, who had a large extent of country to inspect, had scamped his work in the manner described. He had given instructions for the matter to be placed before the Attorney-General to ascertain how the contractor could be punished. The contractor was still carrying out large contracts for the Government, and the question had arisen whether the Government could deduct anything on account of them, or whether the case was one which ought to be visited by a prosecution. One course or the other would be resorted to because the case was a culpable one and deserved the severest penalty. It was quite true that the Commissioner for Roads was opposed to low level bridges, particularly at such places as Bowman's Crossing, where the debris was very extensive and the current rapid. Whether the bridge would have been carried away in this instance if the piles had been driven the proper length it was impossible for him to say. The Commissioner thought that it would, as it was impossible for it to have resisted the force of the current and the accumulation of debris. The bridges lower down were not subject to the same strength of current; but at Bowman's Crossing and Aberdeen it was impossible for bridges to resist the current and other forces there. He would like to say, in reply to what had fallen from Dr. Bowker, who had cast censure upon the Government for not being sufficiently active in regard to completing water supply schemes for Newcastle and the Hunter, that officers were already engaged on those works, that valuators were busy, and that papers relating to property were being forwarded to the department every day. The surveys were completed, and all that could be done had been undertaken. And not only was this the case with the works at Newcastle and the Hunter, but the officers of his department were engaged on the water supply schemes for Sydney and the country. The complaint of the hon. gentleman, therefore, was ungrounded.

The motion was put and passed in the negative.

CHURCH AND SCHOOL LANDS.

Adjourned debate on the motion of Mr. BUCHANAN—"1. That, in the opinion of this House, no moneys derivable in any way from the Church and School lands shall be paid to any religious sect whatever. 2. That the above resolution be communicated by address to his Excellency the Governor."

Mr. GARRETT said that he was not prepared to follow the same line of argument as the hon. gentleman who had moved this motion, and he intended to introduce an amendment. It was not necessary to refer to the action of ecclesiastics in regard to this matter, because it had nothing to do with it. [Mr. COONAN: Hear, hear.] The subject was largely debated seventeen or eighteen years ago, and was then brought to its present stage. These lands, which comprised some valuable areas, were at present producing a very large amount of money by sales and rentals. About £160,000 or £170,000 had been invested, and had produced the usual rate of interest acquired from Government investments, and £20,000 or £30,000 was waiting for investment. Five-sevenths of the money was devoted to the services of four Churches in the country, and the other two-sevenths were devoted to education. Returns had been laid on the table of the House which would show how this fund was distributed, and the purposes to which it had been applied. There was a sum of £2888 given to the Council, and half was given to the Public schools and half to the Denominational schools. This was a very disproportionate distribution. According to the number of Public schools, and the number of Denominational schools, it should be very different. There were four Public schools to one Denominational school, and it would be a fair distribution if four-fifths of this sum were given to the maintenance of the Public schools, and one-fifth was given to the Denominational schools. The anomaly which existed in connection with the matter was, that the distribution of the money was beyond the control of the House, and this had been the case for thirty years. Such an anomaly could not be allowed to continue any longer. With regard to the distribution of the money for religious purposes it did not require argument to show that it was monstrously unfair. Why should the amount be given to two Churches only? Had not every religion a right to a fair proportion of it. (Hear, hear.) The House he was sure would not tolerate the existing condition of affairs if the money was under its control. In 1862 or 1863 it passed an Act of Parliament to the effect that no public funds should be granted to aid public worship in the colony, and yet this fund had been continued to be used to aid religion. This was against the public policy of the country which was to the effect that no public funds should be used for the purposes of religion. It only required the attention of the House and the country to be drawn to this state of things to warrant the House in putting a stop to it, and putting beyond any cavil or question the devoting of these lands to the purposes for which they were intended. From another return he would quote some figures to show some of the religious purposes for which these public funds had been used. The return was ordered on the 22nd April, 1879, and from 1870 to 1878 the officers of the Roman Catholic Church received £18,361 6s. 6d. The following were some of the vouchers:—Towards the erection of a Roman Catholic seminary, Goulburn, £60; to Convent of Mercy Schools, Goulburn, £40; towards Convent of Mercy and schools, Albury, £70; travelling expenses of bishop and vicar-general, £34 16s.; to Roman Catholic Church at Fort Bourke, £50; to Roman Catholic Church at Wentworth, £50; for a Benediction service at Sofala, £25; for a benediction service at O'Connell's Plains, £25; to the orphanage at Bathurst, £54 16s. 4d. (Laughter.) The payment of these salaries was against the law. He found an item of £45 for the erection of St. Joseph's Convent, Vale Road, and asked was that a fair use to make of the public funds of this country? He appealed to hon. members, whatever their religious prejudices might be, as to whether it was right that money derived from the public revenue should be devoted to such works as these. He regretted that he was unable to refer to payments made to the different Protestant Churches, as the returns of these had not been moved for; but he was sure that they were of the same character. He would draw the attention of the House to the fact that when these lands were set apart for the promotion of religion and education there was no other provision by the State for these purposes, but that since the charter was annulled the State had made full and ample provision, and that as the purpose for which the lands had been set aside had ceased to exist the necessity for keeping the lands apart had ceased also. They were entitled to resume these lands, and to deal with them as with the ordinary public lands of the colony. He now intended to move an amendment—"That a Bill to declare the lands known as the Church and School Estates to be Crown Lands and to deal with the funds derived from those lands should be brought in by the Government as soon as practicable: and that pending the settlement of the question the funds in hand and the proceeds thereof and of the said lands should be impounded by the Crown." A resolution of that character would deal with the question to the fullest extent possible at the present time, and would consider the interests of all parties concerned. Existing personal interests should not be sacrificed, but should be protected carefully and zealously. So far as the maintenance of education, to which they had devoted hundreds of times as much as was derived from these lands, was concerned, there could not be a shadow of claim—[Mr. BUCHANAN: Still less for religion]—and still less for religion. The Government had no right to interfere with the maintenance of religion. They had no legal, moral, or constitutional right to do anything of the sort. Nothing belonging to the public at large should be used for the promotion of one religion or another, and if they allowed these lands to be used for religious purposes by the present holders, all sects had the right to participate in the permission. He thought that such an anomaly would not be allowed to continue another day. He understood that some objection would be taken to the latter part of his amendment providing that pending the settlement of this question the funds in hand and the proceeds thereof and of the said lands should be impounded by the Crown. They should not allow the existing state of things to continue any longer, and in support of his amendment he would quote from an opinion given by the English Crown law officers. This was printed on the 28th May, 1862, and was signed by William Atherton and Roundell Palmer. It ran as follows:—

"We think that it is competent for the Governor, without any risk (if authorised by the Home Government so to do), to impound the annual receipts of these lands, and to stay the issue of further leases or grants until the question may be settled by an Act of the Legislature, or by a legal decision. We do not think that a mere resolution of the House of Assembly would have any legal effect; and we are of opinion that the Governor would not be liable to any legal consequences, if he should, notwithstanding such a resolution, continue to deal with these lands as they are at present dealt with. If, on the other hand, he should treat them as waste lands, and apply their proceeds to general public purposes, it is possible that, by information in the Colonial Court of Equity, such a misappropriation might be corrected. But we do not think that, if he acted under orders from the Crown to that effect, he would be subject to any personal responsibility. In the event of such a resolution being passed, we humbly conceive that it would be very expedient to have the matter settled by legislation, and placed beyond the reach of controversy, without any unnecessary delay, as was done in the parallel case of the Canada Clergy Reserves, and that, in the meantime, the Governor should either continue to deal with the lands as they have been hitherto dealt with, or should (as far as may be without injustice to individuals) impound the proceeds, and stay the issue of further leases or grants."

That was what he asked to-day, no more and no less. Still he must enter his protest against the authority of the Crown of England to interfere in this matter at all. The purpose for which the lands had been set apart had been more than amply carried out. In a despatch from Viscount Goderich, Secretary of State, to Governor Darling, dated 14th February, 1831, it was stated:—

"The first point to which I shall call your attention is the omission of that part of your former instructions by which you were required to reserve one-seventh of the Crown lands in each hundred and county for the purpose of maintaining the Church and school establishment. This change has been made in compliance with the recommendation contained in the report of the commissioners of inquiry already submitted to you. The reasons they have assigned for this recommendation sufficiently prove the propriety of adopting it. I may add that as these lands in their present state are of little or no value, and any they may in future possess must be derived from the industry of the owners of the adjoining lands, any income to be derived from them for public purposes must, in fact, like every other branch of the revenue, be a tax on the industry and capital of the colonists. It comes, therefore, simply to be a question whether it is the best means of raising the sum which is required; a question on which there cannot be a doubt, when it is remembered that while they cause very serious inconvenience to the settlers, these reserves at the present moment do not even pay the expense of management; that the whole cost of the Church Establishment is defrayed out of the ordinary revenue, and that therefore the effect of the system is to lay a heavy tax on the colony at the present moment, with a view to future exemption from taxation. The policy of the proposed change is to afford an immediate relief, and to trust for the means of meeting the future expense of the Church Establishment to the same source, from which it is at present defrayed, and which will, of course, become more productive as the colony advances in wealth and population. If that advance is promoted, as there is every reason to believe, by the sale of lands hitherto reserved, they will by that means at least as effectually contribute to the relief of the revenue hereafter as if they were retained in the hands of those by whom they are now managed."

As far back as 1831, the policy of selling these lands, and of making them public lands was admitted, on the ground that the purpose for which they were set apart was performed by public contributions and by public funds. In one way and another we were spending half a million a year for the purposes of education, and therefore he thought that the public were performing the duty to a greater extent out of the public taxes than it was ever expected to be performed out of the proceeds of these lands; and, therefore, we were in the position equitably to take the course which he proposed in his amendment—that was to make the lands ordinary public lands, and deal with the funds in hand on a fair and liberal principle, with a due regard to vested interests. If there were any individual rights accruing or existing under the system, they must be protected. He had nothing further to add to this matter, and he confidently left his amendment in the hands of the committee.

Mr. STUART said the hon. member for Camden seemed to have argued his case on wrong premises. He (Mr. Stuart) did not object altogether to the terms of the hon. member's proposed amendment so far as it stated that it was desirable that a bill should be brought in by the Government as soon as practicable to deal with this question, to declare these lands waste lands of the colony, but he did object most strongly to the latter part of the hon. member's proposed amendment, which was nothing more nor less than a confiscation of that which they had no right to confiscate. He had no objection to a bill being brought in to deal with the matter, because he had a perfect confidence that this House and the country would deal with it in fairness and equity. (Hear, hear.) But neither in the original resolution nor the amendment in its entirety was there any evidence whatever of any such fairness or justice, or regard to the equities of the case. The argument or the statement of the hon. member for Mudgee amounted simply to this—that because a certain Church in this country which received a share of this fund held opinions or dogmas inconsistent with the hon. member's notion of what was right, the hon. member considered nothing should be paid to it from this fund. [Mr. BUCHANAN: No]. The hon. member considered that nothing should be paid to any Church; but, if anything was to be paid to any Church for religious purposes it could only only be the right of one Church, and that the Church of England, because it happened to be the Established Church at the time of the reception of this trust. [Mr. BUCHANAN: That is if the trust existed]. So that the hon. member's object was that, under any circumstances, the particular Church to which the hon. member had an inveterate objection should be shut out from any share of the fund. What was this but mere dangling before the Church of England. "If there is any one entitled to anything, it is you; come with me, and I will help you to get all." At the same time another Church was being raised up in opposition by being denied that which was its rightful share. Yet we were asked to argue this question without any sectarian feeling. The hon. member's speech was one of the most virulent attacks against those who held opinions opposite to his. This was not the way the question must be dealt with. The argument made use of by the hon. member for Camden, seemed to be chiefly this: that this country had asserted and maintained for years past the policy that no public money should be paid to any religious denomination for the purposes of religion, and that therefore all payments of money derived from the Church and School Estates were made in gross violation of that principle. If these Church and School Estates were Crown lands, in precisely the same position as other Crown lands of the colony, the hon. member's argument would be quite unanswerable; and the hon. member referred in support of his argument to the opinion of the law officers of the Crown in England. It was, however, always a very dangerous thing to read a few sentences taken from the opinion of law officers, because unless the whole of the context was taken that which appeared to be in support of a particular view might in reality be taken from the mere arguing that in such and such an event such and such consequences might ensue; or if a certain position be proved, then certain consequences follow. Now he ventured to say that the opinion from which the hon. member read did not bear out the views which he gave expression to. The opinion of the law officers of the Crown stated distinctly that they were of opinion that the lands which formerly belonged to the Church and School corporation did not constitute a portion of the waste lands of the Crown, but they went on to argue that if they were they could be dealt with. They went on to argue that even if they had a trust, and in their opinion they had a trust connected with them, that trust could be dealt with under certain circumstances. Of course we know that it could be dealt with under certain circumstances, and there could be no objection whatever to deal with it under the circumstances. That was protect the equities which were involved in and attached to that trust, and then you do with the property what you like. You might convert those lands into the Crown lands of the colony. You might take the proceeds of those lands in any way you liked and make them subject precisely to the same regulations as other Crown lands of the colony, provided you have settled first of all with the parties who may hold beneficial interests under the trust. That in fact was the gist of the opinion he had just referred to. And what had been the case with regard to the matter in our own Courts? The question was tried, and the decision of the Supreme Court was that there was a continuing trust. It was argued that the Crown could not be a trustee, and that therefore there could be no continuing trust. But the Supreme Court held that the Crown was a trustee, and that there was a continuing trust. Then, was it right or equitable that the House should, by resolution, say that no more of this money should be paid? Such action by the Legislature as that proposed would be merely a confiscation, and the taking of that which was not ours—of confiscating all the beneficial interests which existed under a particular trust, and making a use of them which we had no right to make. The whole of the argument of the hon. member for Camden hinged upon this. Because if these lands were in precisely the same position as the waste lands of the colony then we had been guilty of a great wrong in giving out this money year by year. If there were no trust, if these religious bodies had no beneficial interest, no rights in connection with these lands, then we had been guilty of a great wrong year after year for the last 20 or 30 years in paying them any money whatever. But if they had a right under this trust, then we would be permitting as great a wrong in now saying we would pay no more. Let the matter be inquired into, let it be discussed on its merits, let it be seen whether there did exist a right or not, and if a right did exist, if a trust still continued, if those lands were still weighted by a beneficial interest, no matter who were the parties interested in it, let the country maintain its honour even to its great detriment. Let it not seek to sully that honour by taking hold of that which it had no right to. Let it deal fairly and equitably. Let a bill be prepared which would place before this House an equitable dealing with the whole subject, and then he did not see that there would be good reason to complain. As to the particular mode of appropriation of the sums of money which had been drawn from time to time, and which, in the hon. member's opinion, were misappropriations; whether the money had been spent for the building of a church, of schools, or of convents, he did not see that we had anything whatever to do with it. If any particular religious body had any right to a certain share of the proceeds of this fund he did not think it was for us to say that they should not spend it upon one kind of building, or that they might spend it upon another. It it had been spent in accordance with the particular views of that particular religious body, we ought to be satisfied. It was not for us to say that it was more desirable to spend the money upon a church than upon a school, or vice versa. Mr. Garrett had said that if the Legislature found any individual had vested interests, those interests would be respected, just as was done in the abolition of State aid to religion. But the question was not whether any individual had a right at all. He failed to see how any individual had a right under this trust. Either there was a right in some particular religious denomination, or there was no right at all. [Mr. GARRETT: I could name individuals who have a right.] If there was no trust there were no rights. If there was a trust, then it was the rights of the parties included in that trust, and not some particular individuals. The whole course of legislation in this country showed, and the tenor of this resolution showed, that there was a trust, and that the trust had been recognised. If there was no trust, why was this money kept separately in the Treasury? [Mr. GARRETT: We are fulfilling the trust in another way.] The trust was for religious purposes and for school purposes. The hon. member did not mean to say we were fulfilling any trust for religious purposes. [Mr. GARRETT: Yes, under schedule C.] The hon. member had just told them that schedule C was for individual purposes. It was because this country had been for years paying for religious services it was considered desirable that there should be no more such payments, but it was deemed consistent with the honour of the country that the individual rights that had grown up under such a system should be preserved. The Church and School revenue has been received year by year, notwithstanding schedule C. [Mr. GARRETT: And has been impounded year by year.] It had not been impounded. No one had ventured until now ever to say that schedule C was a compromise of any rights under the Church and School Estate. In the whole of the argument on the abolition of State aid, it never was alluded to. If the trust did exist, this was not State aid to religion. That could be dealt with or controlled or stopped at the will of the Legislature. You could not, except by confiscation, destroy the equities which these parties have. He said the money had not been impounded year by year, and that was one of the strongest proofs upon which he would rely for the statement he put forward that the trust exists. The land had been sold. The land was not to be given to the different denominations—it was never intended—but the proceeds of that land were to be invested, and remain in just the same position as the land remained in, to fulfil the condition of the trust. [Mr. GARRETT: In 1875 the proceeds of the land were divided.] If so, then whoever administered the fund did not administer it properly. The position for years past has been that the whole of the money has been invested, and that the interest of that money had been paid to the denominations for school purposes in the same way as the rent of the lands. [Mr. BUCHANAN: It is no trust.] That was another question. It had been recognised for a number of years that this money should be divided amongst the four religious denominations. The hon. member, Mr. Buchanan, wanted to pin him to the position that if there was a trust, this money was for only one body. He did not know that he should be altogether sorry if the hon member would prove that. But if the hon. member proved that, he would prove that there was a trust, and would raise a hornet's nest about his ears that he had better let alone. What he contended was that there was a trust, and if so we had no right to deal with that which is the rightful property of the parties interested in the trust without their consent. The whole question rested upon this, was there a trust or not? The law officers have said that there is a trust. The Government of a certain day said there was none. The matter went on appeal to the Supreme Court, and the Supreme Court decided that there was a trust. The matter was referred to England—not the decision of the Supreme Court, but it was a pity that it was not, that they might have had the decision of the Privy Council. The opinion of the law officers in England was taken, and that opinion was that there was a trust, and it was not to be gathered from their opinion that it was only for one sect, but that there was a trust, and it remained for the Parliament to decide by legislation the best way to carry out that trust, so long as it was for the purposes connected with the trust. It could not be diverted or taken away. If it was for religious purposes, it could not be diverted to the purchasing of a racecourse, or the endowment of a theatre. But it might be used for religious purposes, even if those purposes were not precisely those that were contemplated when the trust was formed. He was desirous of impressing upon the House that in assenting to a resolution such as this the House would be doing a most illegal act, and a gross injustice, and dealing with the rights of parties that they had no right to deal with. And in assenting to the amendment of Mr. Garrett, they would be guilty of confiscation or spoliation with regard to the moneys which have already accumulated, and are annually accumulating upon investment. Let the money be dealt with equitably and fairly; let the rights be ascertained, whether of individuals or of corporate bodies, or of the whole of the colony. Let those rights be ascertained and respected. Let a statement of those rights be obtained, and it would be a blessing to the country to have the whole question settled, and this grievous anomaly removed from our public lands. Let us have the whole of the lands of the colony administered upon one system. But do not let us arrive at that unity in the mode of dealing with the land by doing an injustice to those who already have interests in that land.

Mr. GREENWOOD said that he had tried to dissect the arguments of the hon. gentleman, and he had arrived at the conclusion that the Parliament was being asked not to deal with these lands because certain trusts were involved. If there was a trust, what was it? It was not for any particular denomination now, although the charter issued in 1833 by the King of England was intended for the benefit of the Church of England. That provision lapsed, however, and the land became devoted to the purposes of religion and education generally. Would the hon. gentleman maintain that there was only one denomination devoted exclusively to the promotion of religion and education. The opinion of the Duke of Newcastle in 1862 was that the management of these lands, and the appropriation of the proceeds of sales of them, were matters which could be properly dealt with by the local Legislature—[Mr. STUART: Go on.]—and that his Grace did not require any Act dealing with them to be reserved for the signification of her Majesty's pleasure, if due respect was given to the interests of individuals. He would defy anyone to show that an individual right could arise under the charter or any instructions from the Home authorities from the date the letters patent were issued. What was the trust? Not that which protected the interests of one sect or two or three. (Hear, hear.) It was to protect the interests of the citizens equally, whether they belonged to a denomination or no denomination. In 1862 it was determined that the stipends to the clergy should determine, life interests being preserved, and it was thought that £30,000 a year was a fair thing to pay in regard to them. He would not stop to point out how three Churches substituted young lives for old ones, or how one Church substituted a live Denis for a dead Peter, because it was thought that it would be better for religion and education in New South Wales. He did not wonder that political leaders of that day and members of the House were anxious to get a settlement of the question, and were willing to be liberal enough in the matter of personal interests in order to get the question settled for ever. He had not got a word to say against the recipients of State-aid, although he knew that some of them did not receive it personally, and that it went to the respective denominations, who did as they chose with it. This showed how absurd it was to pretend to protect public interests. It was the system of State-aid to religion he declared uncompromising war against, because it had been the curse of Christianity from the days of Constantine to those of Victoria. If it was right in 1862 to determine this State-aid to religion, how could they be asked to continue this endowment from the lands now? Originally, it was intended that one-seventh of all the territory of New South Wales should be set apart, and that the people should be educated in the Church of England only. Until all the people of the colony were made good and lawful members of the Church of England the lands could not be used. The surplus revenue could not be used for any other purpose than for converting the hon. member and the hon. members for Camden and Mudgee. The charter was dissolved in 1833, and then provision made that the lands which had been voted under charter were to be used for the purposes of religion and education. He had a list of these lands which showed that they were situated in the most valuable parts of the colony, and were worth in some instances £5 an acre. There were 168,000 acres for instance adjoining the Australian Agricultural Society's grant. All the minerals went with these lands, and altogether they were worth two millions sterling. The actual area was 435,121 acres, and the question arose, how all these lands were to be administered. He need not repeat the action taken by this House again and again with regard to them. The select committee appointed in 1860 to investigate and report upon them, had done so very thoroughly, and certain bills were brought in afterwards. There never was a motion to declare these lands waste lands negatived in this House, and several times bills passed here by overwhelming majorities, and sent to the Upper Chamber were rejected there. There were very strong reasons why they should come to a decision speedily. He presumed that when Sir John Robertson introduced his bill in 1862 he was of opinion that there was a trust. If there was any power of determination the Crown could say that a halfpenny a year should be devoted to religion, and the rest to education. Still, if the Crown were to do so, it would be regarded as an insult to this Parliament, which was perfectly competent to deal with those lands. How could it be just for them to allow the decision of the Cabinet of 1845 to distribute money for them, and especially in the proportion of five-sevenths to religion, and two-sevenths for education. As if that were not enough they did not distribute that two-sevenths pro rata to the number of children in the Denominational and Public schools, but gave half to the former and half to the latter, which was out of proportion to the respective number of children attending each. He could point out how from the first the tendency of this state of things had been to enrich powerful ecclesiastics. It provided that the clergy should be paid first, and in proportion to their position, the higher the position, the more readily paid. Thus £2000 were paid towards building a palace for the Bishop of Sydney, and £2000 towards one for the Bishop of Melbourne, and other sums were similarly granted. These moneys were intended for the poor, but though they might reflect credit upon the donors, it was not the poor so much as the rich who benefited by them. He might be disposed to advocate that these lands should be devoted in the terms of the trust for education, and if Mr. Stuart could prove that the trust applied also to religion he would propose that a farthing be the proportion for religion. Let them make the lands waste lands of the Crown, and settle what was to be done with this magnificent territory. He thought that this Parliament had the power to legislate upon them, and therefore supported the amendment. (Hear, hear.)

Sir HENRY PARKES moved,—"That the debate be adjourned until this day week, as the Government were not at present in a position to deal with a question of such importance, in the absence of precise information as to the amount of the fund now existing for investment, and the cash balance waiting to be invested or distributed. He hoped hon. members would see the reasonableness of allowing the Government time to ascertain the precise nature of the funds.

After some remarks from Mr. BUCHANAN, the motion for the adjournment of the debate, was put and agreed to.

MATRIMONIAL CAUSES ACT AMENDMENT BILL.

On the motion of Mr. BUCHANAN, the Matrimonial Causes Act Amendment Bill was read the third time, passed, and transmitted to the Legislative Council.

The House adjourned at fifteen minutes to 10, until 4 o'clock p.m. next Tuesday.

NOTICES OF MOTIONS.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.—TUESDAY, NOV. 4.

Mr. Greenwood to move.—That the order made by this House on Wednesday, the 29th of October last, for the printing of certain returns, ordered by resolution of the House on the 22nd of January, 1879, respecting certain purchases of land by virtue of improvements, be rescinded, because the returns are now too late to be of any practical value, and because part of them have been printed already.

Mr. Greenwood to move.—1. That this House is of opinion that the order made by it on the 5th of February, 1879, for certain returns in regard to lands under pastoral occupation has not been properly complied with, and that the order made on the same date for returns in regard to conditional purchases has been utterly ignored. 2. That the returns ordered on the before-mentioned date should be furnished as early as possible, and that they be brought down to the date of the passing of this resolution.

Mr. Greenwood to move.—1. That, in the opinion of this House, an annual report ought to be laid upon the table of both Houses of Parliament in regard to the sale and occupation of Crown lands, in the same way as the Railway, Postal, and other departments furnish annual reports of their operations under existing arrangements. 2. That the above resolution be communicated by address to his Excellency the Governor.

CAPTAIN ONSLOW'S MEETING AT CAMDEN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In a letter from Dr. Goode, in your this day's issue, on the subject of Captain Onslow's meeting at Camden, the Doctor complains that he and I were not reported. For my part, I beg to say that I had no idea that my few remarks were worth reporting; and I may add that a good many think it well that the Doctor's remarks—many of which, he must acknowledge, were of an exceedingly personal nature towards the sitting member—were also consigned to oblivion so far as the reporter was concerned. The fact is, that no sooner had the Doctor opened out his attack on Captain Onslow than the rowdy element in the meeting—some dozen or two larrikins, with a keen scent for a bit of fun—joined in with him, amidst the disapproving silence of most of the two hundred or more of whom the meeting was composed.

As to the hooting at the end, it was solely confined to the playful larrikins; and had not Captain Onslow—feeling, no doubt, very naturally disgusted—brought the meeting to a sudden close by a vote of thanks to the chairman, I and many others would have gladly moved a vote of confidence in him, which I believe would have been carried by an overwhelming majority of those present, as regards both number and intelligence.

I am, &c.,

Wivenhoe, October 30. H. A. THOMAS.

[Our reporter has also written a letter commenting upon the remarks made by Dr. Goode, and defending his report on the ground of accuracy as well as on that of judgment in the exercise of his professional duties. ED. Herald.]

MEROOL CREEK.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In your telegraphic news of to-day and yesterday, I find that at last, a "rush" has taken place to Merool Creek.

It may interest some of your readers, if I give a few extracts from a letter addressed to you by my late father, the Rev. W. B. Clarke, and published by you in the month of November, 1861, under the heading of "Lachlan and Peak Range Goldfields."

"For many years I have anticipated this success, for as you will find by reference to the instructions I received in 1851, in which were embodied the names of the districts I had indicated to the Government beforehand, I pointed out the meridian ranges, between 32 and 34 S. latitude, and 146 and 149 E. longitude, as deserving of search for gold . . . . By 'meridian ranges,' I meant those ranges of granite syenite quartziferous slates and other favourable rocks in the midst of a deep and widespread region of alluvial deposits which affect a direction along the meridian running generally N. and S., or which form insulated masses along the meridian. . . . . . Between the Lachlan and Murrumbidgee within the indicated area, I doubt not there are gold localities, and I look also to the country about Ariah and north of Merool Creek as places worthy of notice; but there is not much water, though the soil is very deep. The surface indicates abundance of water in former ages. . . . So strongly have I been impressed with those views that when the present Chief Secretary" (the late Sir C. Cowper) "was campaigning in March last at Burrangong, I addressed to him a letter requesting him to have steps taken to prospect the country westward of that district; but, his return taking place sooner than I anticipated, as announced by telegram, the letter was not forwarded. It was, however, seen in Mr. Shepherd's committee room by Mr. Hoskins, on the 12th April, and I have now forwarded it to Mr. Cowper. I also pointed out the region as auriferous to the Surveyor-General more than a year ago."

It has thus taken eighteen years to prove what might have been verified within a month.

Branthwaite, St. Leonards,

October 30. M. W. S. CLARKE.

DEPUTATIONS.

THE WANTS OF NORTH SHORE.

A large deputation waited upon the Hon. John Lackey (Minister for Works) yesterday, to present a memorial from the municipalities on the north bank of the harbour asking for water supply, sewerage works, and tramways. The deputation consisted of Mr. J. S. Farnell, M.L.A., Mr. Lynch, M.L.A., Mr. J. Davies, M.L.A., Mr. Tunks (Mayor of St. Leonards), Mr. G. M. Pitt (Mayor of East St. Leonards), Mr. F. Smith (Mayor of Victoria), Mr. A. Hilder (Mayor of Manly), Mr. R. Seldon (Mayor of North Willoughby), Aldermen Best, Charlton, M'Mahon, Gale, Munro, Thompson, Langley, Moodie, Gall, Stevenson, and Forsyth, and Messrs. W. H. M'Keown, P. Hayes, E. Waters, L. J. Thompson, G. Pile, jun., C. A. Atcheson, W. Clark, R. Harnett, and Captain Pockley.

Mr. FARNELL having introduced the deputation, the secretary of the movement, Mr. W. G. Willington, read the memorial, as follows:—

"St. Leonards, October 31st, 1879.

"To the Hon. John Lackey, M.L.A., Secretary for Public Works.

"Sir,—The municipalities of St. Leonards, East St. Leonards, Victoria, North Willoughby, Manly, and Hunter's Hill, have to submit certain wants for the consideration of the Government.

"In the first place, with regard to water supply, the North Shore is very inadequately provided in fair ordinary seasons, but in the droughts to which we are at times subject, the inconvenience experienced is very severe. It is not many years since when a large portion of the inhabitants were dependent, for drinking and cooking purposes, upon a supply of water brought over from Sydney in tanks, and doled out at so much per small cask.

"It will be quite unnecessary to dwell upon the fact that an abundant supply of pure water is of the highest importance to the health of any community.

"It is considered that this is a matter in which the Government should decide by what means a supply of water should be provided for the North Shore while the subject is engaging the attention of the Government with respect to Sydney and its suburbs, as it should be borne in mind that no scheme will be complete which does not embrace the North Shore. The want of sewerage works is making itself felt in a most unmistakable manner, as can be testified by the resident medical gentlemen.

"It is submitted that it is not the province of the Municipal Councils to say what system of sewerage would be best adapted for the North Shore: it is evidently a work that will require the careful study of the most able officers of the Government; its importance and urgency are beyond question. For that reason the Councils of the North Shore deem it to be their duty to bring the matter prominently before the Government as one that cannot longer be neglected, without serious danger to the health of a considerable population.

"With respect to tramways, it is suggested that lines of tramways should be connected with the steam punts or floating bridges it is understood that the Government have decided to construct for connecting the North Shore with Sydney, branching out in one direction to the fortifications and Manly, and in another direction along the Lane Cove Road, through Willoughby, Hornsby, and the fruit-growing districts. There is already sufficient traffic along these lines to find remunerative employment for omnibuses and other vehicles, and there can be no doubt that, when the natural beauties and resources in these localities are made more accessible, tramways would give the Government a good return for the capital invested in their construction; besides, a saving would be effected in the maintenance of the roads which are in the hands of the Government; the roads are wide, the gradients practicable, and the district one of great value for recreation purposes to the community in Sydney.

"By the introduction of tramways the present population of about 9000 should be speedily and largely increased.

"WALTER G. WILLINGTON, Secretary."

Messrs. Farnell, Tunks, Smith, Moodie, Waters, Hilder, Pitt, Seldon, and M'Mahon, addressed the Minister in support of the memorial.

Mr. LACKEY said, in reply, that the matters to which his attention had been called should have early consideration, but he might give the deputation to understand that there were no grounds whatever for the apprehension which seemed to exist in the minds of the people of St. Leonards that they would not be provided with water. He did not know where this idea had come from, but the project for supplying Sydney with water was a general one, intended for Sydney and the whole of the suburbs, and of course that would include not only St. Leonards or North Shore, but the whole of the valley of the Parramatta River, whether the water would be conveyed from Sydney to the North Shore across the harbour, or brought from a point higher up it was impossible for him to say. That was a matter which would rest in the hands of the professional engineers, whose duty it would be to do the right thing. But as far as he recollected the project, as explained to him by the engineer in charge of the matter, the intention was to convey the water across the river at some higher point, somewhere about Ryde—between Homebush and Five Dock—and he imagined the water would be conveyed from that point along the North Shore, giving to St. Leonards the supply required. [A member of the deputation: It would come from Petersham, I think.] He was not quite sure whether it would come down so low as Petersham, because the whole of the Parramatta River had to be supplied—nearly from Parramatta down, and he did not know whether the water would come from Petersham or from some point higher up. As far as the fact itself was concerned, the deputation need not be the least apprehensive of North Shore or St. Leonards being excluded from the prepared scheme. With reference to the re-opening of the question to follow a decision or recommendation which came from the Royal Society some time ago, he would point out to the deputation that the object in bringing Mr. Clark, the hydraulic engineer, here was to decide upon the different schemes which had from time to time been submitted, so that upon his decision the matter of water supply for Sydney and the suburbs might rest. The scheme decided upon by Mr. Clark as the best, two or three Governments had adopted; and the present Government had taken the necessary steps to carry the scheme into operation. Parliament had authorised the Government to raise a certain amount of money to carry out the work, and the work was now on the way, and would be carried out. With reference to sewerage he would point out that up to the present time the Government had not taken any action in regard to the sewerage of districts outside Sydney. The action which had been taken had been confined to Sydney alone. A sum of money had been provided for sewerage works for Sydney, but not for the suburbs and country towns, and the question was still an open one, whether the sewerage works for the suburbs and the country towns would, or would not be, carried out by the Government. Once the Government commenced to do any work of the kind outside Sydney they could not stop, and he doubted whether the work was not of a kind which should be left in the hands of the various municipalities, even supposing those municipalities had to be subsidised to some extent to enable them to carry it out. He could understand how the municipalities could do the work with some assistance from the Government, the plans adopted by the municipalities being subject to approval by the Government. With regard to communication, he was doing all he possibly could to meet the views expressed by the deputation. Surveyors were now engaged at St. Leonards in taking levels, in order to see whether the tramway system could be adapted to that borough, and if it could, it should be done and without any delay.

RAILWAY EXTENSION.

A deputation of inhabitants of the Carcoar districts, consisting of Messrs. Stimpson, Mayor of Carcoar, Connelly, and Kenworthy, accompanied by Mr. J. S. Farnell, M.L.A., and Mr. J. B. Thompson, M.L.A., were yesterday morning introduced to the Hon. Minister for Works, by Mr. A. Lynch, M.L.A., for the purpose of presenting a petition from a large number of residents in the district above mentioned, praying for the construction of a line of railway from Blayney through Carcoar and Young, and to join the Southern railway at Murrumburrah. Mr. Lackey told the deputation that he could not give them any definite answer as to their proposition in the absence of a report from the officers he had instructed to make the necessary surveys.

TRAMWAY TO BOTANY.

A deputation of residents of Redfern, Waterloo, Alexandria, and Botany waited upon the hon. Minister for Works yesterday, and were introduced to him by Mr. Lucas, M.L.A., and Mr. Sutherland, M.L.A. The deputation consisted of Mr. A. Torning (Mayor of Waterloo), Mr. J. Henderson (Mayor of Alexandria), Messrs. W. Beaumont, J. Goddes, J. Hardie, H. Westcott, F. Smith, C. Hayes, W. Stephens, G. Hinschman, and A. Bray. The members of the deputation urged upon the Minister the necessity for including the districts they represented in the Government scheme of tramways, on account both of the importance of the localities and the largeness of the population concerned. They would prefer the work to be carried out by the Government rather than by private companies, because they had confidence in the Government, especially after the way the existing tramway had been constructed. It was also pointed out that by continuing the tramway from Botany towards Randwick, the value of a large quantity of Government land would be very much enhanced.

Mr. LACKEY said he did not know what had led to the impression that the Government did not intend to construct the tramway on the Botany Road. He had given an intimation on a previous occasion that the Government intended to carry out a net-work of tramways right through the whole of the suburbs, and he thought he intimated at the time that Botany Road was one of them—along George-street South, Regent-street, and up to Botany. He thought that would meet the views of the present deputation. The scheme of the Government was not yet completed, and of course he could not say precisely the routes that would be taken all round the city. But the tramway officials were engaged in taking levels in order to submit plans of the most desirable route to give the whole of the suburban inhabitants tramway accommodation as far as possible. With regard to the encomiums passed by the deputation upon the present tramway, it was certainly gratifying to him and to the Government to find that this undertaking had met with such success—not upon the point of pecuniary success so much as with regard to the improvement of the means of transit to the public who travel. The tramway, he believed, had been found a great convenience to the travelling public who go by the railway, as well as to the people going to the Exhibition. As to the permanence of the work, he believed every one would admit that it was a very creditable piece of work. As to the probability of the tramways getting into the hands of private individuals it was the intention of the Government to retain them in their own hands as far as they possibly could. (Hear, hear.) The Government were preparing a project to embrace a net work of tramways all round the city, to work them as feeders to the railway system. He thought a matter of such large traffic as this too great to be in the hands of private enterprise. It gave a greater feeling of security to the public, and a greater guarantee that it would be carried out satisfactorily. It was the intention of the Government to include the Botany Road in the tramway system.

The deputation thanked the Minister, and withdrew.

DRAINAGE FROM THE NECROPOLIS.

A deputation, consisting of Mr. M'Culloch, M.L.A., and Messrs. Gormley, Jackson, Andrews, and Walters, waited upon the Minister for Works yesterday, to call his attention to the fact that some of the residents of Rookwood suffered very much from the drainage which flowed from the cemetery.

Mr. LACKEY said he would have the matter attended to at once.

The deputation also pointed out to the Minister the necessity for the appointment of a gatekeeper at the railway gate at Rookwood, and Mr. Lackey promised to refer this matter to the Commissioner for Railways.

ELEVATED RAILWAYS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Will you permit me, through the medium of the Herald, to call the attention of the public to the following extracts from Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper, and the Scientific American:—

Extract from Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper, July 5, 1879:—

"New rapid transit routes in New York.—The Commissioners of rapid transit, appointed by the Mayor in April last, to lay out routes for rapid transit railways in the annexed district, recently prepresented a report of the result of their labours, to Mayor Cooper. The board consists of Henry G. Stebbins, Henry F. Spalding, Benjamin G. Arnold, Lewis G. Morris, and Samuel R. Filley. When appointed, it was generally understood that their sole duty would be to determine the routes in Westchester county, but they have laid out in addition a new and independent route through the centre of the city, from the City Hall to the Forty-second-street depôt, and on to the Harlem River, by the line of the New York and Harlem Railroad. This deviation from their original instructions was made in compliance with a letter addressed to them by Edwards Pierrepont (ex-Minister to England), Augustus Schell, and H. J. Jewett, calling attention to the great need of a rapid transit route between the two lines now established, and asking the Commissioners to designate a route for the same. The following route is specified:—Beginning at the intersection of the New York and Harlem Railroad, at the line of the city of New York, at Bronx River, thence along the line of the New York and Harlem Railroad, and coincident with the said railroad to the north shore of the Harlem River, and thence across Harlem River coincident with the said New York and Harlem Railroad to the south side of Harlem River. And also commencing at a point on the northerly side of Forty-second-street, below the grade of the said street; thence under, through, and across Forty-second-street, and thence southerly under, through, and along the easterly side of Fourth Avenue or Park Avenue, and below the surface of said avenue to the south side of Thirty-fourth-street, ascending to the surface of Fourth Avenue; then by an elevated road over, through, and along Fourth Avenue southerly, to a point between Eighth-street and Ninth-street; thence through the block on the west side of Fourth Avenue, across Eighth-street and Astor-place, through Layfayette-place, through the block to Bond-street, to Crosby-street, and along Crosby-street to Grand-street; thence through the block diagonally to a point in Elm-street, near Howard-street; thence across Howard-street, along Elm to Pearl-street; thence diagonally across the block to Duane-street; thence along Duane-street to Centre-street; thence along Centre-street and Park Row to a line drawn easterly and westerly across the city at the south line of the City Hall. The magnitude of this grant will be perceived at a glance by those familiar with the city. It is through the very centre of the island, and practically runs parallel with Broadway and Fifth Avenue, through some of the richest trade districts, some of the most beautiful localities for residences, and past some of the finest churches, hotels, and public buildings in the city. It runs under ground only where the present tunnel beneath Park Avenue exists. It emerges from the ground, and springs upon stilts in the air at Thirty-fourth-street, directly in front of the Park Avenue Hotel. It runs in front of the Academy of Design, the Young Men's Christian Association building, the Astor and Mercantile Libraries, through Union-square, in the rear of the Washington Monument. At the proposed southern terminus it will have a depot directly in front of French's Hotel, and several hundred feet south of the present depôt of the Chatham-street branch of the New York Elevated Road. There are no restrictions as to continuing it through Park Row to Broadway, and even down Broadway, and as the Chatham-square branch of the New York line was abandoned because it did not run far enough south to be profitable, it is not likely that Mr. Vanderbilt, who is at the head of the enterprise, would long delay in getting an extension to Broadway, and further."

Extract from the Scientific American, July 12, 1879:—

"Rapid Transit in New York.—According to an official statement of the Manhattan Railway Company, the total number of miles of elevated railway now in operation, or in process of construction in New York, are—Of the New York Elevated Railroad Company, 16 8-10 miles of double track; of the Metropolitan Elevated Railway Company, 24 3-10 miles of double track; of joint line of the New York and Metropolitan Companies, 2 6-10 miles of double track; total, 43 7-10 miles of double track. The proposed lines in the newly-acquired wards in Westchester County, north of Harlem River, would double the total above given. The proposed line through Fourth-avenue and the streets between its southern end and City Hall meets with as little favour from the Mayor as from the public generally, the prevailing opinion being that the city cannot afford to allow Mr. Vanderbilt thus to retrieve at public cost the blunder made in refusing to build a rapid transit road through the centre of the island twelve years ago."

It will be observed that the people of New York are fully alive to the advantages of the system of elevated railroads, and that the fact of refusal to build the elevated railroad through the centre of New York 12 years ago, is now regarded by such a high authority as the Scientific American as a blunder; and further, that as the traffic on the existing lines of elevated railways has increased so rapidly, and the profits have been so great, the people are of opinion that any new lines should be erected by the Government, and that the profits should not go into the pockets of Mr. Vanderbilt.

I was on Monday last favoured with the perusal of a letter from the head of one of our Government departments, who, writing from New York to a prominent citizen, describes the elevated railroads as the very best system of railroad that could be adopted in Sydney.

I have all the necessary plans, sections, specifications, &c., and such a railroad could be constructed from Redfern to any point in Sydney in a very short space of time, and at infinitely less cost than a railroad of any other description, inasmuch as there would be no excavating nor filling. The line could be constructed across Devonshire-street, the burial grounds, and Belmore Park, and along the east (or park) side of Elizabeth-street to the Supreme Court, and could then be branched off in any direction. The park would not be interfered with, and there would be little if any compensation to be paid.

The line could be made available for both passengers and goods traffic, for the engineer of the New York Elevated Railway informed me, when in New York last year, that arrangements were then being made by the Elevated Railway Company, by which the company would receive the goods on to the train from the ship's hold, and land them direct on to the first floor of the merchants' warehouses.

The question of the extension of the railway into the city is a most important one, and has for years past agitated the public mind, and this, I trust, may be accepted as my excuse for trespassing on your space. It is not a question which (as has been said) affects only a few clerks. It affects directly a suburban population equal to the population of Sydney. It affects the artizans and shopkeepers of Sydney, who, when the labours of the day are over, would be glad to escape from the city and enjoy the free air of the country, and indirectly it affects every man and woman in the colony.

While on the subject of railways, I may perhaps be permitted to add a very few remarks relative to some letters which have appeared in your columns, purporting to be from the pen of Mr. John Lucas. I, as one of "the three P's of Cantebury," have been freely abused by Mr. Lucas and I do not complain of this, for such shafts as those of Mr. Lucas fall very harmlessly upon me; but as he has stated that "the three P's" only desire a railway into Sydney for selfish purposes, it is perhaps well for me to state, that almost the whole of the property possessed by me at South Kingston is built upon, and I have therefore no land to cut up into allotments, nor do I intend to sell one foot of my property.

I was glad that Mr. Lucas's letters appeared in the Herald, for he has only made his own position worse than before, and has shown that he never intended to perform the promises which he made to his constituents relative to the railway.

The arguments (if his statements can be so dignified) which are advanced by him, tend to show that the railway system is good, that the tramway system is better, but that the omnibus system is the best.

Many of my friends have asked me why I have not replied to the letters of Mr. Lucas. My answer is simply, that I have neither time nor inclination to reply to nonsense; that I would not condescend to notice vulgar abuse; and that, after the manner in which Mr. Lucas has acted with regard to the railway and other matters, I will meet him on the hustings, that being the proper place in which to deal with his conduct towards those who placed faith in his promises.

One remark only I would here make. Mr. Lucas has endeavoured to throw dust in the eyes of his constituents by a long array of figures, bearing on the cost of the extension of the railway, as proposed by the Government; but Mr. Lucas carefully avoids any mention of the fact that the Government not only did not ask the House to vote for any particular line, but that Mr. Lackey expressly stated that the Government simply desired the House to express its opinion as to whether the line should be brought into the city or not. Mr. Lucas spoke and voted against this, and by his vote the proposal was rejected.

Yours respectfully, W. H. PIGOTT.

MONETARY AND COMMERCIAL.

FRIDAY EVENING.

In the Stock and Share market there was very little done to-day. Bank shares steady at about late rates. City had buyers at 10½, sellers at 10⅝; Commercial, fully paid, buyers at 87, sellers at 89, new issue held for 60; buyers of Joint Stock at 13⅜, sellers at 13⅝; Mercantile had further sales at 5¼, sellers at 5⅜; New South Wales offered at 47 x. d.; New Zealand, easier, 17¼, the best offer, 17½ asked; Union had buyers at 51, sellers at 52½; National of Queensland wanted at 5⅝, held for 6. No improvement in Steam: Australasian had buyers at 14¼, sellers at 14½; Clarence and Richmond wanted at 6, held for 6⅜; Hunter River inquired for at 6¼, holders asked 6⅜; Illawarra had buyers at 5¼, and were offered for 6¼; North Shore Ferry wanted at 5s. No sales of Insurance. Accident had no inquiry, sellers at 1s. 6d; General not offered, buyers at 67s. 6d.; and Australian Fire at 6s.; City firm at 11d. buyers, 1s. sellers; Mercantile could have been placed at 1s. 6d., holders wanted 3d. more; buyers of Sydney Marine advanced their offers to 44s., none for sale under 47s.; and Pacific held for 48s.; Sydney Fire had buyers at 55s., sellers at 59s.; Sydney Marine held for 30s.; and United for 35s. Gaslight had no change for some days, 12⅜ asked for fully paid, and 5 for new issue. Sydney Exchange not offered; buyers at 7½. Shale Oil asked for at 13s., held for 13s. 6d. Buyers of Volunteer land orders at 85, sellers at 89. In coal shares business was limited to Waratah at 8, closing with buyers at 7¾, sellers at 8¼; Wallsend stronger, none offered below 15⅛; Vale of Clwyd had buyers at 11s. 9d., sellers at 13s.; Great Cobar Copper had no inquiry, 21s. would have been accepted: there was also an easier feeling in Band and Albion Consols, sellers at 62s., no buyers. Krohmann's Gold wanted at 2s., held for 3s.: Star of Peace had buyers at 4s., sellers at 5s.; Hustler's Tribute offered at 5s., and New North Clunes at 12. Debentures unaltered. New South Wales fours had sellers at 92, fives at 108¼; Queensland fours at 91; New Zealand at 84; and City of Sydney sixes at par.

The fifty-eighth report of the Bank of New South Wales was adopted at the half-yearly meeting of proprietors, held to-day, when the usual dividend and bonus, equal to 17½ per cent. per annum, was declared. The net profits for the half-year were £96,121 5s. 9d., which, with £4751 8s. 4d. from previous account, left £100,872 14s. 1d. available for distribution. Besides paying the dividend, £10,000 was added to reserve, increasing it to £480,000, and £3372 14s. 1d. carried to credit of new account. Mr. J. Milson was elected director, Messrs. J. H. Neale and J. S. Harrison elected auditors, and £1000 voted for a testimonial to Mr. Thos. Buckland for his services to the bank.

In the import markets there was not a great deal doing in trade orders, but there was a speculative inquiry for one or two articles, and prices were firm. A private telegram dated London, the 29th, reports, "D. R. J. candles worth here 7d., and currants, 2¾d., both in bond." Breadstuffs remain very firm. At auction to-day, Messrs. Harrison, Jones, and Devlin sold Northern wheat at 5s. 9d.; prime Southern, 6s.; Adelaide commands 6s. 6d., and there were transactions in flour at up to £14. There is a stronger feeling in dried fruits. 4¾d. asked for parcels of currants, 5d. for trade lots of prime; clean raisins firm at 6d. There are no sultanas in first hands, and 7d. has been paid for some to arrive. Candles firmly held, trade qualities worth up to 9d. Cornsacks are better, 8s. 6d. paid for 70 bales Calcutta, and 6s 6d. for a line of branbags. The late rise in coffee is being sustained. Ceylon sorts quoted at 13d. to 13½d.; chicory firm at 3½d. in bond. Trade sales of iron and tin plates made at full rates; sheet lead is firmer, £21 asked. A parcel of No. 8 white cross fencing-wire changed hands at £14. There was not much done in liquors. Leading brands of ale in wood and glass getting low in stock, and up to £8 paid for the former. We heard of small sales of second-class brandies in bulk moving at 8s. to 8s. 6d. Rum is a trifle better; Lowndes' held for 3s. 7d. to 3s. 8d. Queensland-made has a steady sale at 2s. 2d.; geneva, very firm. There was fresh inquiry for sardines, and holders raised the price of quarters to 4s. 3d.; white herrings out of stock; lobsters have also an improving tendency. There is a fair demand for kerosene at late rates; castor is moving at about 4s. 3d., and linseed at 3s. 8d. to 3s. 9d. Short shipments being advised by the mail has caused inquiry for blasting powder, a line of 15 tons sold on private terms, said to be an advance on recent quotations. The salt market is exceedingly strong, sales of coarse Liverpool at up to 97s. 6d., and 95s. refused for a shipment of 70 tons, to arrive shortly. Nearly all the rock on hand is held by one house, and 95s. to £5 is asked according to quantity; fine salt has not advanced proportionately to other descriptions. There was some inquiry for teas, and one or two transactions are pending. The sugar market was not quite so active, brewing crystals are becoming rather scarce. The attendance at this morning's sales at Darling Harbour was good; but the business transacted, with the exception of hay, in which a slight improvement was visible, was slack, the demand for trade lots being by no means strong. Hay, however, proved an exception, and with an improved demand a slight forward movement in prices was discernible. Truss and bundle lots showed more activity than they have done for some time, and moved readily at from 6s. 6d. to 7s. 3d., one truck going as high as 8s. The rates for bale hay also showed a slight improvement, quotations being from 6s. 3d. to 6s. 8d. New oaten and wheaten hay, which was of superior quality, moved readily at from 2s. 6d. to 3s. 8d., a notable rise since last market. Old wheaten hay realized from 5s. 3d. to 5s. 7d. Only one lot of lucerne was offered, and that brought 5s. 6d., a fall of several shillings per ton since last week. Chaff was worth from 5s. to 6s. A large quantity of potatoes was offered, and the demand not being equal to absorb the supply at late rates, a considerable fall took place, prime lots realizing only up to 7s., whilst medium were dull of sale at from 4s. 9d. to 6s. 6d. Straw was quiet, and though at the opening of the market prime parcels fetched up to 2s. 8d., towards the close of the sales they had fallen to 2s. 2d., while inferior were difficult to place at from 1s. 4d. The maize market was unchanged.

Sales of hides, tallow, &c., were held to-day by Mr. Bridge, Messrs. Mort and Co., Mr. Barker, Messrs. Maiden, Hill, and Clark, and Messrs. Harrison, Jones, and Devlin. The supply of hides was hardly equal to the demand, and competition for all good parcels, especially well cured heavies, caused prices to advance up to 3½d. The calfskins offered were mostly inferior and sold at 5d. to 1s. 8d: yearlings brought 1s. 6d. to 1s. 7d. A large number of kangaroo skins changed hands, at from 3d. to 2s; goatskins, at 3d.; pig, 1s.; horse hides, 1s. 8d. to 3s. 3d. Late cablegrams, from London, caused strong inquiry for shipping lots of tallow, and prices were fully 50s. per ton better than last week. Trade lines were also dearer, but not to the same extent. Black oil realized 2s. 8d. to 2s. 9d.

The eleventh annual meeting of St. Joseph's Investment and Building Society was held yesterday. The gross receipts for the year amounted to £94,768 3s. 5d., and the net profits to £11,881 11s. 8d. A dividend of 8 per cent. per annum declared on all paid-up shares will take £10,007 16s. 10d., leaving £1876 14s. 10d. to be added to reserve fund, which will then stand at £6001 3s. 7d. During the year £1,674 0s. 1d. was lent on mortgage, 90 properties purchased, and 91 houses built by members through the instrumentality of the society.

Messrs. W. S. Fell and Co have called another meeting of their creditors for Tuesday next.

The William Mudgett, from Puget Sound, arrived to-day with 600,000 feet of lumber.

The Customs' duties received to-day were as follows: Spirits, £1427 14s. 6d.; wine, still, £56 18s. 6d.; ale, porter, and beer (in bottle), £11 10s. 3d.; tobacco and snuff, £15 8s.; tobacco (unmanufactured), £626 14s.; cigars, £152 18s. 2d.; tea, £84 10s.; coffee and chicory, £50 18s. 3d.; sugar (refined) £9 18s. 4d.; sugar (unrefined), £981 18s. 8d.; opium, £96 10s.; rice, £30; dried fruits, £114 12s.; specific duty, £133 3s. 8s.; bonded warehouse duty, £75; rent of goods in Queen's warehouse, 9s. 9d.; pilotage, £54 12s. 8d.; harbour and light dues, £11 6s. 7d.; total, £3937 3s. 5d.

MINING.

STAR OF PEACE G. M. CO.—Mining manager reports on October 29, as follows:—"780-feet level: We are now stoping south from this level, 95 feet south of the shaft, for 25 feet up. Since the last good crushing the vein pinched up to two or three inches thick, but is now getting thicker again, and the usual mineral we have with good stone is again coming into the quartz. The country we have been working through last week appears to have been very much disturbed by breaks, but I do not think it will be this way long, as the vein increases in size, and the gold improves. During the month we have crushed two lots from this level. One lot of 75 tons yielded 209 oz. 5 dwts. 5 grs., and the other lot of 45 tons, when the vein got pinched, yielded 30 oz. 15 dwts. 6 grs., making (inclusive of 400 oz. of specimens sent to Sydney, which yielded 28 ounces), 268 oz. 0 dwt. 11 grs. retorted gold for the month's work."

At the Auckland Police Court, on the 30th September, Elizabeth Heavy was arrested on a charge of assaulting her father, by striking him with her shoe on the arm; also with throwing a sugar basin at him, and threatening to expel him summarily headforemost from the house. The woman, when arrested, had a large number of watches, jewellery, &c., in her possession. The father carries on a sort of pawnbroker's business, and it was apparent that the daughter meant to make herself right. There was no charge of theft against her.

The Sydney Morning Herald.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1879.

In the Legislative Assembly, yesterday,

MINISTERS answered questions put by Mr. Jacob, Mr. M'Culloch, and Mr. Coonan in reference to complaints made by Mr. M'Pherson against the police at Raymond Terrace; the inconvenience to which persons are attending Divine service put by the traffic of the tramcars during church hours: the distribution of the funds of the Church and Schools Estate.

Mr. SPEAKER announced the receipt of a reply from His Excellency Lord Augustus Loftus to the congratulatory address from the House on his appointment to the Governorship of the colony. He also reported the receipt, from his Excellency, of a commission empowering the Chairman of Committees to administer the oath of allegiance to hon. members in the absence of the Speaker.

Ministers laid on the table returns respecting a licensing case at Raymond Terrace; copy of a circular relating to the private affairs of the police force; and of correspondence on the proposed abandonment of the Southampton Mail Service. It was ordered that the documents be printed.

Mr. WISDOM explained that in his reply to Mr. Hurley on the previous day, it was incorrectly stated that the Act 10 Geo. IV. No. 9, had been repealed. It was however true that the Act did not extend to the colony.

Mr. E. BARTON took the oath and his seat as member for the Sydney University.

Mr. COHEN moved that the matter of the acceptance by Mr. Garrett of a seat on the City of Sydney Improvement Board be referred to the Election and Qualifications Committee, to inquire and determine whether the hon. member had thereby accepted an office of profit from the Crown within the meaning of the Constitution Act, whereby he was disqualified from holding a seat in the House. He contended that the appointment in question was within the gift of the Crown, from whom it had been accepted by Mr. Garrett, and that it was beyond doubt an office of profit, as provision was made for the payment of fees to the members of the Board. It was immaterial whether the fees were to be paid out of the Consolidated Revenue or by the citizens: the office was one of profit, and the holder derived it from the Crown. This was, therefore, a proper case to be referred to the Elections and Qualifications Committee for its decision.

Mr. GARRETT maintained that this was not a case for the Elections Committee, and that the question which had been raised was one which affected his constituents, and many other hon. members as well as himself. The object of the section of the Constitution Act on which the hon. member relied was to prevent members of the House being servants of the Crown, which he could not be said to be, as he was not responsible to the Government for the manner in which he performed his duties, and, he was not dependent on them for his remuneration. If the objection was worth anything, it would apply with equal force to members of the House who were commissioners for affidavits, or who were members of the Boards for the admission of attorneys, all of whom were paid by fees. It would also apply to aldermen who were under some circumstances appointed by the Government, and some of whom might after this appointment be chosen to act as mayors, and be paid salaries, or to clergymen whose licenses could be withdrawn. The rights of his constituents were jeopardized by this resolution, and it was remarkable that the hon. gentleman had not included the name of Mr. Sutherland in his motion, whose seat was equally liable to be invalidated, inasmuch as he had accepted a similar position.

Mr. FITZPATRICK was unwilling to interfere in this matter, but he could not forget that when a doubt was raised in his own case by Mr. Garrett the House referred the question to the committee.

Mr. GREENWOOD thought it was clear that the hon. member for Camden had accepted an office of profit from the Crown in violation of the spirit of the Constitution Act, and that it was equally evident from the terms of the Acts Shortening Act that the authority which conferred the appointment had also the power of removal, which made this appointment to all intents and purposes an office of profit. He supported the reference to the committee.

Dr. BOWKER believed a clear case had been made out, and that it was no answer to say that others were in the same position. A corrupt Government would make appointments of this kind for corrupt purposes, if the practice were not checked.

Mr. DILLON did not deny that the power of appointment to an office of profit could be used corruptly, but that was not the present question. The question was whether the appointment was contrary to the Constitution Act, and he was strongly of opinion that it was not, as in order to meet the provisions of the Act both the office and the profit should come from the Crown. The appointment might be contrary to the resolution of the House of the year 1875 respecting temporary appointments, but that was not the point submitted in the resolution.

Mr. BUCHANAN supported the motion, and entirely dissented from the opinions expressed by Mr. Dillon. The intention of the Constitution Act was to prevent Governments from giving offices of profit to members of Parliament, and there was no escape from the fact in this instance that the Government had given an office of profit to Mr. Garrett.

Mr. COHEN replied, and in doing so stated his reason for not including Mr. Sutherland's name in his resolution was because it appeared from the answer of the Colonial Secretary to a question which he put to him that that gentleman was not a member of the Board.

The motion was negatived on division by 24 to 15.

Mr. M'ELHONE moved the adjournment of the House for the purpose of directing attention to the loss of two newly erected low-level bridges at Jerry's Plains and Aberdeen during the recent floods. He attributed the destruction of the bridges to rascality of the grossest description on the part of the builder, who, he said, should be prosecuted for obtaining money under false pretences. He also stated that bridges of similar design had been erected in other parts of the Hunter and the Hawkesbury which had withstood the floods for years, and he censured Mr. Whiteside and Mr. Stilwell, officers of the Public Works Department, for their inefficient supervision of the Jerry's Plains and Aberdeen bridges. The hon. member was about to discuss the matter of interference with the conditional selection of a Mr. Frederick, when the Minister for Works interjected that the case had been settled, and the subject was dropped by him.

Dr. BOWKER took advantage of the motion to remark upon the uncertainty which prevailed as to the enforcement of the sentences passed in the Law Courts, and to urge greater activity on the part of the Government in proceeding with the Water Works in the Northern districts.

Mr. O'CONNOR complained of the evasion of the regulation against the sale of small articles at the International Exhibition, to the injury of the shopkeepers of the city.

Mr. LACKEY admitted that the conduct of the contractor for the Jerry's Plains and Aberdeen Bridges was most culpable; and said that measures would be taken with the view of cal'ing him to account; but he denied that the Government were open to the imputation of delay in initiating steps for the erection of the waterworks in the Northern districts.

The motion for the adjournment was put and negatived.

The adjourned debate on the resolutions moved by Mr. BUCHANAN, respecting the Church and School lands, was resumed.

Mr. GARRETT, after explaining why he thought the subject could be discussed without evoking any sectional feeling, stated that the Church and School Lands Estate comprised about 400,000 acres, that it was administered under an arrangement made many years ago, with the authority of the Executive Council of this colony, and the approval of the Imperial Government, and the terms of the arrangement were that the revenue was to be appropriated in the proportion of two-sevenths for the advancement of education, and five-sevenths amongst four denominations. The accumulated funds now amounted to about £200,000, and it was one of the anomalies of the state of matters in connection with the estate that the funds were beyond the control of the House, and of the Executive Government, which ought no longer to be allowed. The amount set apart for education was not equitably divided, having regard to the great preponderence in number of Public schools as compared with Denominational schools; but there was no necessity for any special provision of this nature, as Parliament had now made grants for the promotion of education far in excess of any amount which could have been contemplated by any one when the Church and School estate was created. The distribution for religious purposes was monstrously unfair, and opposed to the public policy of the country, which, by adopting the Act for prohibiting further grants in aid of public worship, deliberately put an end to State-aid to religion. In illustration of the departure from this policy which had grown up under the administration of the Church and School Estate, the hon. member quoted from a return to prove that some of the funds devoted to religious purposes had been expended in part by one denomination in the erection of chapels and the like purposes. He was of opinion that there was no necessity for keeping the funds derivable from the Church and School Estate apart any longer, and that the whole matter should be legislated for, pending which the whole of the funds should be impounded by the Crown. He moved an amendment to this effect, which he said was in accordance with the opinion given by Sir Roundell Palmer. All personal interests should be protected, but there could be no corporation rights in the matter.

Mr. STUART traversed the arguments used by Mr. Buchanan in support of the resolution, and also the speech of Mr. Garrett in support of the amendment. He was not opposed to inquiry, and such legislation as might in the end be considered to be necessary; but the House should remember that it had been decided by the Supreme Court that a trust existed, and it would therefore be an act of spoliation to agree to the amendment. The rights of the corporate bodies, as well as of the individuals interested under the trust, should be respected.

Mr. GREENWOOD supported the amendment, and quoted the opinion of the Duke of Newcastle when Secretary of State for the Colonies, in a despatch to the Governor of the day, in which he stated there would be no necessity for any measure passed by the local Legislature in relation to the Church and School Estate being reserved for the consideration of the Imperial Government, as the question was one of purely local concern.

On the motion of Sir HENRY PARKES the debate was adjourned for a week to afford the Government time to see exactly the state of the Church and School Land Funds.

The Matrimonial Causes Act Amendment Bill was read a third time.

The House adjourned at 9.44 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Tuesday next.

The Assembly did not do wrong in remitting to a select committee the consideration of the question of the city extension of the railway. The responsibility of the Government will be sufficiently preserved by its having to present a policy to the House after the committee has finished its inquiries. It is often considered that to send a bill to a select committee is simply to shelve it for the session, but this is a reproach to the action of committees, which are thus presumed to be dilatory. Custom apart, however, there is no reason why committees should be slow. If properly managed, they can be methodical, thorough, and prompt. The great object of such committees is to elicit evidence, so as to enable the House to arrive at a conclusion in the light of all facts. In a trial at a Court of law every one knows the importance of the part played by witnesses when under examination and cross-examination. The speeches of counsel and the summing up of Judges would not furnish an exhaustive presentation of the case, apart from the evidence laid by witnesses. In the work of legislation select committees are adapted to do the work which examination does in forensic litigation. They get out the facts, and they also get them as seen from different points of view. Of late years, and seeing the difficulty there is in getting measures passed, there has been too much disposition to disregard the rights of the case and simply to adapt bills to the character of the House—to consider what clauses the existing batch of hon. members would be likely to pass, rather than what measures would be best for the country. Yet the only way to give the country real and permanent satisfaction is to furnish proof that every measure is as nearly as may be adapted to the wants and circumstances of the country, and the only way to do that is to show that the circumstances have been fairly studied. Ministers may, in the preparation of a measure, have fully availed themselves of their opportunities, and learnt all there is to know of the matter in hand; but there is no proof that they have done so, and the information they have gathered is very often not communicated. With regard to the particular measure now under consideration, namely, the city extension of the railway, various schemes have been propounded. The supporters of each scheme may very possibly underrate its difficulties and its expense, and they may also underrate the merits of rival schemes. The best thing to be done is to let every scheme be fully expounded by its supporters, and then thoroughly analyzed by those who object to it. The best and the worst for each project can thus be laid side by side. In this way many proposals may be got rid of altogether, and many objections may be also got rid of. Those who are interested in the question, and those who have to guide the result, will have the whole case fully before them, and will be able to come to a much more intelligent conclusion than has hitherto been possible.

On Thursday Mr. COHEN asked the COLONIAL SECRETARY "the names of the members of Parliament (if any) who have been appointed by the present Government to, and now hold seats on, the City of Sydney Improvement Board?" Sir HENRY PARKES answered: "Amongst the gentlemen appointed as members of the City of Sydney Improvement Board there is a member of this House—the hon. member for Camden, Mr. THOMAS GARRETT." Not many months ago, two members of the Legislative Council were appointed Commissioners of Customs, and attention was called to the resolution of the House, passed in 1875, which affirmed that the Government should not employ any member of either House in any office or temporary employment to which "remuneration was attached." The COLONIAL SECRETARY, on that occasion, admitted that he had told the TREASURER that the appointments must be reconsidered. The result was that the two members of the Council resigned their seats on the Customs Board. After that, however, the Government appointed Messrs. SUTHERLAND and GARRETT as members of the City of Sydney Improvement Board—an office to which, like that of a Commissioner of Customs, remuneration is attached. As Parliament was not sitting at the time, we directed notice to the circumstance, in the interest of consistency. Since then Mr. SUTHERLAND has resigned. Yet now, when Mr. COHEN inquires into the matter, the COLONIAL SECRETARY contents himself with a dry answer as to the fact, and ignores all that hangs upon it. Clearly, according to his own admission, the appointment of Mr. GARRETT ought to be reconsidered. The resolution ought to be enforced against the Assembly as well as against the Council. The appointment of Messrs. CAMPBELL and THORNTON as Customs Commissioners ought to have been defended and upheld, or that of Mr. GARRETT should have been cancelled. The Government is strong in its position, but even a strong Government ought not to defy resolutions of the House capriciously.

This view of the case is, of course, distinct from that taken by Mr. COHEN, who last night raised the question whether Mr. GARRETT's seat had not been rendered vacant by the acceptance of an office of profit under the Crown, and proposed that the matter should be referred to the Committee of Elections and Qualifications. The House rejected the motion, but made a grave mistake in doing so. Under the Electoral Act, a special tribunal is established for the purpose of inquiring into and deciding questions affecting the qualification or disqualification of members of the Assembly; and the legitimate inference is that in the opinion of the Legislature, such questions are more likely to be treated judicially and impartially by that tribunal than by the House. In refusing to refer the question to the committee the House has practically adjudicated upon it, and has thus acted against the spirit of the law passed for its guidance.

Moreover, a strong prima facie case was made out against Mr. GARRETT. It cannot be denied that he has accepted from the Government an office under the Crown, or that the office is one of profit. Nothing could be more comprehensive than the wording of the Constitution Act, which disqualifies members who accept offices of profit under the Crown, without any limitation as to the way in which the profit may be received. And in order to ascertain whether those words are to have their natural and full effect and meaning, or be emasculated, it is only necessary to go, as Mr. GARRETT says, to the root of the matter. The object of the provisions is to prevent the Crown, or rather the Government, buying the support of members of the House by the exercise of patronage. The material point is the profit attaching to an office, not the immediate source from which it comes. Suppose a member could make a thousand a year by the fees of an office, it would be just as much worth his while to sell his votes to the Government to get that office if the fees came from the public as if he were paid directly by salary from the revenue. Let the law be held inoperative when the payment comes in fees, and what is to prevent a corrupt Government and a corrupt majority creating a host of offices of profit which shall all be paid by fees, in order to defeat the clear intention of the law and pack the House with placemen?

It is beside the question to say that the Government has no power to interfere with the action of a member in the discharge of his official duties outside the House. The question is, whether the relations of a member of the House to the Government, and his action in the House, may be affected by his obtaining from the Government the means of making an income, and being more or less dependent upon the Government for his retention of it. It is not necessary to suppose that the Ministry who appointed him would remove him. A succeeding Ministry might do so on some Black Wednesday; and it is conceivable that in some cases a member so situated might speak and vote to keep his friends in office simply in order to secure himself. We are arguing this matter as one of principle, and not with any respect to persons. The principle would apply as clearly to Mr. SUTHERLAND for accepting the office as to Mr. GARRETT, or anybody else.

The greater part of the argument against Mr. COHEN'S motion was simply an attempt to show how very inconvenient it would be to give the law its full and natural meaning. No one will deny that there are difficulties in the way when the matter is presented in that light. But we have here a striking illustration of the inexpediency of allowing Legislative bodies to interpret the law as well as make it. The House undertook, in effect, to say what the law meant, and founded its decision upon the fact that it would be inconvenient to give the law its legitimate and natural meaning. The true function of the Legislature, when a law is likely to produce inconvenient results, is to amend or repeal it, not to leave it on the Statute Book and twist it out of shape and symmetry. It was no answer to Mr. COHEN to say that other members hold positions corresponding with Mr. GARRETT'S. If they do, so much the worse. A law is not abrogated by the circumstance that more than one person has broken it. Perhaps if the attention of the House had been called to those other cases in the same manner, the question would have been inquired into and settled. One thing we know: Mr. COMBES' case was not shunted out of the way, although the profit attaching to his office arose neither from salary nor fees, but came under the head of travelling expenses. The House had no scruples about sending that case to the committee; and the committee interpreted the law broadly in deciding it.

In New Zealand there has recently been a Royal Commission to investigate educational matters, and one of its results has been the drafting of a bill to reorganise the arrangements for the higher education; and some of the provisions of this bill are of interest to those who are connected with the Colleges and the University education of this colony. In accordance with the recent policy of New Zealand, which has been to abolish provincial action, it is proposed to repeal the local University ordinances, and to establish one general University for the colony, with affiliated colleges in the several provinces. In the Senate of this new University, six of the fellows are to be nominated by the Government, and each affiliated college is to elect three. The Government, therefore, will have a direct representation in the Senate, but not a controlling one. The tenure of office is only to be for three years, though a retiring member can be re-elected. This term seems a short one, but it will have the effect of keeping the constitution of the Senate more continually before the academical body; and a limited tenure of a seat has some advantage over our plan, which practically gives the seats for life.

The Senate so constituted has full power to govern the University in all respects, the Government retaining no right of interference, except so far as this, that the Minister of Education for the time being is to be a visitor of the University, and of all the affiliated colleges, and is to have full power and authority to do all those things which pertain to visitors as often as to him shall seem meet. There is nothing in the Act, however, to define what those things are which pertain to visitors, and it is within the bounds of possibility that different Ministers may construe their rights differently.

With respect to public examinations, there is an important and useful proviso that the Senate may not only grant the usual degrees, but may hold examinations of persons who have prosecuted the study of special branches of knowledge, and may give certificates of proficiency. The old-fashioned examinations for degrees which still retain their value are felt not to do all for students that a University is called upon to do in these days when study is so much subdivided. The primary examinations have been a recent innovation, but they apply principally to young persons, and only to elementary studies. It has often been contended that the same principle should be made applicable to studies of a higher grade. It has been asked why the University should not attract to its classes and examinations, students who devote themselves merely to one or two special branches, and who want the mint-mark of the University as the guarantee of their proficiency. There are many students who cannot spare time for the whole curriculum, and who are hindered in various ways from going up for a degree. Yet they are real students up to a certain point, and in certain subjects, and it would be a great benefit to them if opportunities were offered to submit themselves to a through examination, and get a certificate, which should be the guarantee that their studies had reached a certain point.

The colleges in New Zealand are handsomely endowed with land, but pending the full development of the value of this land, the Government is to make a money grant sufficient to keep the establishments going. Ultimately there seems every probability that they will all be able to live upon their rents. All the colleges, however, as well as the general University, are bound to make an annual report to the Minister of Education, and these reports are to be laid before Parliament, so that the public may be kept well advised as to the work they are doing.

We presume that some inquiry will be made by the Company or Marine authorities here, as well as at Melbourne, with reference to the narrow escape there was of a collision between the Ly-ee-Moon and the Barrabool. Happily, there is no need for a coroner's inquest, but there is none the less need for an investigation. The Barrabool has had a large share of collisions, and dangers of them, but, as we understand that on no two occasions has the same captain been in command, we cannot attribute those casualties to any perverse reading of the rule of the road. That rule, however, is plain enough in ordinary circumstances; and in fair weather and on the open sea there ought to be no blundering. There is, however, in some men's minds, a notion that it is always safer to show the red light. But it is not safer when the green light is first sighted; yet the attempt to substitute the red for the green has led to many accidents. In the present case, the evidence as at present disclosed is very conflicting, yet there must have been an error of judgment on one side or the other. Our coasters are now so incessantly passing and repassing each other that no pains ought to be spared to make the rules so absolutely plain in every possible case that a collision should be impossible, except in a fog that obscured the lights altogether; and the cause of the recent confusion ought to be probed to the bottom, so that the lesson of it may be laid to heart.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE political situation in Canada has not materially improved, although, since the conflict commenced between the two Houses of Legislature early in September, both Chambers have had a short respite from their labours. Difficulties arose between them, and the Council refused supplies, thus stopping the payment of salaries or school or charitable grants. Efforts made to bring about a peaceable solution of the difficulty failed. The Council refused overtures for a conference between it and the Assembly, and on the 2nd September Mr. Joly, the Premier, after a bitter debate in the Lower House, said that that House had passed all necessary measures, and he moved its adjournment until October 28. This was agreed to on a division of 25 to 23. The Council thereupon passed a resolution, regretting the course which the Assembly had taken, but subsequently adjourned also. The Parliament has again met, and there has been a change of Ministry, but the position of affairs remains much about the same, although a hope is entertained that the way will soon be paved for a reconciliation between the two Chambers, and the formation of a Ministry that will obtain the confidence of both Houses. By another of our cable messages of this morning, we learn that the Turco-Greek frontier commission is making but slow progress towards the rectification of the frontier. Regarding Afghanistan, we learn that General Roberts has issued a proclamation, stating that the abdication of Yakoob Khan, and the outrage on the British Residency, have compelled a British occupation of Cabul and other parts of Afghanistan until arrangements are completed for the future government of the country.

THE first business of any importance taken in the Legislative Assembly, yesterday, was the consideration of Mr. Cohen's motion to refer to the Committee of Elections and Qualifications the question whether Mr. Garrett's seat was vacant by reason of his having accepted an office of profit under the Crown, in his appointment to a seat on the City of Sydney Improvement Board. After some discussion the motion was negatived by 24 to 15.

THE adjourned debate on Mr. Buchanan's motion, "That, in the opinion of this House, no moneys derivable in any way from the Church and School Lands shall be paid to any religious sect whatever," was resumed in the Legislative Assembly yesterday by Mr. Garrett, who moved as amendment,—"That a bill to declare the lands known as the Church and School Estates to be Crown lands, and to deal with the funds derived from those lands, should be brought in by the Government as soon as practicable; and that pending the settlement of this question, the funds in hand, and the proceeds thereof, and the said lands should be impounded by the Crown." The discussion was continued by Mr. Stuart and Mr. Greenwood, and the debate was adjourned on the motion of Sir Henry Parkes for a week.

FRIDAY is generally considered an "off" day at the Garden Palace, but the attendance contrasted very favourably with that of Thursday, nearly 5000 persons having passed the gates. The exhibits arrived by the Cuzco are being delivered, and will very shortly be unpacked, so that we may now fairly consider that the Exhibition will shortly be completed. At the meeting of the Commissioners yesterday, the Executive Commissioner held out hopes that the art gallery would be ready for opening on the 10th instant, in great part, if not in its entirety. Several other matters of importance were dealt with at the meeting, as will be seen by our report, and among them we may mention that the opening of the show of live stock has been fixed for the 9th December, on which day the judging will take place.

MESSRS. BRIGHT, BROTHERS, and Co. have received information of the arrival at Singapore on the 30th instant of the R.M.S. Normanby, which left Sydney on the 7th of October.

THE hiring of the emigrants by the Strathleven proceeded very briskly yesterday, between 40 and 50 girls having entered into engagements. There yet remain about 30 to be secured, among whom are two good nursery governesses and some practised cooks and housemaids, but it is probable that of these very few will be in the depot to-day. The wages paid vary from 8s. to 10s. per week. All the servants seem to please by their appearance and general intelligence.

THE monthly meeting of the Literature and Fine Arts section of the Royal Society was held last night in the Academy of Art, Elizabeth-street. There was a fair attendance, and Mr. E. L. Montefiore occupied the chair. After the confirmation of the minutes of the previous meeting, Mr. J. Trevor Jones read a paper entitled, "The Expressions of the Emotions of the Human Face." After describing the principal bones of the skull, Mr. Jones proceeded to describe the various functions of the muscles, and the effects they produce when acted upon by the passions. The first expression analysed was mirth, from the smile to broad laughter. The emotions of rage, contempt, fear, perplexity, and shrewdness were then enlarged upon, and illustrated by impromptu sketches; and lastly the effect of intoxication produced on the various features. The lecture was decidedly interesting, and most attentively listened to throughout. At the close Mr. Jones was awarded a hearty vote of thanks. The chairman then intimated that the next meeting would be the last of the current session, and that Mr. John Plummer promised to read on that occasion a paper entitled "Some Principles of Ornamental Designs, illustrated by an Ivy Leaf."

THE sittings of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of New South Wales were continued yesterday. The chief business had relation to the appointment of an agent to organize a sustentation fund—a subject which had been debated on the previous evening, and eventually it was decided that the overture of Mr. Goodlet with regard to the appointment of Mr. Ross should be adopted, and a committee was appointed to make the necessary arrangements. A fuller report of yesterday's proceedings will be published in a future issue.

WE have been informed by Mr. Flynn, president of the Cabmen's Union, that his interview with the Transit Commissioners, on Wednesday last, took place at the invitation of Mr. Smart, and that he explained to the Commissioners that he was there not as the representative of the union, but simply because he was invited and was willing to hear anything the Commissioners might choose to communicate, with the view of terminating the strike. The proposal about the satchels was made by Mr. Smart. He (Mr. Flynn) then asked whether, if the cabmen adopted the proposition, he might be in the position to say that the Commissioners would consider that the law was complied with. The Commissioners replied in the affirmative, and Mr. Flynn then said he would submit this suggestion to the union. With what reception it met, our readers know. The Commissioners have replied to the letter from the union asking them to receive a deputation in reference to the strike, and the answer, which was sent to the secretary of the union, is as follows:—"In acknowledging the receipt of your letter of to-day's date, I am directed by the Metropolitan Transit Commissioners to intimate to you that they will be glad to receive the deputation named therein at 2.30 p.m. on Wednesday next, November 5. (Signed) J. W. MERRIMAN." The fixing of this interview for so late a date as Wednesday is to be regretted, since every day is now of importance, and we would suggest that, as the Commissioners might easily settle the matter on Monday, the cabmen should ask them to fix that date for the interview. At present the cabmen complain that the Commissioners seem to be in no hurry to terminate the strike. The cases brought against Messrs. Flynn, Downey, and others yesterday, for not having, during the space of 48 hours, taken out their cabs, were postponed for a week. On Tuesday several of the men will be proceeded against at the Central Police Court for insulting or assaulting, at the commencement of the strike, those cabmen who remained on duty. We are glad to record that of late none of the drivers who continue to ply for hire have been interfered with.

WE regret to state that Mr. T. K. Bowden, a member of the well-known legal firm of Allen, Bowden, and Allen, Sydney, died at Parramatta at 4 o'clock yesterday morning. Mr. Bowden's funeral will take place to-day.

THE sentence of death passed on Jeremiah Cannon, convicted of rape, at the Dubbo Court of Assize, held on the 3rd October, has been commuted to 10 years' hard labour in gaol, the first two years in irons.

THE annual picnic in connection with the Crown-street Primitive Methodist Sabbath-school took place on Thursday, at Chowder; and through the praiseworthy efforts of Mr. J. J. Cockroft, superintendent, and his colleagues, it was a great success. The steamer Quandong ran three trips, conveying the teachers and scholars, and large numbers of their relatives and friends. Many of the elder scholars spontaneously expressed their admiration of the enchanting harbour scenery, and seemed proud to know that it is unrivalled. The children thoroughly enjoyed the good things provided for them, and heartily engaged in a variety of innocent sports. The pleasure of the day was greatly enhanced by the free and easy method adopted by the Revs. C. Waters, J. Ashmead, J. Penman, J. Blanksby, O. Stoel, C. Willis, and B. Kenny, to make every one feel homely.

THE No. 1 Grand Division Sons of Temperance held its fourteenth annual session in the Temperance Hall on Monday evening last, about 100 representatives being present, the G.W.P., Brother D. M'Beath, J.P., presiding. After the usual business had been dealt with, the ballot for election of officers was taken for the ensuing year. Brothers G. Brown, E. J. Salier, and W. Pierce being appointed scrutineers, resulting in the following brothers being declared duly elected for the respective offices, viz.:—For G.W.P., Brother G. F. Mason; G.W.A., Brother F. B. Naughton; G. Scribe, C. T. Peirce, re-elected unopposed; G. Treasurer, D. Smart, re-elected unopposed; G. Chaplain, D. Johnson; G. Conductor, J. Arnold; G. Sentinel, Henry Billinghurst. Immediately after the election of officers the members, on the invitation of Brother D. M'Beath, adjourned to the new hall, where tea had been provided. After tea Brother John Roseby, M.L.A., addressed the G.W.P., Brother D. M'Beath. He stated he was present at the request of a number of the No. 1 Grand Division, who wished to recognize the services rendered during the past two years by Brother M'Beath, now that he was retiring from office. Brother C. T. Peirce, then read an address which had been prepared for presentation to Brother M'Beath, in acknowledgment of the services he had rendered to the order as its Grand Worthy Patriarch. The address was accompanied by an electro tea service which was suitably inscribed. Brother M'Beath thanked the members for the very handsome manner in which they had been pleased to recognize his very humble services. Several other members addressed the meeting prior to closing. After having spent a very pleasant evening, the Grand Division adjourned till Monday evening next.

THE ceremony of inaugurating No. 168 Loyal Orange Lodge was performed in the School of Arts, Burwood, on Tuesday evening last, by the R.W.G.M. Mr. H. Hicks, in the presence of upwards of 150 brethren representing seventeen lodges. At the conclusion of the dedicating and opening of the lodge, the R.W.G.M. delivered an address, in the course of which he observed that never did the Orange Institution occupy so commanding a position of influence and power as it did to-day. For this it was largely indebted to the Pastorals, which had influenced thousands to join, and had been the means of the formation of eleven lodges during the past two months. He admonished the brethren to consider that, although the principles of Protestantism were prohibitive of persecution, they do not go so far as to patronise a creed that would suppress them, nor could they be held concurrently with assistance given towards the propagation and endowment of that creed. The chaplain, the Rev. Mr. Graham; the D.G.M., Mr. W. Henson; the G.F.C., Mr. J. B. Mather; the G.S., Mr. A. Gilchrist; Alderman Withers, J.P., and others also briefly addressed the lodge.

THE dendrobiums are a magnificent genus of orchids, producing in some of the species flowers which are very large and delightfully fragrant; indeed, there are not many orchids that surpass the dendrobiums, for their beautiful flowers are of nearly every shade of colour, and some of them blossom freely. Among these we may mention Dendrobium thrysiflorum, which is a fine showy species, producing splendid clusters of golden and white flowers. Those who desire to see this variety in flower can do so by calling at Messrs. J. Graham and Co.'s stall in the George-street Markets, where there is now a very fine specimen.

WE have received from the Government of South Australia a voluminous report by Mr. Todd, Government observer of that colony, containing the meteorological observations made in Adelaide during the year 1878.

THE first of a series of lectures in connection with the North Shore Congregational Library and Debating Society was delivered last night in the Congregational Schoolroom, Milson's Point, by the Rev. J. F. Cullen; his subject, "Education." The lecturer gave a view of the progress of education in England since 1830, showing how by degrees the Denominational is receding before the National; and the like with regard to education in this colony, and a very clear statement of the discussions which have arisen on the subject, provoked by the Pastoral of the Archbishop and Bishops of the Roman Catholic Church. At the close, a unanimous vote of thanks was accorded to Mr. Cullen for his able and interesting lecture, and to Mr. J. L. Perry for his kindness in occupying the chair.

A MAN named Edward Fogarty, aged 60, was taken to the Infirmary, and admitted on Thursday night, suffering from a fracture of the outer bone of his right foot, caused by treading on a piece of orange peel and falling into the gutter in George-street, while in a state of intoxication. Among the cases treated at the Infirmary, yesterday, were the following:—An old man named Mark Matthews, aged 69, residing in Samuel-street, was brought with a lacerated wound of the right leg, caused by being bitten by a large Newfoundland dog. It seems that he was walking down Foster-street, when he unintentionally trod on the tail of the dog, which was lying in the middle of the street, and it turned and bit him on the leg, inflicting a wound four inches in length and almost to the bone, and causing profuse hemorrhage.

THE City Coroner held an inquest yesterday morning at the Gardeners' Arms Hotel, Lane Cove, on the body of the child Eliza Lofberg, aged 1 year and 9 months, who was found drowned in a waterhole in the bush, a short distance from her parents' house. The evidence adduced pointed to the occurrence being purely accidental, and the verdict of the jury was "Accidentally drowned."

AT the meeting of the Trades and Labour Council, on Thursday evening, the following societies were represented:—Boilermakers, carpenters, joiners, stonemasons, bricklayers, blacksmiths, coachmakers, quarrymen, carriers, coopers, shipwrights, the Seamen's Union, and the Newcastle Labour League.

THE members of the Alexandria Literary Institute held their usual weekly meeting in St. Mark's schoolroom, Darling Point, on Monday last, the 27th instant, Mr. W. Stephen in the chair. Business for the evening was debate, "From which do we derive the greater information, reading or observation?" being opened in favour of reading by Mr. C. Maclean. An interesting and animated discussion followed, the question being ultimately carried in favour of observation by a majority of one.

AT evensong, at St. Andrew's Cathedral, on 21st Sunday after Trinity, November 2, the following music will be performed:—Magnificat, Novello in E; Nunc Dimittis, ditto; anthem, The Wilderness, by Dr. Goss.

The weather is very fine, with warm days and cool nights.

COOTAMUNDRA.

FRIDAY.

Numbers of diggers are daily arriving, en route for the Scrubyards. There has been nothing more found than was reported last week. Of the several shafts bottomed some were found duffers, and others showed gold. No nuggets have been found, and what little gold is obtained is fine. A puddling-machine is badly wanted to test the washdirt in quantity, so that more than the speculative average could be known. There has been nothing yet to warrant a large rush, although there are quite enough on the ground to test the payableness. Several diggers have arrived per train to-day, en route for the new rush, Merool Creek, this being the nearest station. No authentic information is yet to hand as to the prospects obtained.

They also urged upon the Government to allow Melbourne-owned vessels in the foreign trade, whose masters hold an exempt certificate, to be piloted by the masters when not absent from the port more than six months. The deputation further asked permission for the masters of all ships to sign articles on board, but in the presence of the Shipping Master. At a dinner given to Mr. Longmore, at Ballarat, to-night, Major Smith was present and said that the time for dissolution was close at hand. He spoke of the members sitting on the Ministerial side of the House and not voting blindly with the Government as most despicable persons. As for the cry of retrenchment he did not think those who called out so loudly were sincere. He contended that taxation per head through the Custom House was less in Victoria than in any other colony excepting one. Mr. Longmore set himself up as the real friend of the farmers, and asked the meeting to look upon all other friends with suspicion. He said that fresh taxation had been rendered necessary by his allowing selectors to get into arrears with their rents.

The weather is beautifully fine.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE THEATRES.

The programmes that have been running during the week were repeated at the various theatres last night. At the Theatre Royal to-night "Struck Oil" and the "Chinese Question" will be produced again; and at the Queen's Theatre "Liza Eccles," with Mr. Leston and Mr. Farron in the leading parts, will be finally performed. At the Victoria Theatre the extraordinary performers, Mr. D. R. Hawley and Mons. A. Buisiay make their first appearance. These gentlemen do not go through the ordinary trapeze business, but introduce their audience to something that is as novel as it is startingly sensational. In addition to the feats of these acrobats, the dramatic company strengthens the programme by performing two dramas, entitled "The Midnight Watch" and the "Orphan of Glencoe."

THE PROTESTANT HALL.

Last night, at the Home of Song, the Carandini Company issued an entirely new, and it is almost needless to add an attractive, programme. The first part consisted of sacred music, selected chiefly from the oratorios of the great masters. The unaccompanied quartet, "Oh! Come every one that thirsteth," was in itself a good sign of the capabilities of the company, and of their confidence in themselves. Rossini's prayer and chorus, "Dal tuo stellate soglio," was a very enjoyable number, the solo voices taking their several parts with spirit and judgment, and the chorus joining in a forte hardly to be believed as coming from so small a troupe. The song "Consider the Lilies" was rendered with such simple grace by Miss Marie Carandini that she was warmly recalled; and a similar well-merited compliment was paid to Madame Carandini for her performance of "Angels ever bright and fair," from Handel's little known oratorio "Theodora." Mr. Gordon Gooch was very successful with the martial air "Honour and arms," from "Samson," and Mr. Vernon Reid sang, with great sweetness, the beautiful aria, "If with all your hearts," which immediately followed the quartette, and the unaccompanied trio, "Lift thine eyes," by Madame Carandini, Miss Marie and Miss Melville formed a delightful reminder of Mendelssohn's dramatic oratorio "Elijah." The introduction to the "Lobgesang" was very well played by the Misses Melville and Marie Carandini.

After a short interval, the second part opened with a selection from "Il Trovatore," including the Miserere sung by Madame Carandini, the remainder of the company giving the Miserere from behind the screen with very good effect; it secured warm applause. Other marked numbers of this part were Cusrchman's trio "The Violet," a beautiful composition; the Irish song "Kate O'Shane," delivered with much archness by Miss Marie, and Balfe's laughing trio "I'm not the Queen." We are glad to notice that these entertainments are being recognised, the audience was numerous and appreciative. Any person who goes once will be sure to repeat his visit. Of all the attractions now open to the public we know of none where more thorough enjoyment can be had.

SCHOOL OF ARTS.

The largest and most deeply interested audience that has yet witnessed Professor Pepper's delightful entertainment, assembled in the School of Arts last night. Professor Pepper took his benefit on the occasion, and the programme he went through was replete with interesting features. The Professor delivered a very clever and instructive lecture on "Fire Handling," and to make his meaning plain and illustrate the force of his remarks, he performed some wonderful experiments, including the immersion of his hand in boiling lead. One of the prettiest of these experiments and the one that excited most general interest was that in which he burnt a diamond. The combustion of the gem when effected was superbly beautiful, and called forth the most vehement applause. The other items in the programme have already been noticed at length, but last night they were particularly well done, and thoroughly pleased the vast audience. The same excellent entertainment, including the burning of a diamond, will be repeated to-night, and it should attract as large an audience.

BURTON'S CIRCUS.

The performance at Burton's Circus last night was for the benefit of the popular clown Johnny Cowan. The attendance was very fair, and the programme a particularly good one. The performances of Professor, Madame, and Master Wombold were attractive features, and the riding of Mr. Jones and the acts of his capitally trained horse Ragee Pak, received much praise. The portions contributed by Lazette and Maffitt, Young Australia and Eugene Brae, elicited considerable applause, while the various other items in the entertainment were fairly successful. Mr. Cowan kept his audience in thoroughly good humour during the evening, and his songs and comicalities often evoked roars of laughter. There will be the usual matinee to-day, and for to-night a change in the programme is announced.

MADEMOISELLE OLGA DUBOIN.

Mdlle. Duboin, who has recently arrived in this city, is of French family, though of Russian birth. Her mother for many years was teacher of French at the Moscow Imperial Institute. Madame Duboin's valuable services were so highly esteemed that, on the daughter's evincing a decided talent for music, the Empress of Russia sent her to the Leipsic Conservatory of Music, where Mdlle. Duboin studied under the eminent Moscheles. Since 1868, with few interruptions, the lady has been constantly travelling; she has visited the principal towns of Eastern Siberia, the Caucasus, the Crimea, Constantinople, the important towns of European and Asiatic Turkey, thence to Egypt. She was for a short time in London during 1874, and her performances created considerable attention, judging from the favourable notices in the Times and Athenæum. The visit of the Prince of Wales to India induced her to make a professional tour there. She had the honour of performing before his Highness and Lord Northbrook, then Governor-General of India. In June, 1878, Mdlle. Duboin arrived in Melbourne, where her great abilities as a pianiste were promptly recognised. In her recitals the lady is herself the sole artiste engaged, and that she can hold, and has repeatedly held, large audiences entranced for two and a half hours by her unaided efforts is no mean testimony in her favour. By desire of her Imperial Majesty the Empress of Russia (such being almost a command), Mdlle. Duboin invariably appears at her recitals in a magnificent "Costume de Cours Russe," presented by her kind patroness. This distinguished pianiste purposes giving one recital in Sydney during the month.

SYDNEY INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION.

Yesterday the weather was fine, and there was a marked increase in the number of visitors. The following is the official return:—Season ticket holders, 403; general public, 2748; children, 441; exhibitors and others, 1240: total, 4832. The contrast between the attendance of the general public yesterday and the 712 on the half-crown day is noticeable, and fully bears out the remarks we have made on the subject. Indeed, it will be seen by the report of the proceedings at the Commissioners' meeting yesterday, that the subject of a uniform charge for every day in the week has been mooted, though no definite action has as yet been taken.

It is now thought that almost all the cases containing exhibits have arrived, and yesterday the packages, ex Cuzco, were delivered at the Garden Palace. Not much time will be lost in unpacking these cases, and therefore we may fairly hope that a fortnight will see the completed display in this truly noble exhibition. As it is there is progress every day; and the regular visitor will find, to his surprise, a well-filled case every morning, on a spot where, the day before, there was a blank. Indeed, in places exhibits are almost crowding each other, and the wonder is how the exhibitors manage to find space for themselves. The British Court especially is very full, and is replete with interesting cases, more of which are opened daily. For instance, among many others, we see exhibits from the Royal Porcelain Works, Worcester; from Osler's well-known establishment; and from Barwell, Son, and Fisher's. There is a stand of Christy's world-renowned hats, as well as of Townsend's. Meyer and Metzler, of Great Portland-street, send a splendid case of surgical instruments, several of which, we notice, have already been bought for the Sydney Infirmary; and one, a set of suspension bands for spinal distortion, so frequent among children, has been secured by Mr. Alfred Roberts, M.R.C.S., for the Children's Hospital. Here is also a travelling case of amputating instruments which require notice because the package can be so easily carried, and will therefore be invaluable to surgeons in the country districts.

One of the chief features out of doors is the display of agricultural implements by Messrs. J. Fowler, of Leeds, who are represented here by Mr. E. Combes, C.M.G. Mr. W. M. Noakes being the visiting representative of the firm. The engines were worked yesterday afternoon, and with marked success. The firm have seven exhibits: the engines used on what is known as the "double engine system" for ploughing, clearing land, &c., the patent balance plough, the patent cuban plough, the patent turning elevator, the extra-strong grubber or knifer, the excavating scoop, and the patent agricultural locomotive. Our space this morning will not permit us to do more than merely direct attention to these valuable exhibits so important to the colony, but we shall take an early opportunity of referring to them in detail.

Various visitors make inquiries for catalogues at the Garden Palace. At present the official catalogue is not complete, but at the offices in the German, Victorian, New Zealand, Netherlands, Austrian, and Tasmanian courts, and perhaps one or two others, catalogues of the exhibits prepared under the direction of the representative Commissioners respectively can be procured at a small charge.

At the meeting of the International Commissioners yesterday, several matters of interest were dealt with, which are detailed in our report further on.

THE MUSIC AT THE GARDEN PALACE.

The concert arranged by Mr. Brinsmead was again thrown out of order by the mysterious abstraction of the music set down in the programme. The loss is not only vexatious, but without considerable delay the music cannot be replaced. On Tuesday it was safe, and left in the Garden Palace; yesterday there was no trace of it, and all searching since has been fruitless. When it is known that the missing parcel contains the violin part of a duo from "Oberon," the pianoforte copy of a similar arrangement from "Der Freischutz," and the sonatas of Beethoven for violin and piano, besides numerous other pieces, some idea of the inconvenience caused can be imagined. Instead of the programme an impromptu selection was made which was much applauded. The principal solos of Madame Summerhayes were—No. 1 of the Novelletten of Schumann, and Thalberg's fantasia on "Home, Sweet Home," with "Erin" (Sir J. Benedict), by particular request. Beside the pianoforte part of Oberon, and De Beriot's duet from "William Tell," with Signor Ortori, and in the "Ave Maria" of Gounod, with the same artist—Mr. Massey's part having disappeared—the organ could not be used. Great sympathy was expressed for the lady pianiste in the irritating circumstances under which she performed with so much genial merit. Mr. Winter was more successful with "Let me like a soldier fall" than in his first solo. His voice is not suited to the building, and he is unable there to do justice to himself. Beside the pieces above mentioned in connection with Madame Summerhayes, Signor Ortori was accompanied by Mr. C. Huenerbein in an elegant composition, the "Ballade Polonaise" of Vieuxtemps, which was received with great favour. Another concert is announced for Tuesday.

In the German Court Madame Summerhayes gave a charming recital on the magnificent Bechstein, of which the Turkish March from Beethoven's opera, the "Ruin of Athens," beautifully arranged by Rubenstein, was conspicuous; the selection contained one of Rubenstein's own works, "A Barcarolle," which is highly original and very effective, though the arrangement of chords makes it extremely difficult. Between these came a Tarentelle by Thalberg; later there was a second by Stephen Heller, both highly interesting performances. A Valse, D flat, Chopin, was also in the programme. After the Brinsmead Concert part of the Bechstein selection was repeated on the Bluthner grand in the same court. Miss Hyam will to-day, at 3 p.m., play on the Erard grand in the gallery of the French Court.

The Young Australian Band will perform the following selections of music, on the cricket lawn, this afternoon, Saturday, at 3 p.m.:—Part I.: 1. March, "Conqueror" (R. Smith); 2. Selection, "Maritana" (arranged by J. Hardy); 3. Valse, "Liela" (Euling); 4. Quadrille, "Carmen," by request (J. Hardy). Part II.: 5. March, "To Memory ever Dear" (R. Smith); 6. Selection, "Il Trovatore" (Verdi), as performed at amateur band contest, July 21, 1879, trophy exhibited at Floral Cafe; 7. Lancers, "Grand Duchesse" (J. Hardy); 8. Galop, "Wire In" (J. Hardy); National Anthem.—Bandmaster, J. Hardy.

MEETING OF EXHIBITION COMMISSIONERS.

A meeting of the Commissioners was held, at the offices in Macquarie-street, yesterday afternoon. There were present: The Hon. W. Macleay, M.L.C., in the chair, Sir John Hay, K.C.M.G.; Sir Alfred Stephen, K.C.M.G., C.B.; Mr. J. Alger, Mr. Edward Combes, C.M.G.; Mr. J. Davies, M.L.A.; Dr. Garran, Mr. H. Halloran, Mr. Hill, Mr. P. A. Jennings, C.M.G. (Executive Commissioner); Dr. Jenkins, Mr. S. A. Joseph, Mr. E. G. King, Mr. H. Mort, Mr. Merriman, the Hon. Professor Smith, C.M.G.; Mr. R. B. Smith, the Hon. George Thornton, M.L.C.; Mr. Terry, M.L.A.; Mr. P. N. Trebeck, and Mr. Webb.

The minutes of the last meeting were then read and confirmed.

EXECUTIVE COMMISSIONER'S REPORT.

Mr. P. A. Jennings, C.M.G., did not bring up a formal report, but referred to various matters which had taken place since last meeting. He had received a letter from Mr. Moore, relative to the elevation of the bridge at present in course of erection at the Northern end of the Garden Palace, in which it was pointed out that the span of the bridge would interfere with access to the building from the Commissioner's gate. He had also received a letter from Mr. J. Plummer asking that if it were not wholly contrary to the regulations of the Commissioners, he might be allowed to use gas in working the engine in the space allowed to the Graphic in the British Court. He had deemed it his duty to visit the Art Gallery, now in course of erection, and to see whether it would be possible to carry out the promise to open the gallery by the 10th November. In doing this he had asked the contractor, Mr. Young, to give him a report as to the progress of the building, and from this it appeared that the three eastern rooms could be completed by Monday evening next, the three western rooms by Tuesday evening, and the three centre rooms by Wednesday. It would therefore be seen that they would be in a position to open the gallery by the 10th. The foreign exhibitors who desired to hang their own pictures could open the space allotted to them as they pleased, and it would only be necessary to see that the works entrusted to the Commissioners were duly arranged by that time. With regard to the demonstrations on the 10th he had taken upon himself to make arrangements for the issue of 7000 tickets to the various Friendly Societies who would wish to be represented, and he had accepted their guarantee that these tickets would only be issued by them to bona-fide members. The tickets were coloured differently to the usual Exhibition tickets for the day, and therefore could only be used by members. It seemed to be probable that about 20,000 tickets would be required, but these could be supplied at a couple of days' notice. The attendance on the half-crown days had led to the consideration of the question whether it would not be well to make the price on those days uniform with the others, and in view of any decision that might be arrived at, he had thought it his duty to intimate to the director of music that it might not be advisable to continue the musical entertainments on the same scale as heretofore—(hear, hear)—and that probably the arrangements could be modified to meet the alteration of the tariff.

On the motion of Mr. J. Davies, the letter of Mr. Plummer was referred to the committee on internal arrangements.

FINANCE.

The Hon. Geo. Thornton brought up the report of the Finance Committee, from which it appeared that the receipts on revenue account up to the 30th October, were £13,945 12s., of which £13,020 6s. were on ticket account, and £925 6s. on concession account. The hon. gentleman also stated that the transactions so far showed a profit of about £600 per week.

The report was received and adopted.

EDUCATION AND SCIENCE.

The Hon. Professor Smith brought up the following report from Committee XIII on Education and Science.

"This committee begs to report that at the meeting held on Thursday, the 30th October, the annexed communications referred to it by the Commission were read and disposed of as follows:—A letter from Mr. Rogers, Secretary Sydney Mechanics' School of Arts, offering the use of the College Hall for the purpose of giving lectures or reading papers upon the various exhibits now in the Garden Palace. In reference to this, it was resolved that every assistance which can be legitimately afforded by the Commission to the object indicated should be given. The committee thinks that the opportunity now afforded by the Exhibition of diffusing information should not be lost. The committee further suggests that, as far as lies in the power of the Commission, the loan of specimens for the illustration of lectures may be sanctioned under suitable conditions. A letter from the Right Rev. Dr. Selwyn, Bishop of Melanesia, regretting his inability to assist in the formation of an ethnological collection as he would have wished. To be acknowledged with thanks. A letter from Mr. Miklejohn, St. Andrew's, Fifeshire, Scotland, enclosing diagrams of a new method of elementary teaching. To be referred to the Educational Department to be placed among their exhibits. Diagrams and explanatory letter were handed to Mr. Wilkins forthwith. A letter from Professor Liversidge, University, with regard to British exhibits for scientific and educational purposes now lying unpacked in the Garden Palace. To be referred to the committee acting on behalf of the British exhibitors.—J. Smith, Chairman."

The report was received, and adopted.

CATALOGUES AND PRINTING.

The Hon. George Thornton brought up a report from Committee No. XIV on this subject, and a discussion ensued, but ultimately it was decided to adjourn the debate until the special meeting to be held on Monday next.

JUDGING AND AWARDS.

Mr. P. A. Jennings brought up the following report from Committee No. XVI.:—

"At the first formal meeting held this day, 31st October, it was resolved,—That the Chairman be requested to select a competent person to record the proceedings, and preserve all books, documents, &c., belonging to the committee. Also, that the South Coast Butter Show, in the Terrace Hall, be permitted to take place, with the understanding that it is a local show, and the exhibits do not compete for International prizes, and that the exhibitors may select their own judges. It was further resolved,—That the names of Messrs. Sparkes, Butcher, and Hawks, as recommended by the Committee on Wines, be approved of as judges of beer, to act with the three judges appointed by the Commissioners and Representatives of the participating countries and colonies, and that they be authorised to proceed with the judging, under instructions from this committee. The consideration of a report from the Commissioners and Representatives of the participating countries and colonies, containing their views as to judges' awards and appeals, was postponed until next meeting, on Monday, 3rd proximo.—P. A. Jennings, Chairman."

The report was received.

LIVE STOCK.

Dr. Jenkins brought up the following report from Committee No. XII.

"The committee on live stock begs to recommend to the Commission that the day for the opening of the show of Stud Cattle shall be Tuesday, the 9th of December, on which day it is proposed that the judging shall take place.—R. L. Jenkins, Chairman.

The report was received and adopted.

GENERAL BUSINESS.

Mr. Hill (for Mr. Combes) moved,—"That the Executive Commissioner communicate with the Colonial Secretary respectfully requesting him to have the example of bridge-building now being erected on the grounds of the Garden Palace placed at a higher level, so as not to interfere with the road leading from the Commissioners' entrance to the grounds." Carried.

Dr. Jenkins inquired what was to be done with regard to the appointment of judges of live stock.

The Executive Commissioner suggested that the Live Stock Committee might recommend the names of judges to the Commission.

The Commissioners then adjourned.

SPORTING.

VICTORIA RACING CLUB SPRING MEETING.

[By Telegraph.]
(From our Special Reporter.)

MELBOURNE, Friday.

5 to 2 was taken to-day about Caspian for the Derby. Wilson's horses, including Caspian, Savanaka, Tocal, First King, Respite, and South Hamilton have arrived. Regret is expressed at Chester's lameness.

11 p.m.

Respite, Caspian, and Savanaka are very fit, but First King and South Hamilton look a little stout.

There was great excitement and a large crowd at Tattersall's to-night, but there is very little alteration in the prices of the favourites. Betting: Maribyrnong Plate—5 to 1 each Respite and Geraldine; 6 to 1 Otira; 10 to 1 others. Derby—3 to 1 Caspian; 4 to 1 Nellie; 5 to 1 Suwarrow, 7 to 1 His Grace; 8 to 1 South Hamilton; 10 to 1 Falmouth and Belladrum; 12 to 1 Baronet. Cup—7 to 1 Secundus and Savanaka; 10 to 1 Wellington; 14 to 1 Le Loup and Riverton; 16 to 1 Caspian; 20 to 1 Sweetmeat. The others are unchanged.

The course is in excellent order, and the recent rain has not done any harm.

MIDNIGHT.

Latest Betting: Maribyrnong Plate—Respite, 5 to 1; Geraldine, 6 to 1; Otira, 7 to 1; Remembrance, 10 to 1; Palmyra, 12 to 1; Lady Emma, 14 to 1. Derby—Caspian, 5 to 2; Nellie, 3 to 1; His Grace, 6 to 1; Suwarrow, 6 to 1; Falmouth and South Hamilton, 10 to 1; Belladrum, Baronet, Geide Olgathatch, all the money at 100 to 6. Cup—Secundus, 8 to 1; Savanaka, 100 to 13 (offered); Wellington, 10 to 1; Riverton and Le Loup, 100 to 7; Richmond, 100 to 8; Sweetmeat, 100 to 6; Wandering Jew, 100 to 6 (offered); Caspian, 100 to 6; Strathearn, 100 to 3; Monarque, 100 to 2. There is no betting on the other events. Lord Harry, Diamond, and Levant are scratched for the Hotham Handicap; and Newminster and Zambesi for all engagements.

BALMAIN REGATTA.

Entries for the Balmain Regatta were received at the Balmain School of Arts, on Monday night last, the 27th instant; nearly all the races on the programme being well filled up. The principal races will be the All Comers' Race, for which there are six entries already, and probably another one will be received; there are two representatives from Melbourne, one from New Zealand, and three from Sydney. The 24-feet Open-boat Race will bring together the Carlotta, Deronda, Lottie, and the new boat of the season—the Victor—four splendid boats, the owner of each being confident of success. The Oithona, Guinevere, Meteor, and Pleiades will contest the Second-class Yacht Race. Seven 16-feet dingies under canvas will compete in that class. The Man-of-war Race will be competed by French, English, and most likely Germans. Messrs. Towns and Co. have placed the magnificent steamer City of New York at the disposal of the committee, for a flagship; and as she is in charge of Captain Cobb, who has promised that nothing on his part shall be left undone to make the Regatta a success, those who favour the flagship can look forward to spending a very enjoyable day. As several entries were not up to time last Monday, the committee have decided to receive post entries, at Trickett's Hotel, up to 9 p.m, this evening, at which hour entries will positively close.

INTERCOLONIAL CRICKET MATCH.

Victoria v. New South Wales.—This important event has been announced to begin on the 21st November, just three weeks from to-day. During last season, it will be remembered, that the annual matches were allowed to stand in abeyance, owing to the visit of Lord Harris and his team. They are now about to be resumed, and the first match has been fixed as indicated above. The date has been chosen so much earlier than usual in order that the match should take place while the interest in the Exhibition is at its height. Our men have been in steady practice for the last three weeks, and are exhibiting good form. From Melbourne, we learn that our opponents are practising hard and feel confident that they will secure a victory. It is certain that both colonies will play their full strength, so that there is every probability that the match will be interesting, and that the cricket will be of a high order. The match will be played on the Association Ground, which is receiving the attention necessary to fit it for both players and the public.

GO AS YOU PLEASE TOURNAMENT.

Particulars as to the forthcoming pedestrian tournament at the Exhibition Building, Prince Alfred Park, appears in our advertising columns. It commences on the 13th instant, and extends over three days. £160 is to be distributed as prizes, in addition to which a trophy, in the shape of a belt, is to be given. It is announced that the tournament is under the patronage of Sir Henry Parkes, Premier; Mr. C. J. Roberts, Mayor of Sydney; the city aldermen, and other leading citizens.

THE EXHIBITION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—You allow your columns very generously to be taken up by letters giving suggestions as to changes that might safely be made for the benefit of sightseers, but there is one thing that I have not noticed among those suggestions. So far they have only tended to benefit healthy people. Kindly insert this suggestion for the benefit of invalids. There are many persons, men and women, who are in good health, but who cannot for various reasons, walk. They are naturally as anxious to see our noble Exhibition as are others, but on getting there how they are to see anything more than the exterior, is a puzzle to them. My suggestions is that Bath chairs be provided; that a careful, steady man be attached to each chair, and that a fixed charge be made for the use of the chair, and the man's services. That this would be a great boon I know from my own personal knowledge. Suppose half-a-dozen chairs were started for a first attempt, I am certain that soon more would be required. I have often seen persons so inva lided been thus enabled to see the Crystal Palace and other Exhibitions.

I am, &c.,
October 29. A WOULD-BE BENEFACTOR.

Some stir has been created in the ecclesiastical world by the announcement that Dean Colley, the new Dean of Maritzburg, went out to assist Dr. Colenso with the sanction and approval of the Archbishop of Canterbury, and the Bishops of Exeter and Worcester.

STOCK, STATION, AND PRODUCE REPORTS.

Mort and Co.—Wool: We offered 1350 bales at auction on Wednesday. There was a full attendance of buyers at the sale, and competition was very brisk for all fairly-conditioned lots, greasy wool being in most request. We sold 1254 bales at auction at the following values: Greasy, inferior, 5½d to 7½d; medium, 8½d to 9½d; good, 10d to 11½d per lb; fleece may be quoted at, inferior 11½d to 14d; medium, 15d to 16d; good to superior, 17d. to 20d. One line was bought in at our sale at 19½d per lb. Sheepskins continue in good demand at from 5d to 6½d for medium to full-fleeced, 3½d to 4½d for short grown, and 1½d to 2½d per lb. for pelts. Leather: The sales on Tuesday passed off without animation, and rates remain low for all descriptions. Quotations—Sole, 6½d to 8½d for medium; best, 8½d to 9d; harness, 7d to 8½d; kip, 11d to 14d; tweed, 16d to 18d; calf, 18d to 23d per lb.; bag, 8s to 10s per side; basils, 4s to 9s per dozen. Hides: There was an average supply at to-day's sales, and an active demand at improved values, especially for well-conditioned heavies. Prices realized were as follows:—Medium to heavy salted, 3½d to 3¾d; light, 3d to 3½d; and dry, 3½d to 4½d per lb. Horse-hides are in short supply, and good lots sell readily at from 5s to 6s per hide. Small and inferior not in much request. Kangaroo Skins: A large number were offered to-day, values ruling much lower. Large sizes are worth from 13s to 20s per dozen. Small and inferior dull of sale. Tallow was in fair supply for to-day's sales, and owing to recent English advices, good shipping parcels realized an advance of about 60s. per ton on recent rates. Small lots were also in better demand. We sold good beef at £29 10s to £30; mixed, £18 5s to £26 10s. Mutton was in very small supply and may be quoted at from £30 to £31 per ton. Horns and shank bones in moderate demand at about late rates, viz., 15s to 25s per 100 for former; and £6 to £9 per ton for latter. Horsehair sells fairly at 12d to 15d per lb. for tail; 9d to 11d for mixed; and 8d to 10d for mane. Tobacco Leaf: At our sale to-day, we disposed of 66 bales at from 3½d to 4d for medium quality; and 1½d to 2d per lb. for inferior.—October 31.

Maiden, Hill, and Clark.—Wool: The opening sales of the season have been considerably delayed in consequence of the late arrival of the new clip, which is only now beginning to come to hand in anything like large quantities, so that there was sufficient to hand to warrant the first sales of the season being held this week, and considerable interest was evinced in the course prices would take. The attendance at the sales held by the various auctioneers was good, and competition for good merino wools, both clean and greasy and free from seed and burr, was active; while, on the other hand, parcels infested with seed and burr or otherwise defective, met with a serious decline in value. Crossbreds, as well as lambs' wool, suffered to a considerable extent. At our first sale, held yesterday, we disposed of four hundred (400) out of a catalogue of five hundred (500) bales, at satisfactory prices, considering the depressed state of the London market. Amongst the lots disposed of on our catalogue were JRC over Dundee over New England, 44 bales, scoured first and seconds, at 20d, 18 bales scoured thirds at 16d, 15 bales scoured crossbreds at 15d; F&JK in diamond over Narraburra, 56 bales fleece at 16½d; F in circle over Buckinbong, 87 bales in grease at 9½d per lb. Our latest London cablegram reports the market firmer, all descriptions having advanced one half-penny to a penny per lb., and we trust that the next series, which open on the 18th proximo, will show a decided improvement on late ruling values. Quotations here are—Scoured, superior, 18d to 20d; good, 15d to 17d; ordinary, 13d to 14d; inferior, 11d to 12d. Fleece, superior, 17d to 18d; good, 15d to 16d; ordinary, 13d to 14d; inferior, 10d to 12d. Greasy, superior, 10d to 11d; good, 8d to 9½d; ordinary, 7d to 8d; inferior, burry, seedy, and crossbreds, 4d to 6d per lb. Sheepskins: The market has been only moderately supplied during the month, and prices for good lines have been firm, while faulty lots sold at low prices. We have sold a considerable number at, for full woolled and free, 5d to 6½d; medium, 4d to 5d; short, 3d to 4d; pelts, 1½d to 2½d per lb. Tallow: A good demand has existed for shipment during the month, and the trade has also operated free. A speculative demand has just taken place in London, and has tended to stiffen values here considerably. During the month we have sold a considerable quantity at—for mutton, £37 to £38; beef, £23 to £26 10s; mixed, £18 to £22 per ton; but in consequence of the reported rise in London, we look for a corresponding increase in price at our next sale. Hides: This market during the month has been fully supplied, and prices have been well maintained throughout. At the last sale held, however, a fresh demand for shipment sprung up, which caused an advance in ruling values of one farthing per lb. on heavy weights only. Medium weights are not in much request. Light and dry met with fair inquiry. Horse-hides have been scarce. Calf and yearling exhibit no improvement. Prime kangaroo in demand. During the month we have sold 4173 hides at, for extreme heavies, 3¾d to 3½d; heavies, 3½d to 3¾d; medium weight, 3d to 3¼d; light, 3d to 3½d; dry, 2d to 3½d per lb; calf, 6d to 2s 6d; yearling, 2s 6d to 6s; horsehides, 3s to 5s each; kangaroo, 6s to 30s per dozen. Leather: The market has been as dull as ever; during the month, sales could only be made at prices which must prove very unsatisfactory to the tanners, the supply being far in excess of the demand. Our sales have been—Sole, 7d to 10d; kip, 12d to 14d; calf, 18d to 21d; yearling, 18d to 22d; harness, 8d to 10d; kangaroo, 24d to 36d per lb.; bag, 9s to 12s 6d; bridle, 8s 6d to 9s 6d; collar, 7s 6d to 9s per side; basils, 4s 6d to 11s 6d per dozen. Hair: The supply has been rather short, prices have been good, and competition brisk. Our sales have been at—for horse tail, 12d to 14d; mane, 8d to 9d; mixed, 10d to 11d; cow (clean), 8d to 9d; ditto (dirty), 4d to 5d per lb. Horns and Bones: A considerable fall in value may be reported, which is specially noticeable in mixed or decayed parcels of either, while on the other hand good sound parcels well taken care of created keen competition. Quotations are—Horns (good), 22s to 30s.; mixed, 10s to 15s; small, 4s to 8s per 100; bones (good), 7s to 10s; ordinary, 4s to 6s per cwt. Beeswax: Market fairly supplied; the demand is not very brisk. Quotations are from 8d to 11d per lb., according to quality. Fat Cattle: As anticipated in our last supplies have been exceedingly heavy, owing to the splendid season, and not for years have the agents experienced such dull and dragging sales, with low rates, as the month just past; even the most experienced in the trade could not foresee the low rates that are ruling, almost down to boiling prices. We are inclined to attribute, and we think fairly, one of the causes that tends to assent in unsettling prices is, that the sales are now, as of old, split up, the effect of which is to scatter the buyers, unsettle their operations, and end injuriously to the grazier. From our long experience in Victoria, as well as in this colony, we are convinced that concentration serves advantageously both the producer and consumer alike. As far as we are concerned we are indifferent as to where (so long as it is within a reasonable distance of the city) the saleyards are, but we are perfectly satisfied that all live stock sales should be held at one place; and something should at once be done to effect this end, as, with the over supply of cattle coming forward, prices must be low enough without any further detraction. From hour advices to hand and knowledge of the country, we fear that there is but little chance of the supply easing off for some time, and can only advise those of our friends who can possibly hold, to do so until after Christmas at least. Prime beef is now selling at 10s per 100 lbs., others nominal. The greater portion of the supply coming forward is of good to prime quality, consequently it all goes on the market, and without the Meat Preserving Company, who are working largely, things would be in a pretty state indeed. The trial shipment of meat to England, per Strathleven, is anxiously looked forward to, and we trust it may prove a success, for now that the colony is over producing any means of working off the surplus must prove a boon to all interested. We append a list of our sales for the month, which are as follows:—On account of Mr. E. De Mestre, Terrara, 61 bullocks at £4 18s 10d; ditto Messrs Kennedy, Brothers, Tenandra, 48 ditto at £4 16s 7d; ditto executors of the late F. R. Hume, Yass, 20 ditto at £4 11s 7d; ditto Messrs. Hardie and Miller, Guangra, 28 ditto at £4 3s 9d; ditto, ditto, 66 cows at £3 3s 10d; ditto, ditto 69 bullocks at £4 8s 7d; ditto, ditto 43 cows at £3 8s 4d; ditto David Watt, Esq., Pine Ridge, 116 bullocks at £3 9s; ditto Messrs. Kennedy, Brothers, Tenandra, 157 at £2 19s 9d; ditto Mr. P. Morgan, Pier Pter, 35 at £3 15s 11d; ditto, ditto 6 at £2 9s 7d; ditto, Messrs. J. and W. Watkins, Gungalman, 68 at £3 14s; ditto, ditto 62 cows at £3 3s; ditto Mr. P. Morgan, Pier Pier, 8, at £3 3s; ditto Mr. J. Rogers, Liverpool Plains, 207 bullocks, at £3 15s 6d; ditto ditto ditto, 3 cows, at £4 0s 8d; total, 997. Fat Sheep: Supplies throughout the month have been large, and as the carcase trade operated heavily outside some little time back they have had several drafts forward direct, keeping them fully supplied, and this market has sympathised alike with cattle in the depression, and prices ruled low. Several drafts of shorn sheep have been forward, and these have have suffered mostly in the decline, owing chiefly to the fact of the large carcase butchers having establishments for utilising the skins, consequently, while they could supply themselves with full-woolled sheep they did not care to operate on shorn lots, unless at considerably reduced rates. The bulk of the supply on hand has now been worked off, and in consequence of the heavy floods, and shearing operations being in full swing, but few lots have left the stations to arrive here just now, and we anticipate a falling off in the supply, and improvement in prices for a time. Quotations may be given as follows:—56-lb. wethers, in the wool, 11s 6d to 12s; 50 lb., 10s to 10s 6d; others in proportion—a good deal depending on the quality of the skins. Shorn lots at 4s 6d to 5s lower. Our sales have been, on account of—Mr. George D. Lane, Youie, 1384 wethers at 8s 6d; Mr. A. K. Roche, Gunning, 90 wethers at 9s 4d to 9s 5d; executors of the late F. R. Hume, Yass, 600 wethers at 10s 1d to 11s; Mooki Springs Station, 540 wethers at 10s; executors of the late F. R. Hume, Yass, 1000 wethers at 8s 7½d to 9s 3d; Mooki Springs Station, 510 wethers at 10s; Mooki Springs Station, 540 wethers at 10s; Mr. J. Richmond, Haddon Rig (shorn), 1965 wethers at 5s 6d to 6s 6d: total, 6659. Fat Lambs: This market has also been heavily supplied, large numbers having come forward from Riverina and the coast districts, causing almost a glutted market throughout, and prices have ruled unusually low, except for really prime crossbred descriptions, which may be quoted at up to 8s 6d per head, while medium and inferior lots have ruled from 2s upwards. We have sold several small drafts from 3s to 5s 9d. Pure Stock: We have sold privately, during International Sheep Show, on account of Messrs. Sanders, James, and Co., of Canowie, South Australia, 5 pure rams, from two tooth to 4 years, and 6 pure ewes, equal upon from their noted stud flocks, for the lump sum of 700 guineas—Mr. E. Vickery, purchaser. Store Stock: A fair amount of business has been done in sheep for delivery off the shears, and late quotations have been maintained notwithstanding the low prices ruling for fats. The opening wool sales of the season have passed off well, and caused a firmer tendency, inducing squatters to go into this description of stock, and we expect a fair amount of business will be done. Our sales have been 4800 mixed sheep, in the wool, for delivery at Carcoar, on account of Mr. S. M. Swift, at 8s—Mr. T. R. Icely, purchaser; and on account of Messrs. R. Hill and Sons, Butterbone, 600 breeding ewes, off the shears, at 6s; Mr. William Peacock, purchaser. In store cattle there is little doing, the low prices ruling for fats deterring business except at extremely low rates. Stations: Business in these securities is unusually dull, no important transactions having taken place, and although the season is all that can be desired, the high rate of money precludes transactions.—October 31.

Harrison, Jones, and Devlin.—Wool: 3430 bales have been offered by the various auctioneers this week, and 2256 were sold under the hammer, besides several lots cleared off privately after the sale. The season may now be said to have fairly set in, and each week the catalogues will be increasing. The new clip so far to hand is, as a rule, better grown than last year; but many parcels are touched with burr or seed. The burry and seedy lots there is very little demand for, and for them very low prices will have to be accepted. For good free wool there is very good competition, and the sales this week show our market very firm. For good fleece 12d to 16½d was obtained; medium and half-washed 10d to 14d; greasy, 8d to 11½d; burry and faulty, 4d to 7½d; scoured, good, up to 20d; low and medium, 9d to 14d. Pieces sell at fair value as compared with fleece. Sheepskins: A fair quantity has been offered, and all have been well competed for, and prices are it anything a shade firmer than a week ago. Prices ranged from 5d to 6½d for best; second quality, 3½d to 4½d; burry and seedy lots and short-woolled, 1½d to 3d. Tallow: 364 casks offered, 232 sold. The sudden rise in the home market has had a corresponding effect here, and at to-day's sales prices were about 40s to 50s per ton higher than last week. Quotations—Best mutton, £30 to £31; beef, £28 10s to £30 10s; mixed and station, £22 to £25. Hides: 4370 offered, 5920 sold. This market showed no alteration from last, both shipping and local buyers being well represented. Quotations—Extra heavy, 3½d to 3¾d; heavy, 3¼d to 3½d; medium, 3¼d to 3½d; light and middling, 3d to 3¼d. Leather: The sales were very badly attended this week, consequently there was little business done. There still exists a fair demand for sole, and a little more inquiries for harness leather. Quotations:—Sole, extra heavy, 14½d to 15d; medium, 12d to 13½d; cowtweed, best, 15d to 20d; medium, 14d to 16d; yearling ditto, 20d to 24d; calf, 20d to 24d; harness, best, 9½d to 10½d; mediums, 8½d to 9d; bridle, 9s to 10s 6d per side; bag, 9s to 10s 6d; shoe basils, 5s 6d to 7s 6d; saddlers ditto, 9s 6d to 11s 6d. Tin: By private cablegrams we learn that tin has still further declined in the London market, and sales have been made there at £83 10s. This will upset our market again. One early this week sold at 15s per unit, but it is now hard to gain a quotation. Grain: The market for wheat is very brisk, and at our sale on Friday we placed Southern at 6s and Northern parcels at 5s 9d per bushel. Oats still difficult of sale as stocks are so heavy.—October 30.

John Bridge.—Wool: The sales of the season commenced this week with catalogues fairly representing all classes of wools, and a full attendance of buyers. Prices so far are 1d to 2d below last year's opening prices—that is for fair parcels of fleece and greasy wools—and quite 3d lower for scoured and burry lots. Burry wools, too, seem unusually plentiful. Greasy wools are again this year in much more favour than washed, for whilst some very superior fleece sold at 17d to 20d, medium and faulty lots went at 13d to 15d, and fair parcels of greasy at 9d to 11d. Burry parcels were neglected, and could be sold at low prices only—say, fleece, 11d to 13d; greasy, 5d to 7d. Scoured wools were quite 3d under last year's prices, and whilst fair parcels sold at 15d to 18d burry lots were not worth over 8d to 14d. My sale consisted of odd bales only, which were well competed for. I will offer some large parcels of all sorts next week. Sheepskins were in active request, at from 4d to 6½d for fair and good lots to 2d to 4d for pelts and heavy. Tallow: Owing to the sudden and considerable rise that has taken place in London, our market is quite unsettled, buyers not quite knowing what to offer, pending further information, but a considerable advance on all descriptions must take place. Hides: For heavy weights, in good condition, the market is better, 3¼d to 3½d being freely paid; ordinary and light parcels, 2½d to 3¼d; calfskins, 4d to 12d each; yearlings, 2s to 4s; kangaroo skins, 3s to 13s per dozen. Leather of all sorts comes forward sparingly, and the demand at least is good, especially for sole and harness; but prices cannot be said to have improved much, except for harness. Shoe leathers are still low in price; sole is worth 7d to 8d for light, and 8d to 10d for, say, 18 to 20-lb. sides. Harness (good) is worth 10d to 12d; medium, 8d to 9½d; bag, 8s to 11s per side; kip, 12d to 14d; tweeds, 15d to 18d; basils, 4s to 10s. Horns and bones are quite neglected, and to sell at all low prices must be taken. Hair is in better favour; but 15d is still outside for best tail.—October 31.

Richardson and Wrench.—After months of inactivity, the meagre fortnightly catalogues of wool merely serving to keep the trade together, the season for the sale of the clip of 1879, opened last Monday, when a presentable catalogue, principally of new wool, was submitted to buyers. The sale attracted a considerable attendance, partly from the fact of its being the opening of the season, and partly from being conducted in the new stores of our enterprising neighbours, Messrs. Harrison, Jones, and Devlin. Notwithstanding that the lots numbered many parcels of well-grown, sound, and fair to good quality greasy, the biddings were without animation, and a large portion of the wools submitted were withdrawn, evidently in consequence of their being too heavily handicapped by owners' reserves. During the week the market, however, has shown a better feeling on the part of buyers, and the sales of Wednesday and yesterday were fully attended, and a very fair business was done under the hammer at prices for prime greasy parcels very little short of the figures that were current at the opening of the season of 1878. Other sorts were not so well supported, and we estimate that the reduction required by purchasers on them was fully 1½d. to 2d. per lb. Now that the market is fairly open, we think some of this fall may be recovered, as the wool news from England has a brighter complexion, and the clip, as shown by the parcels to hand as well as from all accounts received, will certainly be of better growth and of greater quantity than that of last year; so that, notwithstanding the slight decline in price, growers will have no cause for complaint, as the apparent loss will we think be amply covered by the increased yield per sheep. The large export of wool from the colony of Victoria, to catch the February sales, has rather damped the ardour of our shippers to get their consignments forward for the same series; as it is believed that the number of bales to be then offered will be unusually large, besides the improvement in trade which is steadily taking place amongst the English manufacturers generally will by February have hardly had time to be sufficiently developed, hence the following or spring series of sales seem to be more fancied.—October 31.

F. L. Barker.—Stations: There has been more inquiry of late for suitable properties, and I anticipate shortly being able to quote the approval of two I have under offer. Fat cattle are still bringing only medium prices; the large quantities arriving prevent prices hardening. Fat Sheep: Best wethers are selling at 11s, and the market is steady; ewes, 8s to 9s 6d, according to weight. Store Stock: Now that shearing is on many stations completed, owners are offering their sheep, and large transactions are anticipated. Cattle: There is not much doing, as the price for fats is so low. Wool: The sales held this week comprised several large lots of this year's clip, both washed and greasy, and prices obtained were very satisfactory; biddings were active, and, unless very highly reserved, lots were placed at figures equal to valuation. Vessels now loading hope to catch February sales, and buyers are anxious to get wools in, anticipating good prices ruling in London, which is in a measure an explanation of the good rates ruling here as compared with London prices. I would quote greasy, superior, 10d to 11½d; good, 8d to 9½d; medium, 8d to 8½d; burry and low lots, 5¼d to 7¼d; pelt, scoured, superior, 17d to 20d; medium, 14d to 16d; inferior, 10d to 13d; washed fleece, 16d to 20d, according to quality. Sheepskins at to-day's sales were in good demand, and prices obtained were equal to valuation. I would quote best skins, 5½d to 6½d; medium, 4½d to 5½d; short burry lots, 3d to 4d per lb. Hides: The supplies being scarce, and the demand being good, prices the last week have hardened for all descriptions, and rates now obtainable are very satisfactory, thus—prime heavies, 3¼d to 3½d; heavies, 3¼d; medium, 3¼d to 3½d; light superior, 3¼d to 4d; inferior, 2½d to 2½d. Leather: There is a better tone in this market for all descriptions both of dressed and undressed goods, and as with most other markets a rise is anticipated in this. I would quote—Sole (light), 7½d to 8d; heavy, 8d to 9½d; kip, 13d to 15d; calf, 20d to 24d; yearling, 18d to 20d; cow, 16d to 19d; horse, 19d to 21d; harness (brown), 9d to 11½d; black, 11d to 13d per lb.; Hobart Town kangaroo, 3s 6d to 4s 3d per lb.; bag, 9s to 11s; bridle, 9s to 10s 6d per side; basils, 5s 9d to 10s per dozen. Tallow: The great rise in the London market has not been felt to the same extent here so far, but doubtless ere long prices here will range thus—Beef, £30 to £32; mutton, £32 to £33 per ton. Trade parcels will also be dearer. Horns and bones are again in good demand, and prices are very satisfactory. Hair continues to command good rates. Kangaroo skins, if large and good, sell readily, but small and inferior lots are difficult to quit. Oils: Neat-foot, 4s; black, 3s. per gallon. Bark: Hobart Town, £6 15s per ton.—October 30.

Brunker and Wolfe.—Stations and Estates: We have had several inquiries during the past week for sheep properties, beyond this have nothing encouraging to report. The tone in business has not improved, and although the season promises all that need be desired so far as luxuriant pastures are concerned, the small returns derivable for stock, the stringency of the money market, and high rates of interests ruling, act concurrently against the successful negotiation of sales. We have some of the grandest property in the colony to offer at auction shortly, as well as have many stations and estates for private sale. Fat Cattle: We held our usual sale at the Victoria Yards, Petersham, on Wednesday; and buyers, who were in good attendance, anticipating that greatly reduced values would rule at Homebush the following day, from the fact that upwards of 1600 head being advertised for sale, "and certain to be in," declined to concede increased values. We had an exceedingly dull sale, but succeeded in clearing consignments at values quite equal to Monday's rates. Our sales were—74 bullocks (G. Loder's) at £3 17s 3d, 106 bullocks (J. Wittycombe's) at £3 2s 6d, 26 cows (ditto) at £2 10s 6d; 75 bullocks (G. Loder's) at £4 2s 2d; 48 bullocks (L. Horne's) at £4 5s to £5, 16 ditto (G. Loder's) at £3 18s to £4 14s; 45 head (C. S. Capp) bullocks, £3 13s 6d to £4 6s; cows, £3 14s to £3 15s; 169 head (T. H. Cullen's) bullocks, at £3 4s to £1 14s; cows, £3 5s to £3 12s. Fat Sheep: There has been a small supply to hand this week, and prices have improved fully 2s per head. We sold 217 wethers, Walhallows, at 12s; 12 ditto, ditto, at 10s 6d; 160 ditto, ditto, at 12s 2d; 900, from Piallaway, at 9s 6d; 40 ditto, at 9s 7d; 69 ditto, Walhallows, at 12s 2d; 366 ditto, from Liverpool Plains, at 9s to 9s 6d; 249 ewes (Cooper's), at 6s 3d to 6s 4d; 85 ditto (Bowman's), 8s 3d to 9s 1d; and quote 60-lb. wethers 13s to 13s 6d; 56-lb. ditto to 12s 6d, 52-lb. ditto to 12s, 48-lb. ditto 11s. Sales at Homebush were confined to two flocks, penned on Thursday, 2000 shorn wethers (Richmond's), about 52-lb., good quality, made 8s to 8s 4d, and about the same number of wethers from Bando, a few of which were taken at 13s 6d. We sold our consignments by auction at the Victoria Yards, Petersham, and privately in lots. Fat Calves: These are arriving more plentifully, a large number coming coastwise. Prices are about 10s a head lower, 25s for best vealers being top quotations. Fat Lambs: Medium lambs were again plentiful, and sales were dull at nominal values. Our consignments arrived as usual in splendid condition, and sold as follows:—52 merinos at 10s 9d; 18 ditto at 12s 6d; 29 at 12s; 19 crossbreds at 9s 6d; 75 merinos at 9s 6d; 5 ditto at 9s; 20 ditto at 7s; 75 ditto at 9s 6d; 5 at 9s; 19 crossbreds at 9s 6d. Store Cattle: The low prices ruling for fat stock operates against the conclusion of sales under this head. A large number are required for stocking paddocks, and if vendors would submit to the altered state of things in regard to reduced values, some extensive sales could be made. Store Sheep: We have several flocks of first-class wethers to offer for private sale; delivery after shearing.—October 31.

Griffiths and Weaver.—Stations: We have no improvement to note as yet, but the increased value of wool and other colonial produce, and the prospect at no distant date of the successful opening up of a large export trade in frozen meat (the first shipment of which will be dispatched to London next month), leads us to think that pastoral matters have at last reached their lowest point, and that the confidence of capitalists will soon be restored in securities of this class. Fat Cattle: Prices realized have been the lowest for many years, the depression being intensified by holding sales at Petersham as well as at Homebush, thereby splitting up the buyers and reducing competition. Although there is no actual rise in value, the closing sales at Homebush on Thursday were more buoyant, so that, by the Associated Agents carefully regulating the various lots of cattle coming forward, we hope to be able to report a marked improvement in the course of a fortnight or three weeks. Best beef, 10s per 100 lbs; a few picked pens of extra quality and light weight, to 11s. Fat Sheep: No fat sheep were offered on Monday. On Thursday about 4000 were yarded at Homebush, which, with other lots direct to the trade and sold on their account, made up a supply rather under requirements. Best woolly wethers to 13s 6d, shorn ditto to 8s 4d. Store Stock: No business doing.—October 30.

Ross and Hipgrave.—Stations: There is nothing fresh to report under this heading, and as shearing is going on on most of the stations, we do not expect any sales of importance being made till the beginning of the new year. Since our last we have been treating for two sheep properties, but at present unable to do business. Fat Cattle: Market again glutted this week. The number forward at Homebush being 1700 odd, and 200 odd at Petersham, and a further decline in prices had to be submitted to. Best beef can only be quoted at 10s 6d to 11s per 100 lbs. Fat Sheep: On Monday there were not any forward, and only 4000 were penned at Homebush on Thursday. Owing to the short supply prices advanced from 1s 6d to 2s per head. Quotations: Best wethers in wool, 13s 6d; shorn wethers, from 8s to 8s 6d. Store Cattle: Owing to the extremely low prices now ruling for fats, stores are hard to quit at vendors' idea of value. We have had inquiries for good fattening bullocks, and are now having some fine lots inspected, and hope to report sales in our next. Store Sheep: Most of the lots that were in the market are now withdrawn from sale. We are closing for one large lot of wethers, and could readily place 20,000 more.—October 31.

Sullivan and Simpson.—Stations: We have during the week sold a small station, full particulars of which we will give in due course, and if vendors would only be a little more moderate in their expectations, several properties would change hands. Fat Cattle: Our remarks last week equally apply this, viz., that the market is considerably over-supplied, and very low prices have to be submitted to. On both sale days this week the sales have been but poorly attended. No doubt this is owing to the large quantity of meat now sold in the dead meat market, and best pens of bullocks can now be only stated as worth 11s per 100 lbs.; light weights and prime quality say at 12s per 100 lbs; fair to good, 10s, and even these low prices would not be obtainable had it not been for the assistance of the Sydney Meat Company purchasing largely, and as we have so often said before, if this company were to receive 2 per cent. on all sales cattle would improve in value 20s. per head. We have this week sold 129 cows and bullocks, on account of Mr. J. C. Ryrie, at an average of £3 10s 11d. Fat Sheep: The supply only equal to trade requirements, and we think now the great glut is over, but we caution the graziers from starting too many because they see a slight rise in the market, or the result will be that we shall have them all arriving at once and again glutting the market, when very low prices will have to be submitted to. All descriptions of sheep are worth 1s per head more this than last, the best wethers in the market selling at 13s 6d in small lots, but they were extra good and had fine fleeces. Best shorn wethers brought 8s to 8s 4d, and all others proportionately. Store Stock: A moderate demand for this class of stock, but owing to the low price of fat cattle purchasers will not give vendors' reserves. Thus very few sales are being effected.—October 31.

P. N. Trebeck.—Stations: I have had various inquiries for small stations, but no sales have resulted. The scarcity of money still makes station business very dull. Store Cattle: The low prices of fat stock prevents any activity in this description of business. Bullocks are being offered at lower rates, say at 45s to 50s on breeders' stations. No sales of mixed lots reported. Store Sheep: Until the flocks are arranged after shearing, no large sales are likely to take place. Wethers are worth 4s 6d to 5s 6d, according to quality. No inquiries for mixed sheep. Fat Cattle: This market is in a very low state, 10s to 11s per 100 lbs., being about the best price obtainable for good quality beef, and 7s to 8s per 100 lbs. for mediumy. The Sydney Meat Co. take a good many weekly, and help to keep prices up a little. Fat Sheep: These still continue to hold a good price, and the market has an upward tendency. Some 6000 were yarded for the week's supply. 56-lb. wethers, in wool, are worth from 11s to 12s; and shorn, from 6s to 8s, according to quality.—October 31.

Harrison, Jones, and Devlin.—Stations: Nothing fresh to report under this heading since our last. No change noticeable in inquiry. Fat Cattle: 1744 yarded for the week. Agents had no alternative but to submit the whole of their respective consignments, as to have held over, say, one-half, to a future sale day would have made matters worse, and have caused a greater depression than hitherto existing. There is no doubt that the supply at present exceeds the demand, and we fear but little reaction will take place until the glut is completely worked off. Although the trade were well represented, Monday's prices showed a further decline, and best beef did not sell at over 10s per 100 lbs., and even then with difficulty. The quality of cattle offered was good, with one or two exceptions. On Thursday scarcely any change was noticeable from the unsatisfactory state of affairs recorded on Monday, the supply again being far beyond requirements, and the result of day's business could not be expected to show better returns, although no material alteration was noticeable. We cannot quote prime beef more than 10s to 11s; medium, 9s to 9s 6d, per 100 lbs. We sold 101 mixed (South) to £4 18s; 20 bullocks (Bros), at £3 17s 1d; 42 (Chapman), £2 18s 5d; 8 cows (Chapman), £2 10s 4d; 70 bullocks (Chapman), £2 8s 6d; 14 cows (Chapman), £2 4s 7d; 91 cows (P. H. Osborne), £3 5s; 105 bullocks (Ostler and Co.), £3 12s 1d; 26 cows (Ostler and Co.), £3 14s 6d; 36 calves (Bros), to 27s. Fat Sheep: 6056 penned for the week's consumption, and although this is a short supply there was no alteration in prices from those quoted in our last, attributable to the price of beef at the Abattoirs. We quote 56 lbs. (in wool) at 12s; shorn, 8s; 50 lbs. (in wool), 9s 6d; shorn, 7s 6d; and lighter weights in proportion. We sold 100 wethers (rail) at 11s 6d, 123 lambs (Lewington) to 1s, 30 sheep (North) to 9s 6d, 80 wethers (rail) to 13s 6d, 22 wethers (Lewington) to 9s 1d, 93 sheep (Lewington) to 9s 1d. Store Cattle: Fat cattle market has caused great depression here also, and low prices now ruling give no inducement to owners to quit. Store Sheep: Good inquiry for suitable lots from the shears, more particularly in wethers for fattening, as also young ewes.—October 30.

Pitt, Son, and Badgery.—Stations: Nothing fresh to report under this heading. Fat Cattle: 2000 forward. Of these about 900 were yarded on Monday, about 200 at Petersham on Wednesday, and the balance on Thursday. Sales this week were exceedingly dull, the more so on account of the splitting up of the buyers at different sale yards. This state of things we do not think will occur again, as owners must now see how disastrous it is to their interests to have their stock sold away from the regular yards. We think prices have now reached their lowest, ebb, and hope for something better in the course of a few weeks. We quote best beef worth 10s to 11s per 100 lbs. Our sales have been 175 bullocks, A. A. Co.'s, from Warrah, at £4 7s 6d—topping the market; 193 ditto, J. M'Elhone's, at £3 18s; 171 mixed, late S. Cox's, at £3 9s; 1sd bullocks, Wm. Busby's, at £3; 123 ditto, Swift, M'Carthy, and Co.'s at £3 12s. Fat sheep: The supply was much less this week than for some time past, and as the carcase men were buyers, sales were brisk at considerably better prices than lately quoted. The great rise in tallow in London has increased the value of sheep for boiling, and we may now look for a better range of prices. We quote 56-lb. wethers worth 12s; ditto shorn, 8s to 8s 6d. Our sales have been portion of a flock of 3000 (Bando) at from 13s to 13s 6d; 400 of these were taken by the Meat Company. Calves: Supply was greatly in excess of requirements, and prices very low. We sold 91 of Donkin's, to 16s 6d; 36 of Badgery and Cropper's, to 17s; 35 of E. W. Badgery's, to 19s 6d. Lambs: Full supply of medium forward, which sold very low. Prime lambs were scarce, and made from 10s to 14s.—October 31.

William Inglis.—Fat Cattle: The supply continues as large as ever, and there does not at present appear any indication of improvement in prices for some time to come. Best beef will not bring more than 12s 6d per 100 lb. Sheep: The supply was shorter this week, and prices improved about 1s 6d per head. Best wethers in fleece, bringing up to 13s 6d; shorn to 8s 6d. I sold 101 (P. Ford's), at 11s 6d. Milch cows: There were a large number in to-day, but the bidding was dull, and several were not sold. I sold 46 from £2 5s to £8, and a few dry cows from 15s to £2. Calves: The market was again completely glutted, and low prices had to be submitted to. I sold 29 (Powell's), 10s to 25s; 20 (Sullivan's), 10s to 20s; and 71 others, in smaller lots, from 4s 6d to 23s 6d. Lambs: Market dull, and only a few poor ones to hand. Pigs: There were a large number in to-day. I sold 214, from 11s 6d to 41s; and 50 store pigs, 7s 6d to 13s 6d. Horses: I have sold over a hundred head during the week, but in spite of the large number arriving, the demand for good ones of every description continues unabated. My sales were—50 (F. Buffier's), heavy portion, £16 to £37; lighter, £5 to £10 8s; 17 (Hamilton's), £20 10s to £32; 30 (C. and R. Dunn's), heavy portion, £15 10s to £25; lighter, £5 to £11 10s; 4 (Coyte's), £13 to £21 10s; 7 (Dawson's), £4 5s to £7 5s; the balance in singles, from £1 15s to £29; and one draught filly (J. Quirk's), at £30 10s.—October 30.

Wilkinson, Graves, Minchin, and Lavender's Sydney, Wagga Wagga, and Hay report.—Fat Cattle: The market was equally bad as last week, or very nearly so. No alteration worth mentioning. Best beef, 10s to 11s per 100 lbs. Quotations—Prime heavy bullocks, £5 to £5 15s; prime bullocks, £4 to £5 10s; useful, £3 to £3 10s; best cows, £2 15s to £3 5s. Fat Calves: Quotations—Best calves, £1 10s to £1 15s; useful, £1 to £1 5s; small and inferior, 10s to 15s. Fat Sheep: The very low prices ruling last week had the effect of keeping supplies short, and prices rose 1s 6d to 2s per head. Quotations—No cross-breds forward—Best merino wethers in wool, 12s to 13s 6d; good useful 10s 6d to 11s; best shorn wethers, say 52 lbs, 8s to 8s 6d; useful shorn wethers, 6s 6d to 7s 6d; no ewes forward. Fat Lambs: No alteration to report. Quotations—Good lambs, 6s to 7s; a few extra heavy and prime, 10s to 11s 9d; others, 4s 6d to 6s 6d. We sold 400 for Messrs. Hebden and Sons, Gogeldrie, at market rates. Store Cattle: The fall in prices for fat cattle has had a depressing effect upon store cattle sales, and it is more difficult than before to bring buyers and sellers together. Sellers ask 60s to 70s for good bullocks, purchasers offer about 50s to 55s for good lots. Store Sheep: Wethers off the shears in Riverina are in fair demand; breeding ewes from the same district are also inquired for. We have this week sold 9000 ewes for Messrs. Russell and Shaw, Eli Elwa Station, Riverina, to Messrs. Alison, Brothers, Cobar, and have almost closed for other large lots to various purchasers. Pure Stock: We have this week sold 200 pure Australian merino rams for Messrs. Russell and Shaw, Eli Elwa station, Riverina, to Messrs. Alison, Brothers, Cobar. Stations: Tightness of the money market prevents transactions. We have some good properties on our hands, both squattages and freeholds.

HORSE MARKET.

George Kiss reports a good demand for useful horses the past week, at rather improved prices. Good harness horses scarce, and bring the following rates:—Stylish harness horses, with style and breakage, from £20 to £40; lighter descriptions from £5 to £15; not many heavy draught horses coming to hand, and for which the inquiry is not so brisk. At the Camperdown Yards, I sold a lot of light horses for Mr. W. Robertson, ranging from £2 5s to £15 5s.—October 31.

T. Cosgrove and Co.—The market without change since last report. Harness horses with style and substance are in good demand, and any coming to hand meet with ready sale. We disposed of the following at the Bazaar:—For Mr. W. A. Johnston, 2 harness horses, £47 5s; W. J. Willey, buggy mare, £15 10s; J. Birnley, harness mare, £12; J. Watson, van horse, £16 10s; C. Jones, harness horse, £15; D. Egan, dray horse, £18; J. Davis, van horse, £11; A. Thompson, grey harness horse, £13; E. Johnston, buggy mare, £14; J. Macey, saddle horse, £8 7s 6d; A. Cooper, cart horse, £12; J. Kelley, light harness horse, £15; J. Fenton, saddle horse, £11; besides a number of inferior horses at prices ranging from 15s to £5 2s 6d.—October 30.

BOROUGH COUNCIL.

Waverley.—The monthly Council meeting was held on Tuesday, 10th October. Present: The Mayor (Mr. J. Macpherson), Alderman Baglin, Fletcher, Moore, Newman, Simpson, and Wiley. Minutes of previous meeting read and confirmed. Correspondence—Copies of letters dispatched since last meeting were read and approved. The following letters were received:—From J. S. V. Welch, requesting a reply to his last letter, respecting a gas lamp for Ebley-street. Alderman Moore promised to bring the matter before the Council at their next meeting. From the Municipal Council of Inverell, asking the co-operation of this Council in obtaining an amendment of the Municipalities' Act of 1867. Resolved that the Council-clerk inform them that they will heartily co-operate. From Messrs. W. Spring and J. Hope, asking that the kerbing and tar paving in front of their premises in South Head Road be laid, they agreeing to pay half the cost. It was resolved that the Council kerb the premises referred to on the usual conditions, but they regret their inability to lay the tar paving at present. From S. H. Banks, drawing attention to the bad state of Ebley-street. To be considered next meeting. The Finance Committee's report, recommending the payment of £147 11s. 11d., on general account, and £66 3s. 6d. on special account, were read and adopted. Moved by Alderman Newman, seconded by Alderman Wiley,—"That the footway adjoining the Public school be kerbed and guttered, and that application be made to the Council of Education to bear half the cost of same." Carried. 2. Moved by Alderman Baglin, seconded by Alderman Fletcher—"That the sum of £5 be voted to clear Victoria, Bourke, and Market streets, to the borough of Randwick, and that the Mayor take legal advice in preventing any interference therewith by the City Council." Carried. At this stage of the proceedings a deputation consisting of Messrs. Walker, Cooper, and Simpson waited upon the Council to inquire whether they intended taking any immediate action in the establishment of a School of Arts. After some discussion the deputation was informed that the matter would be considered, and they would be advised of the result.

ADDITIONAL MAIL NEWS

BY THE R. M. S. ASSAM.

At the time we went to press yesterday morning our telegraphic summary of English and Eastern news (received through Reuter's agency) brought by the R. M. S. Assam, which arrived at King George's Sound on Thursday morning, was still coming through. We give the continuation of the message below.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.)

LONDON, SEPT. 26.

The Turkestan Gazette states that at the beginning of July Narrberdy Khan, chief of the Tekke-Turcomans, arrived at Merv, in order to request the assistance of the inhabitants against the Russians. Half of the Turcomans in the Mostyn Mer. district promised to co-operate, but others, considering the maintenance of friendship with Russia more politic, refused.

Intelligence has been received at Simla via Persia, and confirmed by news from two authentic sources, that the advance column of the Russian expedition against the Tekke-Turcomans has been defeated at Gukke Tepe, with the loss of 700 killed. The force was falling back on Burwa.

An official telegram, published in the Journal Ducacase (sic), states that on the 6th instant the vanguard of the Russian advance column passed the night at Guaran, the main body remaining at Artchinan. Rumours are still current that the Tekkes were congregating at Gukke-Teppe, with the intention of offering an armed opposition to the Russian advance. The Russian expedition against the Turcomans will be energetically pushed forward in order that operations may be terminated this autumn.

In addition to the office of temporary Governor of Odessa, General Todleben has been appointed commander-in-chief of the troops in the military districts of Odessa.

A number of Chinese troops are being moved towards the Kuldja frontier, with a view probably of taking possession of the territory to be surrendered by Russia in conformity with the new treaty. Haing Khan Twy is organizing a force among the inhabitants of the Ilga Schal district, with the intention of attempting to recover Kashgar from the Chinese.

A telegram from Madrid states that it has not been definitely decided that the representative of Spain at Vienna shall be entrusted with the mission of asking the hand of the Arch-duchess Marie Christine from the Emperor of Austria, in the name of King Alfonso.

An official decree of the Captain-General of Cuba is published, by which the province of Santiago de Cuba is declared to be in a state of siege. It is anticipated that a free pardon will be offered to all insurgents who surrender within a fortnight.

Intelligence has been received in New York from Havanna stating that the insurgents had attacked the village of Mayaki, and have been joined by the local volunteers. The garrison, however, resisted for three days, when reinforcements arrived, and the insurgents were routed. Advices from Havanna, dated 20th instant, state that telegraphic communication between Holique and Santiago is interrupted. Three leaders of the late insurrection have been assassinated at Colon on suspicion of sympathising with the present rising in Cuba. General Ranco has declared that the assassins shall be punished. A letter from Havanna, dated 23rd states that three Cuban planters, owners respectively of 4000, 1200, and 800 slaves, have granted the latter their liberty. The slaves, however, entered into a contract with the planters to continue in their service for five years. Other slaveowners intend to pursue a similar course.

The Spanish Government has decided to send a detachment of 5000 men to Cuba. It is stated that several deputies have resolved to bring forward a motion in the Chamber for the immediate abolition of slavery in Cuba without any indemnity being paid to owners.

During his recent stay at Paris Lord Salisbury had an interview with M. Waddington. The results are understood to be very satisfactory as regards the Greek and Egyptian questions. It is stated that Lord Salisbury expressed the opinion that it was advisable henceforth to avoid any misunderstanding between the two Great Powers and the new Khedive, so as to facilitate a solution of the difficulties with which he has to contend. Mr. Baring and M. de Blignieres will consequently receive instructions in this sense, and will be enjoined to steer clear of anything that could lead to fresh complications.

As regards Greece, Lord Salisbury did not disguise his wish to see the frontier question with Turkey arranged, deeming a speedy solution essential in the interest of Turkey. The interview resulted in a complete understanding on both points.

General Grant has met with an enthusiastic welcome at San Francisco.

Last week the number of deaths from yellow fever at Memphis was 31, making a total of 316 since the outbreak of the epidemic. It is announced that, although fresh cases and deaths from yellow fever are perceptibly decreasing in number in that town, it is still unsafe for absentees to return.

The Dominion Exhibition was opened at Ottawa on the 24th by the Marquis of Lorne and the Princess Louise. The Governors of the State of Vermont and New Hampshire and about 20,000 persons were present.

BOMBAY, OCT. 10.

Owing to the very unsatisfactory state of affairs in Mandalay since Colonel Browne's departure last August, the studied discourtesy of Burmese officials, and the isolation to which the Residency was reduced, the Government of India resolved to direct Mr. St. Barbe to take an early opportunity of withdrawing the whole British establishment. The escort accordingly embarked unmolested on the 7th October. All is quiet in Mandalay. Due notice was given to Bahmo and the British subjects at Mandalay.

Yakoob Khan and his son, with a suite of 45 members and an escort of about 200, arrived at the British camp at Kushi on the 27th September. Some of the tribes have recommenced their acts of annoyance to our troops, notwithstanding the friendly assurances of their head men. A large party of Mongols attacked a convoy near Shutargurdan on the 22nd September, killing 24 men and carrying off plunder. Another attack on our position at Shutargurdan was made on the 2nd instant, which was repulsed. A preventive expedition under General Tytler is to be sent against the Zaimukat or Orkoes tribes, the inhabitants of the valley beyond Thull.

General Roberts's advance beyond Shutargurdan has been rather delayed, owing to want of transport. He, therefore, had to send back the waggons and await their arrival. On the 6th General Roberts telegraphed from Charasia that reconnoitring parties were sent out on the roads to Cabul that morning, and reported the enemy advancing with greater force from the city. Soon afterwards the range of hills between Charasia and Cabul were crowded with troops and the populace, while the Ghilzais appeared on the hills. Both flanks reported that the road to Zhilabad was threatened, along which Macpherson was advancing with a large convoy of stores and ammunition. A warning was sent to him, and some assistance. It was absolutely necessary to carry the height in front before evening, and Colonel Baker, with a force consisting of all arms, was told off for the duty. After an obstinate resistance he drove the enemy from the main hill, capturing 12 guns. A turning movement was then made to the left, when he was soon hotly engaged, and height after height was carried in gallant style. Our loss was comparatively small. That of the enemy is unknown; but it is supposed to be considerable. Large numbers of Ghilzais are still in the neighbourhood; but General Roberts hoped to advance within a short distance of Cabul on the 7th. The Ameer states that the Bala-Hissar is no longer in possession of the people. He can trust his family now in the city. General Roberts is sanguine the country will soon quieten down, though the people are so opposed that it is useless to expect it at present. Great excitement prevails in the city and the country generally. General Roberts was attacked and fired upon by Mongols and Ghilzais in the Hazdur district. Deputy Surgeon-General Townsend was severely wounded in the face, and five Sikhs were killed. All is Dakha, quiet at Candahar and in the Khyber as well as at which the British occupied unopposed. Hughes's column has reached Khelat-i-Ghilzai, and is passing on to Ghusnai.

The Governor of Bombay has left for Upper Sinde to superintend the laying down of the Bolan Pass railway.

Government will allow special correspondents within the fortress as soon as Cabul is occupied and communication is securely established.

Mersey Kessowjel, the notorious mill director, has been sentenced to four years' imprisonment.

GALLE, OCT. 16.

The Ghilzais, Kopistans, Loyardis, and other tribes which assembled first have returned to their homes. Kizzulbasheo and the most influential men of Cabul have sent their respects to General Roberts, who made a public entry into Cabul on the 12th, without opposition. The mutineers having failed after their defeat outside Cabul, they were completely routed, and no more fighting is expected at Cabul.

OUR MELBOURNE LETTER.

MELBOURNE, OCT. 27.

If this present Ministry should go down to posterity as a Ministry of cobblers, there would be no great wonder. For they make nothing, they waste much, they break continually, and their principal work is patching. They are patching the tariff at the present time, and doing it very badly. They never seem to have a plan. It occurs to them that they will put on some more duties, and they put them on without even satisfying themselves as to whether they are putting them on in the right place. They object to be taught, because they think themselves infallible, and their followers go on following them, because not to follow them always might result in their losing the opportunity of following any longer. Thus, they have resolved to put a duty upon what are known as patent medicines. But it is shown that some kinds of cod-liver oil, although called by the name of the person who prepares it, is an altogether different thing from those nostrums whose sole success is derived from the secresy of their preparation. To comprehend the reason of such a distinction, however, seems to be beyond the limits of the Berry intellect, and so all drugs which are, in any way, associated with the name of the manufacturer must pay duty. One member of the Government, indeed, declared that cod-liver oil, especially, ought to pay duty, as it was nasty filty stuff, and the less people took of it the better for them. This new kind of fiscal therapeutics is very curious, and is on a par with that "Liberal" pathology which has been lately expressing itself in the direction of dogs. Dogs, it is urged, sometimes suffer from hydrophobia, and dogs are occasionally imported. Therefore, in order to prevent the introduction of hydrophobia, we must prohibit the importation of dogs; therefore, all dogs brought by any ship must be put to death. Seeing, however, that we have never had hydrophobia in the colony, and that it is believed by those who known there are conditions in the climate unfavourable for its development, one cannot well explain this sudden alarm about rabies. But I suppose it occurred to them that hydrophobia might occur, and that, as it had not occurred, it would have to be imported, and that the execution of every dog likely to have hydrophobia was an indispensable necessity in the direction of prophylaxis. But some of the acts of the Berry Government are to be explained only by remembering that it is one of the characteristics of undisciplined minds to adhere to a determination for the simple reason that the determination, having been made it must be kept. Nothing is more common among uneducated people than to hear them declare in this fashion: "I said I wouldn't, and I won't; and I don't care what you say, I won't." Only in this way is it possible to explain Mr. Berry's resolve to persist in the stock-tax. Everybody knows that the stock-tax is a mistake. But the stock-tax was a pet scheme of Mr. Berry's, and he will persist in it in the face of all the evils which have resulted from this impost.

Another instance of Mr. Berry's extreme narrow-mindedness is shown in his extreme hostility to the Harbour Trust. The other day a deputation of the Trust went to him to ascertain if the Government would not undertake to spread upon the low-lying lands of West Melbourne the silt which the Trust would undertake to land on the river's bank. There was every reason why the Premier should accept such a proposition, as the land, which at present is valueless, would thereby be made valuable, and therefore, profitably salable. But Mr. Berry insisted that, to comply with the request would only be to subsidise the Trust, and he took occasion to declare his intention of bringing in a bill to abolish the Trust. Now, there is absolutely no reason whatever for interfering with the Trust. It is turning out to be the most practically useful of all our public bodies, and considering the time it has been in existence, it has more to show in proof of its usefulness than any average half-dozen of our institutions. But Mr. Berry opposed it in its inception, for no other reason than that he was in Opposition in Parliament at the time its formation was determined upon and with that limited perception of consistency he resolves upon opposing it now, and today he is to propose in Council, that a body, the necessity of which was urged twenty years before it existed, and the value of which has been confessed by every one not biassed by unreasoning motives, is to be abolished, and the management of our river and harbour is to go back to departmental rule, which means the rule of doing nothing which can be avoided or evaded, but which has the large recommendation of greatly extending the area of Governmental patronage.

At this same meeting of the Cabinet, it is said the proposals relative to the stamp-tax upon insurance offices are to be modified. It has been conclusively shown that the effect upon life insurance offices will be to deter thrifty habits by increasing the cost of all policies, for of course the tax must fall upon the insurers and not upon the shareholders, but whether the Government have been moved by the representations to this effect so generally made, it would be rash to say. The greater probability is, that they have not been moved at all, but are going to concede only what is non-essential and unimportant. That, at any rate, is the general belief. Two bills are at this moment before Parliament, brought in by learned professors, namely, The Management of Towns Bill, by Professor Hearn, in the Council; and the University Bill, by Professor Pearson, in the Assembly. The former is, virtually, a consolidation of many Acts relating to Police Court business, and by all who know the capability of Professor Hearn for dealing with such a subject, its value is admitted without any question. But being a prominent member of the Constitutional party, it is not likely this useful measure of his will become law, at least in this present Parliament. Of the other measure, not much as yet is known, save that it proposes considerably to alter the constitution of the University Council. The general impression is that the Pearson Bill does not go far enough. No University Bill will be sufficient for University reform, which does not entirely take from the Council its legislative power, and limit that body to purely administrative duties. It is the arbitrary and virtually irresponsible power of the Council which has led to all the evils and abuses under which the University groans. The discussion of this Bill is expected to bring into play some very lively qualities which have long lain latent, if not dormant, and it is well known that the hyper-Conservative members of the University Council are in considerable terror as to the result. And speaking of Professor Hearn, or, as he prefers to be called, Dr. Hearn, being now Dean of the Faculty of Law, rather than Professor of History, it is proposed, as Sir Redmond Barry has declined to be put in nomination for President of the Social Science Congress, to elect Dr. Hearn to that office. As a learned man, and an author of repute, he has many claims, but, in respect of personal popularity, he is less likely to succeed in such a candidature.

The Governor has been to Clunes to open the cattle show. With him went Mr. Barry and some other of the Ministers. Among the much speaking was Mr. Berry's speech, in which he could not forego having a fling at the Council, and he was working himself into one of his frothy denunciations when the agricultural voice drowned his own, and he sat down aghast at the presumption of those farmers whom he had some time previously declared to be incapable of forming any opinion on public matters. It is not certain if he was convinced of his mistake, but it is certain that he was, for the moment, disconcerted, and probably he gathered food for reflection which may be useful to him.

The proposed testimonial to Mr. Burnett, the temperance lecturer, is said to be flagging. The truth is, that the testimonial business is becoming a nuisance, and it is a distinction for a man of any sort of conspicuousness not to be the recipient of a testimonial now-a-days.

LANDED IN HINDOSTAN.

BY J. HINGSTON.

"Eastward roll the stars of Heaven,
Westward tend the thoughts of men;
Let the man to Nature given Wander eastward now and then."

"A visit to India," said its last visitor from the stock of English Royalty, "has been the dream of my life!" He that said so had preceded it with a visit to Ceylon, as I have done, and I go now to take as large a look at India as he had. "Blessings on science and its handmaid—Steam!" sings one of our modern poets, and I repeat his words when thinking that by steam's agency alone I can find time to do such journey. Our fathers and grandfathers, that by calls of duty had India made their enforced home for a score of years, or more, at a time, saw but comparatively little of it. It has only lately been opened through its immense extent by the network of railways, that now alone enable the stranger to see the wonderful land, in nearly all its length and breadth.

For a wonderful land, indeed, is India!—an empire—and I may so rightly call it, from its lately created Empress, as large as is all Europe, omitting European Russia—one that runs through twenty-eight degrees of latitude, and has more square miles than I can decipher in the string of figures that are set down as representing them; that has two hundred and fifty millions of souls, excluding those Mahomeddan women about the possession of souls by whom there is an unsettled doubt—one of the branches of the "Eastern Question"—a vast country stretching away from that Bay of Bengal, that I am now about to cross, right away to Persia on the far west, and from Thibet and Tartary in the north to the Indian Ocean in the south. If it were a dream of a royal life to visit such a country, it is all a still greater dream as to how the little island of Britain, with its thirty-three millions or so of people, can really be the owner of it. Such is one of those facts that seem only real in dreams! When I say "really the owner," I look upon the ownership of nearly four-fifths as being that greater term that always includes the lesser. The independent native States, numbering but little over the odd fifty millions of India's inhabitants, are only semi-independent, and that only because it is policy to keep them so. Their rulers are but tributaries, and treated in that light generally. As the possessions in Hindoostan, of the French at Pondicherry, and the Portuguese at Goa, do not embrace more of population than a quarter of a million, they can be looked upon only as girls are in those families in which their brothers do not count them.

A land of romance is this Hindoostan altogether, and in past history as in present—one that seems to have had for a time every great nation as its owner—that has belonged to Egyptians, Bactrians, Medeans, Persians, Syrians, Greeks, Turks, Tartars, and Mongols; one also in which the Portuguese, Dutch, and French have effected a footing. Of the great nations of the past none have held greater sway, none as great in fact, as that held now by little England, and none have held their power longer. That such power is held and maintained here by a few thousands only, out of the comparatively few millions, of Great Britain, is the culminating wonder of all. That the handfull of whites left here should have the power they have to control the hundreds of millions, among whom they seem as lost and swamped, is beyond all comprehension, until the land has been traversed, and the truth seen.

Great Britain keeps tight hold of India, not for any particular profit that it brings to her exchequer. She does not live on its remittances, as the Hollanders do on those of Java. All its revenue, its fifty millions a year, are expended within it, and on the costly maintenance of its largely spread civil and military administration. It is useless to Britain, also, for purposes of settlement, and cannot be colonised. The climate has decided that much, and for seven months of the year a white man's life there is simple misery. Britain holds India merely as the brightest jewel in the British crown—keeping it for that reason only—and for much the same reason that all people keep jewels, to show the world that they can afford to do so! We see people wear diamonds that might be sold, and the proceeds invested to yield a good income. They prefer, however, to show their power to earn the income otherwise, and to keep the brilliants for mere pride, or what the Americans aptly express as "cussedness." Such are England's chief reasons for retaining India, for let me repeat again, that it is—all its statistics taken—no source of direct income to her exchequer.

It is on the morning of the next day, after leaving Ceylon, and after digesting all the above matter about India, that I get my first sight of the land. It is not a very prepossessing one at this point of view, but it has other recommendations to square it up. It is appropriately the first place of the English settling upon Hindoostance's shores that I now look upon—that low-lying Madras that is yet a good three-quarters of a mile away across the surf. This city by the sea looks very uninviting indeed. It lies all unsheltered by any rocky surroundings, and has no harbour or breakwater, nor much to speak of in the way of landing place. The long rolling billows break for ever on its low, sandy beach, in a mist of surfy spray, with a melancholy booming sound. The ship will lie here at anchor for two days, at this long distance from the shore—a shore that no one seems to show any anxiety whatever to get to. The gleeful faces that are seen elsewhere, when the prospect of shore offers to seafaring ones, are not seen here. There is a blackness of visage, and a silence that is ominous. That those have to go and must go, are preparing for it like soldiers going "to the front" on the next call. Landing at Madras is a serious business at all times, and particularly so at some, and this occasion is one of the some.

Black looking objects are to be noticed now and again on the crests of the surf. They prove to be a crowd of boats—the famous surf boats of Madras, that are coming energetically enough for the very apathetic passengers. They come as enthusiastically as a lot of poor relations coming to visit those who receive them, with the coldness that we do. We would be glad to dispense, if we could, with their call, and show it in keeping them waiting about, while we very leisurely get ready.

"The evil hour," to which in this case is added the certain ducking, must come. The captain, who has no need to land, and does not intend going nearer to shore than he now is, smiles upon the laggards, who regard the coming trouble much as we do having a tooth out. "The more you look at it the less you'll like it," he says, and that is the only crumb of comfort to be got from him. By this time twenty of the boats are around us, and the boatmen having got hold of chains and ropes, have scaled the vessel's side, and are on our decks. Their coming is the signal for everything in feminine shape sheering off down below, with little screams or some hurried excuses. Each surf boat is manned by no less than ten rowers and a steersman, and they all appear in the time-honoured, but little respected, clothing of our first parents!—only that, and sad to say, nothing more. In five minutes it is, as to look at our decks, as if Hades were emptying, and all the devils breaking loose. Our quarterdeck is full of them; and their lanky, black, dripping wet and unclothed appearance frightens away even the ship's cat, who bounds below to join the ladies.

A new terror is thus added to the dreaded landing. To cross those tossing billows is bad enough, and needs a stout heart; but to go with a dozen naked devils (of appropriate blackness) for company, adds to the trouble. Their nakedness and blackness are nothing to the hideous noises they make. The noise of the surf amid which they live has taught them a high key-note in conversation—the kind of voice we hear generally only through a speaking trumpet. By sheer habit, this voice becomes their natural one in conversation. It is also a little intensified now perhaps, in their nervous desire to get customers. The trouble is that there are twenty boats, each the size of a small barge, and only passengers enough for one. The tall, wet, black devils, with nothing on, come around with tin tickets, bearing the special number of their boats. To get a passenger to take one of these, is all their desire; as, by a bond of honour, he is then considered to be booked for that boat. It is for that sufficient reason that I am yelled at by hoarse voices in a strange tongue, and my fingers cut with the sharp edges of the metal tickets, thus pressed upon me. I fancy I must be about to cross the Styx, with Charons for ferrymen, and shall see Cerberus on the shore—the other part of the illusion, the heat, will be quite in keeping with such thought.

There are none of us but send maledictions on the memories of those who built Madras where it is. We hope that they meet the watery grave that they prepared for so many others—how many others will never be known. The sight of the boats themselves and the accommodation offered is most uninviting. They are rudely built and fastened with cocoanut fibre cordage, in place of copper nails. From side to side run across the eight feet of their width six sticks of bamboo, as seats for the rowers. Most uncomfortable seats they appear for the unclothed boatmen, and yet they must be stuck to, to avoid a fall into the pool of bilge water that waits for them, five or six feet beneath. For footboard is the next bamboo on which the nearest rowers sit. The passengers have a bettter seat provided at the stern, across which a canvas screen apology is rigged up, should any lady passenger happen to be on board.

Without such screen, the prospect of the rolling billows, the black rowers showing in grim contrast to the white-tipped surf all around them, and the strange chorus they keep up while rowing, would be perhaps too alarming to feminine nerves.

What are used for oars to these surf boats are long bamboos, having triangular piece of wood, of the size of a ship's log, fastened with cordage to the end. The boat necessarily floats so high, that though these sculls are lengthy, the water is only caught by the little addition so made to the end of them. Everybody knows his own business best, of which I think when I see no ship's boat put to use as usual. Our second officer and purser are going on shore, but it is to one of these boats they commit themselves, and not to the care of the ship's boats and to men of our crew. The trouble connected with the boatmen is increased by their awkward way of running off with luggage. To get the luggage is, in their idea, to get the passenger to follow. Missing portmanteaus, sought for on deck, are found in some of the boats, the occupants of which impudently plead that "sahib coming." "Sahib and mem sahib" mean white man and woman, in the talk of the black natives of this shore. These men take cuffs and blows from little martinets and midshipmen, whom they could fling over the ship's side with one hand. Yet they are brave men—valuing not their lives at a pin's fee, and living among similar dangers to those encountered by the adventurous Deal life-boatmen of the Kentish coast.

They make mistakes occasionally, and find correction for them in this world or the next. If the boat be not timed properly, to meet the coming billow that rolls a wall of water towards it, no more is seen of that boat for some seconds. It is, when next seen, bottom upwards somewhere, and amid the white surf are little black specks, tossing about, with yellow sticks in their hands. These be the ten boatmen and the steersman that missed the way. The latter has now bamboo oar to help him shorewards. To make a landing they have now a fearful fight with the waves. Their swimming is good enough for any distance in fair water, but strength gets exhausted in the tossing about they receive here, and occasionally the cormorant shark snaps a leg off one of them. This horrible fish, on getting among a drowning number of men, goes around snapping and mutilating all—not confining its attention to one. I afterwards saw a shark tempted to swallow a heated brick from the galley fire. The brick was wrapped in flannel, and coated with fat. The flannel was burned through in three minutes from the time the tempting morsel was swallowed, and then the burning of the shark's interior began. Its agonies were frightful, and occurred all on the surface of the water, which its tail lashed into a foam for a mile around. Yet not a sympathetic feeling was shown by any one! Such cruelty to animals was never exceeded, but the shark, it was evident, is excluded from humanity by instinct, and is outside of all human sympathy.

Three of us are for one boat, into which it is a preliminary trouble enough to get—so boisterous is the water. We are caught, one by one, by the boatmen off the ship's side steps, to which we hold on by aid of the chain. Down goes the boat, twenty or thirty feet at once, and I look upwards from its stern at the steps I have so lately left, and now at the height of a house-top above me. We get out from among the other boats at last, without smashing or getting smashed upon them, and then our ten rowers settle to their work, with a chorus of yells that would make a good overture to the Devil's Opera, should it ever be written. With all the noise they made, it was yet to be noticed how close was their attention to business; how they watched the coming billow, rose on its side, mounted twenty feet or more to its summit, rode there for an instant as a small crown to its white top, and then sped downwards to the depth below, and all by the rude-looking aid of their spoon-like sculls. Looking to the great length of these things, to the men who handled them, and to the peril they assisted one over, it was to be well understood that it did require "a long spoon to feed with the devil."

We reach the shore with a full sense of man's utter helplessness in such water, and are sure that a landsman only could have written the nonsense about "a home on the rolling deep." The boatmen are quite independent of landing-places, and beach their boat in the primitive style of things before jetties were invented. Half-a-dozen of them throw themselves over the side at the right moment and then, before the returning water, rushing from the shore, can suck us out to sea again, we are hauled up on the beach, beyond its power. We are not, however, by a long way, out of the water, and so, to save walking knee deep in it, are carried up the beach in pick-a-back fashion. There is no landing in the world that makes such a lasting memory, as this one at Madras. That at Amoy, in China, is something like it, but of a milder kind; and that at Samarang, in Java, comes very near to it. At Samarang, however, we should have been forbidden to land, under such circumstances as those at Madras; but here is Dutch interference with the freedom of mankind. The danger looks worse from the shore than it did from the ship. As I sit now and look at it, I shudder at the thought of having to go through it all again next day, in getting back to our vessel.

The sea margin, as some one called the sands, is a wide one at Madras. It is as busily populated, this sandy beach, as that of Margate in full season. Hawkers are always on the look-out for a stranger's face, as also are the omnipresent beggars. The crowd of people appear all to have avocation of some sort, but the idle element of the sea-bathing quarter alluded to, is here quite wanting—as also are the bathing machines. A bathing cart, run out on this beach, would, horse and all, be likely carried away, and that at once, beyond all help, by the surf. Nigger minstrels would have no chance either, where all the population about are naturally of their burnt-cork colour. The boatmen here would never think either of proposing their services to pleasure-seekers, and suggesting, as at Margate, "a nice smooth day, Sir, for a sail."

Various efforts have been made to provide Madras with landing stage accommodation. Jetties have been, at different times erected, and, some stormy morning, no trace has been found of them. After a time another has been commenced, only to share the same fate, as will be the case with the ironwork one now standing. The boatmen avoid pier dues, and keep themselves independent of jetties, by landing passengers in the old fashion, to which they might have any day to return, should they give it up. When Royalty was lately at Madras, a novelty in the way of illumination was tried, with, it is told me, great success. As the surf is such a memorable feature of the shore, it was suggested by some genius that it should be lighted up. The idea, strange as it seemed, was successfully carried out. All the surf boatmen were provided with a lot of lanterns, and directed to keep in a line so many hundred feet from the shore. The dancing line of lights, as it rose and fell with the surf, had a picturesque effect, and when low down in the trough of the waves, shone well through the wall of water then in front of it, and thus, to those on shore, illuminated the surf.

The first thing observable at Madras is the red-brick dusty appearance that everything wears. The soil, on which the long straggling sea-side city lies, is of reddish earth, that blows about and leaves a plain mask upon everything. Such helps, quite needlessly, to a greater feeling of warmth than what the sun gives, and that is so fierce that my first thought is to hoist the necessary umbrella. The public buildings of the city are mostly on the strand, and can be seen from the sands to the best advantage. For a further perambulation I take a guide, who just knows sufficient English to say that he does so—which statement proves to be untrue. He is useful, however, in keeping the beggars at a distance, at which service alone he shows any zeal, or even intelligence.

This particular part of India is that in which the worship of Juggernaut was most observed. That deity is called "Jagannath" now, but the spelling of all Hindoo words alters periodically. On a fenced-off piece of land, between two buildings, and under a thatch of palm leaves, I see, for the first time, one of the famous cars of Juggernaut, that we have all so often seen pictured. Here stands the immense, weighty, crushing machine, in all its hideous reality, covered with carvings, projecting bosses of metal, and spiky cannon balls hung around and about it from top to bottom. Like a man-of-war out of commission, it is here laid up, and its murderous use is no longer allowed. When regarding its huge, broad, and heavy wheels, one's thoughts would go to considering how many human beings they had crushed.

Such immolation of devotees to Jagannath is, like the Suttee observance, or burning of widows, now a prohibited thing. The cars are brought out, however, once a year; and believers, fond of hard labour, and of so working out their salvation, drag them about for a time, under proper supervision. The supervision is necessary to keep off the would-be suicides. I saw several of these cars about in the day's walk, and thought that, but for their immense weight and clumsiness of build, they would pay to ship off as curios to other lands. The wheels are broad as those of steam street-rollers, and those who sought their aid to crush out life must have found it a certainty, and a one act affair altogether. Hundreds of men are necessary to the dragging of these strange illustrations of the Brahminical faith—to which creed Jagannath pertains.

As much pity as was needed for Jagannath believers was needed for the miserable horses that are to be seen in the general run of Madras vehicles. The beggars that come about one have always some outward defect, disease, or deformity, to obtrude as their claim for charity; and, in like way, the horses in their poor condition demand commiseration. In any European place, such scrubby, worn-out looking animals would not be allowed; and India's want of horses from Australia is so at once understood. I see an auction sale going on of a cargo of what are called "Walers," which signifies importations from New South Wales. Good prices seem to be obtainable; but I leave the auction yard with feelings of pity for these poor fellow-emigrants of mine. Finding how oppressive the heat is, I know that I should not like to exchange climates, as these horses have done, and have to work in this stewing atmosphere, with the skin and bone result of which I see so much about.

Madras is not an attractive place in the eyes of a visitor. Its principal thoroughfare, known as Popham's Broadway, has many dilapidated buildings in it. There is too much of such neglect observable about the city, to which a municipal body, if such exists, should give their attention. The services of the bricklayer and the mason, as also those of the painter and whitewasher, seem to be much needed. It is proper, nevertheless, thus to call at Madras as being, as before indicated, the first of British settlements on this shore. It was also the ground on which the English and French fought their first East Indian battle. The first fort—Fort St. George—was here built by the English, and here was established that Madras Presidency, the first of the series of Presidencies that spread afterwards throughout Hindoostan. Here were, therefore, the small beginnings, two hundred and eighty years ago, of the empire that Great Britain now owns in India, an empire greater than was ever ruled by any other of its mighty conquerors, larger by far than what was acquired by the sword of Baber, or swayed by the sceptre of Akbar. One can look back here on all the progress so made, step by step, from the day that the old East India Company invested their first thirty thousand pounds in this Eastern adventure—the best speculation that Englishmen ever undertook,—to the other day when the Company was displaced, and the Empress of India proclaimed in its stead.

Getting away from the not particularly interesting city of uneven footways and neglected appearance, I go along by tree-shaded highways to the public gardens, where zoological and botanical specimens are alike kept. Here I make a first acquaintance with the East Indian elephant—a creature of immense size, compared with his Cingalese cousin. He is, however, a working animal in India, and quite as useful as ornamental. In every fort and barracks, he is to be found—kept there as carefully as the soldiery. These animals look formidable as the cannon they help to haul about. As engines of war, they would seem now to need iron plating, to withstand conical shot and Gatling guns. Of service, in the days of bow and arrow warfare, that day being over, theirs would seem also to be done.

A group of jugglers, four in number, detain my attention more than anything I saw in Madras. These children of nature, and of very high art, were scarcely clothed at all, and had no sleeves up which to hide anything, or any belongings, that could not be seen through at a glance. That there was "no deception," in anything that these great masters of deception did, was plain to all ignorant eyes. We think that we are very clever, and have a proverb that "seeing is believing," at which these jugglers—simple children of the sun—only laugh. Our senses help to deceive, and not to enlighten us. For that we have to go to our reason. My reason tells me that a man could not have a bagful of pebbles in his mouth, though I may seemingly see him take one thereout every time he opens it. Sitting down for a rest, and keeping the umbrella hoisted for shelter, I look at the best magicians I ever saw, and am, for a full hour, in "Wonderland."

"It was quite possible, looking at the black colour of these necromancers, to regard their strange doings as diablerie, in all senses of the word. The first thing done by one of this quartette was the placing in his mouth of a large pebble. His mouth was shown open, and very much open, too, before the stone was placed in it. The pebble was also handed round for similar inspection. Yet, from this pebble and his otherwise empty mouth, my dark friend—or fiend—blows out, first smoke, then sparks, and afterwards a jet of flame. That devilry being done, he re-opens his mouth to show his white teeth and innocent pink tongue with the pebble, and nothing else, lying on it. Taking the pebble out and throwing it away, he re-opens his mouth to take three larger stones from it. There had been no previous motions of the throat visible to indicate that he had brought them up, in fashion of ruminating animals, from his stomach. Where they came from was of the inscrutable—the miraculous.

The next bewilderment on the programme was the placing on the ground of a nut, and covering it with the rag that one of the four wears as a turban. He raises this now and again, at half minute intervals, to show what is going on. The nut has sprouted, and a little tree is apparently springing up, at a rate that beats time and nature altogether. At the end of five minutes a respectable little flower-pot plant is handed about, which, if I can swear to anything in this world of deception, I could depose that I had seen grow in that time from the nut! Of course, one's reason tells one it could do nothing of the sort, just as one's reason tells one that no recorded miracle could ever have occurred as stated. Other nuts are then changed, the one into a mouse, and the other into a frog, and to such changes no apparatus is used, and they go on within reach of one's hand and under one's nose. And yet these men are of the nation of Hindostan—a nation of clever people, who have never yet been able to govern themselves.

For a third surprise, a flat basket is provided, which is handed about that I may see that it is empty, which it is, and also dirty and decayed to boot. Its lid is then closed, and it is placed on the floor. An incantation, in due form of the conjuring ritual, is muttered over it, and the cover is then raised. With it rises also a snake, that stands upon its tail and hisses to order, just to show its scorn of any deception and its protest against any such idea. The basket is now closed and again reopened to show that no snake is there, but in its place a young lobster-looking scorpion. These be things that give me what Hamlet calls "pause."" There are, as he says, more things in heaven and earth, and especially in this part of it, than are dreamt of in my philosophy. I offer ten rupees right off—the equal of a sovereign—to know whence that snake came and whether it went. Though I am one of the conquering nation that govern here, and so ought to be graciously treated, my offer is scorned. These men will not sell their tricks of trade, which are their stock in trade, for any price. My guide tells me I might offer a hundred pounds, similarly, in vain. I had found before that money could not buy everything, but to have it refused by a shoeless, black, juggling devil of a conquered nation, was a great "let down" indeed to me.

Seeing that he had got an appreciative audience, who throw rupees about by the handful, one of these high priests of deception proceeds to greater efforts. To show that he is independent from all visible aid, he mounts now upon a T shaped cross bar for the rest of his performances. This extraordinary platform he can actually keep balanced upon, while performing his tricks. Keeping that upright, and keeping upright upon it, was dexterous or supernatural enough, had he done nothing else when there. He produces, however, an egg from his girdle, which egg he offers for inspection, before breaking the shell. I pass it, when offered to me, as such inspections are of no service, and would not be offered if they were. It is a common looking egg, apparently of duck or barn door fowl parentage. Yet, upon its being broken by our friend upon the tripod, it is seen to contain a live snake, that had evidently, by its ways, been in the world before this occasion, and was, I am sure, not hatched in that egg shell. Keeping brass balls flying about is a common performance, if done with the hands, but my friend atop of the triangle strikes them only with his elbows. He reserves his hands for tossing about a ball of granite, of twenty pounds weight, which seems to fall naturally on to the back of his neck, and not to hurt him, each time he throws it aloft. He finishes now with a dance on his perch, and my astonishment is now so stretched, that I should believe my eyes had he concluded by swallowing it. I never paid for any performance with such pleasure in my life. I feel that I have spent my time with great artists—the creme de la creme of the hanky-panky profession.

This wandering about, on foot, beneath an Indian sky, is not to be looked upon lightly. The sky aforesaid is of a dark and leaden-like blue, unlike to the lighter tint of the skies of Australia and Italy. It is, I am told, the cool season of the year, of which they boast only four or five months in India, and think it heavenly. Those months are from beginning of November to middle of March. The other months are not for white men, if they valued their health and the state of their lives. In this walking about, I find that my boots, and thence upwards to the knees, have got all discoloured with the before-mentioned red dust of the place. It more or less seems to tinge everything in Madrass—the fields, trees, and houses, as also the surfaces of the lakes and tanks, the mosques, churches, and temples. The visitor will remember Madras by his colouring matter, as he will recall Cincinnati, or Newcastle-upon-Tyne, by the smoked-looking appearance of the houses. It struck me, as a stranger, that it looked bad for trade, that the dress of the natives was all as destitute of pockets as are the shrouds of our dead.

Madras has fortunately overland communication by railway with Bombay. The unpleasantness of reaching it from seaward, as I had done, may therefore be avoided. It shall be so if I go to Madras again, which will be only to buy and tranship, as a curio, one of those cars of Juggernaut, and a couple of those jugglers. Meantime, I have to leave it by the way I came, and with no better prospect of a calm passage. The weather is, in fact, a little worse, and I envy the sea birds, who can, without any of my troubles, get to the ship that is waiting for me. It requires good courage to face the breakers that so come dashing with loud roar upon the beach. Looking at the scene, I think of the similar one in the opening of "The Tempest," and echo the boatswain's words—

"What care these roarers for the name of King?"

Meantime I am being squabbled about, as for a passenger, among the boatmen, and cannot identify the crew that brought me in. As it is the same fare with all of them, and there is a pleasure in variety of men and of boats, I surrender to whomsoever will start with one passenger. I am then hoisted in, as a bale of goods, and run out after a retiring wave. By the time the next roarer comes, my dripping wet crew have shipped themselves, and I am tying myself to my seat for a measure of safety. The frequent duckings that these men get keep them clean, and, as they wear nothing, cannot damage their clothing.

The aid of a boathook would, I feared, have been necessary to getting me on board. The large steamer rolled from side to side in the swell of the surf, and so much so, that from my little barge of a boat I obtained, at ascending times, a full view of its deck, and next moment was down in the trough of the sea looking at its screw. My shipment was at last effected by the quarter-master catching at me as the boat rose to the level of his standing place, at the head of the ship's steps. It is sometimes a fortunate thing to be a light-weight, and this was one of such occasions. The ending was of a piece with the beginning, and both were well calculated to give one a lasting memory of Madras.

Two passengers, or rather one passenger and his supplement, had been added to our ship's company by this Madras call. He occupies, however, as much of our attention for the next few days as a whole dozen might do. Some folks make themselves felt—have a "presence," as it is termed—and way is made for them by their fellows accordingly. Our steamer could not have left Madras until we got this addition to our company; and if by any mischance he had died, or dropped overboard and drowned, we must have gone back again and waited—even if we waited for a month—for his successor. We enter upon the waters of the river Hooghly, soon after leaving Madras, and shall continue upon them for two days, until they float us into Diamond Harbour. The waters of this Hooghly are very shallow; its sands and currents are everlastingly shifting, and new channels thereby forming. No sea captain dares to take his ship through such trouble unassisted by such as our new passenger, who is that amphibious creature known as "a Hooghly pilot."

The "supplement" to him is his native servant, a gorgeous looking being, in dazzling turban, white blouse, and sash of many colours. He is ever at his master's elbow, stands behind his chair at meal-times, and lies on the mat outside his cabin-door when the great man is within. For a great man is our new passenger! All power and dominion has been given up to him by the captain and officers, who, with the rest of the ship's crew, wait on the words and dumb motions of our new ruler. He is, in his ways and fashions, quite a curio. His ways are those of a martinet, for which he may be excused, but not for his clothing. We are stewing in the fierce heat, want but gauze coverings, ventilated slippers, and no socks. We walk the deck under umbrella shelter, when away from that of the ship's awning, bowing before that sun above us, who is the real ruler of India, and before whom one must, like a Hebrew taking an oath, not stand uncovered.

Our friend is, however, resplendent in a broadcloth coat, tightly brass buttoned over his chest. He wears a thick, heavy cloth cap, yellow kid gloves, and patent leather boots! I put a note of exclamation there, because we all made exclamations of some sort about it. The enumerated articles of costume were worn always, and showed us what the human frame can be made to endure. Those leathern gloves, and glazed boots were, in our eyes, tortures of the same order as the thumb-screw and boot of the Spanish Inquisition. Our pilot might, by perseverance in such a course of self punishment, have qualified himself in time for a monk or a martyr, or one of the holy fakirs of this Indian land. Our captain tells us that it takes twenty years to learn the art and mystery of Hoogly pilotage, and that our late acquisition draws for his services the appropriate Ministerial salary of fifteen hundred pounds a year, and a retiring pension of half that amount, at the end of a service finishing at fifty. His local knowledge insures him the respect he gets from the otherwise helpless officers. The nature of his restricted life, and its narrow sphere, had also to be considered, when regarding the mixture of fop, martinet, and exquisite, that were represented in this eastern edition of Long Tom Coffin.

The sea-voyager to Calcutta finds that his water troubles begin just where he might expect them to end—at what he might reasonably think to be the end of his voyage. That commences at "Sandheads," here on the Hooghly. On reaching the "Heads" elsewhere one is soon thereafter at anchorage and debarkation. At the Sandheads on the Hooghly, however, it is yet two days and nights to get into a harbour and to the landing-stairs. Folks used to travel will know what two days feel like, at such times. Worse things happen, though, than this wearisomeness of dawdling along for a few miles each day and dropping the anchor at night. I was detained once for two days in a fog at the entrance to New York Harbour, and again, for a longer time in that antiquated and exasperating torture called quarantine, which one feels, in such cases, to be an invention of the Evil One to catch men's souls in cursing. He that tempted Job of old, in every way "to curse God and die," simply failed, not thinking of that final and more certain mode of quarantine, for bringing about such an event.

This Hooghly, that I have so to drag out existence upon for days and nights, is but one of the many divisions of the stream of the Ganges, that here finds its way seaward, to the Bay of Bengal. That sacred river, as it nears the coast, spreads itself about in a wonderful way, in its many divisions, over a broad stretch of land, that is called its Delta. It is to be devoutly wished that the sacred waters that are floating the ashes of so many Hindoos to salvation were of a better colour. Also, that they were deeper, and would keep to one course after entering upon it. Likewise, that they were less miasmatic than they are, for this Delta of the Ganges by its swampiness, and the burial use made of its waters, is said to be the hotbed of Asiatic cholera. For these many reasons, the Ganges, at this end of it, does not favourably impress the voyager. That the Hindoos worship it does not surprise one—they bow to that which most affects them. Of their Trinity, the favourite god is the destroying Shiva.

I lounge about the roomy steamer enjoying its emptiness, for most of its passengers have been left at Bombay, and the vessel is on its way to Calcutta with a cargo, and a few families. The deserted bath-rooms are a blessing to one who has usually had to wait for a turn thereat. It is this deserted ship, in keeping with its creeping progress, and the slow pace of the sluggish waters that we are upon—waters that are smooth and turbid everywhere, scarcely in some places seeming to flow—

"As if in grief for those whose sway
Had ruled here in a bygone day,
And left a charm thereon impressed,
Its tide had wept itself to rest."

And what bygone grandeur have these waters not looked upon!

POLICE.

At the Central Police Court, yesterday, the Bench on the Criminal side was occupied by Messrs. Jolly, Reading, Thomas, Pinhey, Sladen, Perdriau, and Cone; and in the Summons Court by Messrs. Neale, Ridge, Blair, Beaumont, Carter, and Hunt.

Frederick J. G. Smith, who was yesterday committed to take his trial at the Quarter Sessions, on a charge of having, by means of a false pretence, that is to say, a worthless cheque, obtained from John Wilson, of George-street, clothier and draper, goods to the value of £20, was charged with having shortly afterward, by a similar pretence, and before prosecutor had received notice of the dishonour of the first cheque, obtained other goods of the value of £18. Committed for trial.

James Allen, charged by Hannah Allen, his wife, with having assaulted her, pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to pay a penalty of £5, complainant's costs to be deducted therefrom, or to be imprisoned one month.

Licensing Business.—An auctioneers' license was granted to Thomas W. Bachell, and a colonial wine license to Edward Rayner. William B. Johnson's publicans' license was transferred to William Maguire; and Mary Anderson was allowed to remove her license from Newtown Road to premises situated in Devonshire-street.

At the Water Police Court, yesterday, before Messrs. Marsh, W.P.M., Lester, Wynne, Goodridge, and Arguimbau. Arthur Wilson, 22, confectioner, and Ellen O'Neill, servant, were convicted of indecency in a public place off King-street. The former was fined 40s. or 14 days; and the latter £5, or a month.

Domingo de la Vega, 25, and described as a clerk, and a native of Chili, was charged with stealing a watch and chain, of the value of £4, the property of Andrew Sellars. Prosecutor deposed that he came with prisoner in the ship Glenelg from Valparaiso, and they, with another man, went to stay at Pavie's boarding-house, Margaret-street; on the night of the 29th instant, prosecutor went to bed about 10 p.m., leaving his watch and chain on the bedroom table; prisoner and another man came into the room about 11 p.m.; prosecutor asked prisoner to light a candle, which, however, he did not do; after some conversation he went upstairs to his own bedroom; about 6 a.m. the following morning prosecutor missed his watch and chain; he went upstairs and asked prisoner if he had taken them; prisoner replied that he had not; some time subsequent to this witness again asked prisoner about the watch and chain, when he denied all knowledge of them, and assisted witness to look for them; witness then reported his loss at the Central Police station. Detective William Camphin deposed that prisoner, through the Chilian Consul, reported that 1536 sovereigns had been stolen from his son in Pavie's boarding-house on the night of the 29th instant; witness went to the boarding-house to inquire into the matter, and, after carefully examining the lock of the box which prisoner said had been forced open, came to the conclusion that he had not been robbed of any money, and that he had concocted the story of the loss of the £1536; witness then commenced to search prisoner's box, when he (witness) saw prisoner put his hand underneath the clothes in the box; witness immediately afterwards saw something in his hand, and on taking hold of his hand, he found the watch and chain produced, and claimed by prosecutor. In cross-examination by prisoner the detective said that he (prisoner) had previously borrowed money; that he had not then paid his board, that a diary had been found in his (prisoner's) box, written in Spanish, which, on being interpreted, showed that he was "not worth a red cent;" the diary also had reference to other robberies. Prisoner, who had nothing to say, was committed for trial at the next Court of Quarter Sessions.

Samuel Campbell, 18, was charged with stealing a portmanteau, containing five handkerchiefs, two scarfs, and other articles of the value of £1, the property of one James William Taylor. From the evidence it appeared that prosecutor and prisoner were passengers by the Cuzco, from London, the former being a saloon and the latter a steerage passenger. On Tuesday last, prosecutor missed the portmanteau, and prisoner was seen by the storeman at the wharf where the Cuzco is lying with the portmanteau in his possession, and trying to open it; not being able to do so, he tried to force it open, but could not; he then put it away in his box, where it was afterwards found. The defence set up by prisoner was, that it was his own portmanteau; the storeman saw him trying to open it; that he had since lost it, and that some person must have stolen it and substituted prosecutor's in his (prisoner's) box. The Bench had evidently a doubt about the case, and put questions to the prisoner which tended to criminate him. They sent him to gaol for seven days.

Before Messrs. Smart, Hunt, Penfold, and Tremlin, Js.P., Inspector Seymour prosecuted in the following cases, Mr. R. Driver also appearing for the prosecution:—Thomas Quinn, for wilfully committing damage to kerbstone, fined 6s. and 5s. costs; Thomas Baragry, suffering filthy water to remain upon the footway, £2, and 5s. costs; Henry Zions, suffering old timber to remain on the footway, £2, and 5s. costs; Henry Hart, suffering bricks to remain on the footway, £2, and 5s. costs; Henry Crips, similar offence, 5s. and 5s. costs; John Bowles, suffering shavings to remain on the footway, £1, and 5s. costs; Thomas Dowling, suffering rubbish to remain on the carriage way, £2, and 5s. costs; Florence Gleeson, neglecting to keep premises clean, £2, and 5s. costs.

A temporary publican's license was granted to Charles Strathon for the Association Cricket Ground for one month, and to Stokes Stubbs a special auctioneer's license was granted. Lloyd Williams applied to have the sign of his licensed house, the Pineapple Inn, Fitzroy-street, changed to Williams's Hotel.

J. BLUTHNER'S ALIQUOT PIANOS (as seen in the Garden Palace), have taken the highest honours at the Vienna and Philadelphia International Exhibitions, and are patented in Great Britain and Ireland, Germany, Austria, Hungary, the United States, Russia, Sweden, Norway, and Denmark. The system of the Aliquot Pianos is acknowledged in most parts of Europe and the U. S. of America, and by the most eminent professors, as most perfect. Aliquot Piano it has been named by its inventor, because its construction has been taken from the observation and treatment of the aliquot tones (partial sounds generating from the fundamental notes and their harmonious uppernotes, from E basso.) Above the strings of the piano struck by the hammers are drawn vibrating strings, tuned one octave higher, and of finer calibre to facilitate vibration. (These are not struck by the hammers.) In the higher regions the strings are tuned in unison. To sonorous fulness swell the chords struck by the hammers, and acts harp-like, in magic descrescendo fade the chords away. The Aliquot Piano, further, has a most melodious, organ-like, powerful tone, particularly effective in long tenuto, and in arpeggio chords, from the pianissimo to the fortissimo, from the chorale to prestissimo.

Pianos by Julius Blüthner are also for sale at our Music Warehouse, Furniture, &c.

THE DEALERS in OLD-FASHIONED SEWING-MACHINES, which are mostly made in GLASGOW, of Scotch iron, although FALSELY SOLD as AMERICAN, become more and more alarmed at the SUCCESS of the WERTHEIM. The chief agent, resident in Melbourne, for these GLASGOW-MADE machines ordered reductions in prices in Sydney and elsewhere, in the hope of excluding the UNRIVALLED WERTHEIMS introduced by us. But the public from the first showed the WERTHEIMS a marked preference, on account of their extreme PERFECTION OF FINISH, and also for their GREATER CHEAPNESS. With the inferior machines it is IMPOSSIBLE to perform the same range of work as with the WERTHEIMS, and the weaker and less perfect mechanism will not endure a SEVERE TEST. Purchasers have proved the WERTHEIMS by a FREE TRIAL and instruction at their OWN HOMES. If a STEEL KNIFE be suddenly placed under the needle, while the machine is at FULL SPEED, no cog-wheels will be broken, nor will the machine be injured in the slightest degree. Such a test will not be permitted by ANY OTHER MAKER; nor can any other machines perform the same range of work, as we are prepared to prove before any tribunal. Knowing these facts better than the general public, and well aware of the UNIFORM SUCCESS and LARGE SALES of the WERTHEIM Machine throughout Victoria, South Australia, and New Zealand, the agents of old-fashioned machines, made upon EFFETE PLANS and principles, and which will not bear comparison with the products of modern science, adopt less worthy methods of competition than simple reduction of prices.

The ridiculous imputation was put forth frequently enough in these columns, "Beware of German imitations," "Beware of German brummagim counterfeit imitations of inferior material and bad workmanship." This latter phrase, in which bad English, cacography, vulgar insolence, bad geography, and mendacity are all suitably blended, appeared some weeks since. In this style of controversy, not unknown, we believe, in America, although new indeed here, we disdain to reply.

The latest dodge, which we cannot pass without plain contradiction, may be seen in an advertisement in this paper of the 14th instant. By that advertisement, and by many previously, buyers are warned to "Beware of German imitations under FICTITIOUS NAMES." It is thus sought to deny the existence of the OLDEST, LARGEST, most SUCCESSFUL, and IMPORTANT Sewing-machine Factory on the Continent of Europe, and to imply that the justly-renowned WERTHEIM Machines are not obtainable in Sydney at all.

We subjoin copies of correspondence which effectually explain the position of the WERTHEIM SEWING-MACHINES. From the statements therein may be seen how ULTRA VIRES and unscrupulous have been the tactics of our competitors. The first letter is from Mr. HUGO WERTHEIM, representative in Australia of Herr JOSEPH WERTHEIM, Proprietor of the great Factories at Frankfort. The second is from Professor REULEAUX, a Privy Councillor of his Germanic Majesty, Commissioner of the GERMAN EMPIRE to the CENTENNIAL at Philadelphia, and to the SYDNEY INTERNATIONAL Exhibition.

"Sydney, 17th October, 1879.
"To Professor Dr. F. REULEAUX, Commissioner for the GERMAN EMPIRE, Garden Palace.

"Sir,—I request your attention to the following in relation to the WERTHEIM SEWING-MACHINES.

"You are doubtless aware of the DISHONEST STYLE OF ADVERTISING adopted by the vendors of rival machines in order to establish by innuendo and AD CAPTANDUM assertions a prejudice in the minds of the public.

"You may have noticed from day to day these announcements: 'Beware of German brummagem machines;' 'Beware of German imitations, of inferior material,' and many others, which are directed against the WERTHEIM Machines. For these remarks our competitors of course have neither legal right nor the slightest foundation in fact. Incensed at the utter futility of their efforts, AUT FAS AUT NEFAS, to drive the WERTHEIM out of the market, they even go so far as to assert of late that our machines have been introduced under a FICTITIOUS name, thereby insinuating that WERTHEIM'S factory is insignificant or mythical.

"In a far off country like Australia it must be expected that many people are not well informed in relation to prominent continental industries; and, for that reason, might be misled, to our injury, by the untruthful advertisements to which I have ventured to call your attention.

"I know well that your distinguished position pre-eminently qualifies you to speak authoritatively upon German manufactures. I therefore respectfully request that you will kindly favour me with an official announcement of the simple fact of the existence and importance of the German Sewing Machine Factory, directed by JOSEPH WERTHEIM, at Frankfort on the Maine.

"I have the honour to be, Sir,
"Your most obedient
"(Signed) HUGO WERTHEIM.
"Australian Representative of the Wertheim Sewing Machine Factory."

"Sydney, 20th October, 1879.
"To Hugo Wertheim, Esq.

"Sir,—I have received your letter of the 17th instant.

"In reply I beg to say that I am of opinion that the QUALITY of the WERTHEIM MACHINES will ALONE be sufficient to counteract the practices of which you complain.

"I have, however, no hesitation in stating the Herr JOSEPH WERTHEIM was one of the earliest manufacturers of Sewing-machines in Germany; that TWELVE YEARS back I was brought into contact with Herr WERTHEIM, in connection with the Sewing-machine industry; that at the present time his factory at Frankfort-on-the-Maine is of UNDOUBTED EMINENCE and CELEBRITY, and that the HIGH QUALITY of his products is GENERALLY RECOGNIZED.

"I am, Sir,
"Yours respectfully,
"(Signed) F. REULEAUX,
"Commissioner for the German Empire."

The WERTHEIM MACHINES may be seen in use in the GERMAN COURT, on the main floor of the GARDEN PALACE. Any WERTHEIM Machine may be had upon trial at your OWN HOME, with full instructions, altogether fee of charge.

They may also be seen, side by side, for the purpose of comparison, with the Glasgow Machines, before-mentioned, at the Offices of the Agents,

FOR PRIVATE SALE
MAGNIFICENT VINEYARD, situated about 2½ miles from the RAILWAY TERMINUS at SOUTH WAGGA WAGGA, for PRIVATE SALE, by order of the PROPRIETOR, the Honorable WILLIAM MACLEAY, M.L.C.

The UNDERSIGNED have been instructed to bring into the market the NOTED
WOLENJERIE VINEYARD
ESTATE, situated on and having about ONE and a HALF MILE FRONTAGE to the northern shore of near Wagga Wagga.
The ESTATE consists of about 300 ACRES of the RICHEST LAND, and is all securely fenced, and subdivided into three paddocks.
The VINEYARD occupies an enclosed space of about 40 acres, well trenched, admirably laid out, well kept, and in splendid order. It contains about 45,000 STRONG and HEALTHY VINES of the best varieties of grape, the ANNUAL YIELD being about 10,000 GALLONS of WINE, UNSURPASSED IN QUALITY. The casks and cellars space are sufficient for 50,000 gallons. The stock at present in them is about 40,000 gallons, which in about three months will be supplemented by the crop of 1880, estimated to EXCEED 10,000 GALLONS.
The other buildings consist of a brick cottage for proprietor's residence, a manager's residence, several men's huts, press room, still-house, &c.

A better opportunity than this for a man of practical knowledge as a VIGNERON very rarely offers, everything about the place is complete and in the best order, and no further outlay of any kind is required, excepting what is necessary for the ordinary working expenses.

MAGNIFICENT SQUATTING PROPERTY.

and TUCKI TUCKI STATIONS,
with 4500 Head Mixed Cattle, more or less.

G. F. WANT has received instructions to sell by public auction, at the Hall of Commerce, Exchange, Sydney, on TUESDAY, 9th December, 1879, at 12 o'clock,
The well-known stations,
DUNGARUBBA and TUCKI TUCKI,
situated on the north side of the Richmond River, embracing an area of about 40,000 acres, being all available country on the side of the river, to which it has a frontage of about 86 miles.
It is abundantly watered by the Dungarubba and Tucki Tucki Creeks, and the Broadwater, which ensures a never failing supply.
With the runs will be sold
4500 HEAD MIXED CATTLE
30 HORSES.
All more or less.
The CATTLE are an exceedingly well-bred herd, great care having been taken for many years in the selection of the bulls; and as only one draft of store bullocks has been taken out for the last four years, there is a large number of marketable cattle now available.
There are 230 acres of purchased land on the runs, which will have to be taken at £1 per acre.
The IMPROVEMENTS consist of superintendent's residence of 4 rooms, kitchen, servant's room, three-stall stable, milking yard, shed, overseer's cottage, slaughterhouse, stock-yard, capable of working 6000 head, with lane, and paddock of about 700 acres of rich land, which can be purchased in virtue of improvements.
The purchaser of these runs will have the option of taking at a nominal price per acre the comprising 737 acres of FREEHOLD LAND, adjoining the town boundary of LISMORE, together with 25 acres 3 roods 23 perches of lawn land, upon which is a LAGOON with a never-failing supply of water. The land adjoining this property was sold at £60 per acre, and 187 acres also near the town.
On this ESTATE are the following IMPROVEMENTS:—Dwelling-house of 8 rooms, kitchen, store, scullery, bathroom, servants' rooms, general station store, saddle and harness room, stable, hay shed, bull-shed, corn loft, milking yard, slaughterhouse, stockyard, overseer's house, garden and orchard of about 5 acres, stocked with choicest fruit trees, plants, and flowers, two cultivation and two horse paddocks—the whole of the land being fenced in.
This valuable property is situated at the head of navigation, and steamers ply to and fro regularly.
The character of the CLARENCE and RICHMOND CATTLE is too well-known to need special comment here, and the extraordinary advantages of these stations are of such a nature as to render them the most lucrative, easily managed, and safest investments that can be found, and are almost entirely free from the disastrous effects of drought, while the condition of the herd would afford an immediate and very large return.
For further particulars apply to
G. F. WANT,
Hunter-street, Sydney.

Preliminary Notice.

930 acres conditionally purchased, all declared upon, and can be transferred.

TERMS: One-half cash upon the fall of the hammer, balance at one and two years, bearing interest at 8 per cent. per annum, secured upon the property.

In bringing this property into the market for sale, the Auctioneers would like to draw the attention of small capitalists to this rare chance of securing a station admirably situated, with so small a quantity of stock, and being capable of carrying fully three times the number of cattle—thus allowing the same to be worked up into a most valuable holding, while the terms are exceedingly liberal, which places the purchase within the reach of a very large section of the community.

CAMPBELLTOWN.

IMPORTANT SALE OF LAND,
at CAMPBELLTOWN,
on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 15th.

JOHN SHEA has received instructions from Mr. Edward M'Sulla to sell by auction, at Mr. Graham's Hotel, Campbelltown,
One of the best farms in the County of Cumberland, containing about 110 (one hundred and ten) acres of first-class land, the whole of which is all but newly fenced and divided into paddocks; a never-failing supply of water. The land is most beautifully situated, being only two and a-half miles from Campbelltown, on the Liverpool Road, and nearly 1 mile from the Campbellfields railway platform. The improvements consist of a large dwelling-house, kitchen, orchard, vegetable garden, flower garden, &c. This land is bounded on the north and east by the estates of Messrs. C. and P. Pendergast, on the south by the properties of Messrs. W. and D. Fowler, on the west by Eschol Park, the property of Mr. Gow. The road from Campbelltown to Liverpool runs through the farm, leaving 44 acres on one side and about 66 acres on the other side.
The auctioneer respectfully calls the attention of intending purchasers to the above very valuable property, and invites inspection of the same. In order to give parties arriving from Sydney an opportunity of attending, the sale will not take place till after the excursion train arrives at 3 o'clock, and they can return to town by the 8 o'clock train.
A large sale plan showing the subdivision is on view at Mr. Graham's Hotel, Campbelltown.
Day of Sale, NOVEMBER 15.
Terms at sale.

SALE AT HALF-PAST THREE O'CLOCK.

VALUABLE and DESIRABLY SITUATED STATION PROPERTY, known as BARRY,
situated on the Barnard River, adjoining the famous properties Belltrees and Glenrock, and distant only 15 miles from Nundle, together with 1200 head (more or less)
SUPERIOR MIXED DURHAM CATTLE,
HORSES,
Improvements, Plant, &c.

SPARKE and CLIFT have received instructions from W. A. Hungerford, Esq., to sell by auction, at Brown's (late Fullford's) Hotel, West Maitland, on TUESDAY, November 4th, 1879, at 2 o'clock,
The well-known BARRY STATION, situate on the Barnard River, and adjoining the famous estates Belltrees and Glenrock, containing 64,000 acres, more or less, first-class sound grazing land, splendidly watered by the Barnard River and numerous creeks, and carrying an abundance of grass in all seasons; together with 1200 head, more or less, highly-bred DURHAM CATTLE, which are second to none in the Northern district
40 HORSES, PLANT, &c.
The IMPROVEMENTS consist of comfortable HOMESTEAD, cultivation land, garden, stockyards, huts, horse and weaners' paddocks, containing 1200 acres, securely fenced, 4000 acres land ringbarked, &c.
Only one selector is now resident on the run, which has lately been proclaimed a gold-field, therefore not open to free selection in the future. This immunity from selection is a great advantage, and would allow of the run being fenced, thereby increasing the carrying capabilities to 5000 head cattle, or an equal proportion of sheep.
This run is very advantageously situated, and would form an excellent sheep property, in connection with a station on the Plains.
The cattle will be sold per head (all to count), the station, purchased land, improvements, plant, &c., thrown in; horses at a valuation.
In offering this really valuable property to the public, the Auctioneers desire to point out the great advantage accruing to it lately having been proclaimed a Gold-field Reserve. The run may now be fenced and otherwise improved without danger of free selection, and the fact of its being almost equal to a freehold must add to its value as a first-class sound investment.

TERMS.—Half cash, balance by approved bills, at one and two years, bearing interest, secured by mortgage over the property in the usual manner.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 6.

That well-known, Fast, Powerful, and Commodious Sea-going and River Steamer
ARAKOON,
one of the best appointed and admirably adapted steamship for the coasting or river trade of Queensland to be met with in the whole steam fleet of the Australian colonies.

Highly important to Merchants, Shipping Agents, Sawmill and Coal Mine Proprietors, and the general public interested in shipping, either intercolonial, coasting, or bay and river trade.

JAMES R. DICKSON has been favoured with instructions from the proprietors to submit to public competition, at his Rooms, Queen-street, Brisbane, on THURSDAY, November 6, at 11 o'clock,
That powerful and fast passenger and cargo-carrying, sea-going and river steamer
ARAKOON.
This favourite vessel was built on the Nambucca River, New South Wales, in 1872; has a register aggregate tonnage of 77 tons burthen; is 120 feet in length, by 14 8-10th feet beam, with a depth of hold of 6 3-10th feet; carries three masts, fore-and-aft schooner rigged, and is propelled by paddle wheels, driven by powerful and new engines, manufactured by Messrs. Smellie and Co. Her machinery consists of a pair of horizontal high pressure engines, cylinders 11 inch diameter by 30 inch stroke; 30 horse-power vertical boiler, fire-box, and return tube of Lowmoor iron. All steam and feed pipes of copper. Fitted with donkey for feeding boiler and pumping bilges. Every part of the machinery was made extra strong for bar-harbour work; made by Messrs. R. R. Smellie and Co. in 1877.
The steamer is now in thorough repair, a sum of about £800 having been recently expended on her in coppering and general renovations. She has been specially constructed to run harbours and shallow rivers, carrying a large cargo on a very light draft of water, while she is one of the fastest boats in these waters.
In proof of her suitability for intricate navigation, she has been for some time employed in the Tweed River and Southport trade, and on her voyages to and from the former port invariably uses the Boat Passage, at the southern extremity of Stradbroke Island.
The vessel is fully equipped and completely found in all necessary stores of which an inventory will be submitted at time of sale. She is insured, and being at present under charter, will be delivered to the purchaser at the expiration thereof—namely, 13th November proximo.
This fine steamship has cost about £3000. The proprietors do not, however, intend to place a reserve of this character on her, but will abide by public competition.
All further particulars can be obtained from the Auctioneer.
Title guaranteed.
Terms, liberal, to be announced at sale.

CHRISTMAS and NEW YEAR CARDS.—Just opened a large and elegant assortment.
EDWARD R. COLE, corner of George and King streets.

Extract from the SYDNEY MORNING HERALD, October 25th, 1879.
"Some exceedingly pretty cards have been forwarded to this office by Mr. Cole, stationer, of George and King streets, as specimens of recent importations for the coming festive seasons of Christmas and the new year. Some represent bouquets of beautiful flowers, others have depicted on them happy family groups, and several are humourous. Most of them are scented with choice perfumes, and all have appropriate mottoes. The mechanical cards are very ingeniously constructed. Every year increased attention appears to be paid to this branch of trade, and now it may be truly said that the skill of the artist and that of the printer have produced works which could hardly be excelled."

Extract from the SYDNEY DAILY TELEGRAPH, October 27th, 1879.
"We have received from Mr. E. R. Cole, of George and King streets, some really elegant Christmas and New Year cards. They are portions of a large consignment just to hand, and include English, German, French, and American cards. In design they are novel as they are handsome, and are sure to attract more than an ordinary share of attention. Some of them represent full-rigged ships, other fans, flowers, &c., all cut to outline and coloured in tints to suit the subject. The plain cards are also admirably executed."

Extract from FREEMAN'S JOURNAL, November 1st, 1879.
"CHRISTMAS AND OTHER CARDS.—We have received from Mr. E. R. Cole, stationer, King and George streets, Sydney, a number of very handsome cards which he has recently imported from England, France, and Germany. They are admirably suited for presentation at the coming Christmas season. They are all artistically and beautifully printed. The cards represent a variety of beautiful objects, many bear mottoes, and others are mechanical 'voiced' cards. Altogether the collection sent us is the handsomest we recollect seeing, and we can safely predict a large sale for them."
